Lipomas (Fatty Tumors)
Every so often, I have to mention fatty tumors (lipomas) under the skin because so many people ask about them. Many persons are unduly worried about these nodules; they fear they will turn into cancer. Actually, I can remember only two or three cases in which a lipoma became big enough to annoy the person. For instance, a man had a lipoma in his groin so big that it got in his way when he sat down. A woman had a big lipoma which was irritated by the belts on her dresses, so I got a surgeon to remove it in a few minutes. Some people have only one or two lipomas, while some have many scattered all over their bodies. These lie under the skin in the fat. Many are as big as a big after-dinner mint, or about as big as a man's wrist-watch. They can run in families so, apparently, there is a hereditary tendency. I don't think anyone has the remotest idea why they form. The big thing is not to worry about them and not to fuss with them unless one of them should grow big enough to become a nuisance.

Tattooing Can Cause Serum Hepatitis

A cause for the often-serious serum hepatitis can be infection during tattooing. Because, in the last two years, 30 cases of serum hepatitis, with one death, have been traced to tattooing with unsterilized needles, the New York City Board of Health has closed up all of the local tattooing parlors.

The person who would like to understand better the problem of head noises and dizziness, should read Dr. Alvarez' booklet on those subjects. To obtain it, send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to:

Cash Awards Are Presented To Two Forest Employees

Supervisor C. E. Brown of the Rogue River National forest has announced presentation of cash awards to two members of his staff.

The first, an award of $200, was presented to District Ranger Neil Suttell of the Applegate district for preparation for an impact report for the Applegate dam and reservoir for use by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The report was revised slightly and later published in the Corps' report to its Washington office. Suttell was called on to present the report to the regional forester and his staff. Suttell's ingenuity, far-sightedness, and the courage of his convictions resulted in a report which far exceeded any similar report written for a like project on national forests, Brown said.

Second Award

The second, an award of $150, was presented to Hector Langdon, forest engineer, Langdon, as forest safety officer for the past three years, has given leadership to the safety program that surpasses any previous record of performance.

He encountered passive thinking of safety by crew leaders. Through his attendance at district and unit safety meetings, his initiation of a working forest safety committee, and his incessant reminders on safety, the entire forest has become safety-minded.

Langdon's persistence won for the forest the regional forester's safety trophy for 1959 and 1960, and second place in 1961 for the past four years. His leadership on safety has been outstanding, Brown noted.

Panel To Discuss Mental Health

A team from Oregon State hospital, Salem, will present a panel discussion on mental and emotional illness at a meeting of the Jackson County Mental Health association Monday, May 21, in the board room of the Rogue Valley hospital on Barnett rd., according to Dr. John McLaughlin, president of the association. The meetings starts at 8 p.m.

The team, which also will be in the county to work with the local health department, will include Dr. Larry Doyle, psychiatrist in charge of admission ward and acute treatment; Dr. Thad Furlong, psychiatrist working in geriatrics; Mrs. Nadine Nunn, social worker; and Mrs. Gertrude Stoltenberg, director of the social service department at the hospital.

Among subjects to be discussed will include facilities available in Oregon, admission and discharge procedures and modern treatment methods.

Mental illness is one of the most serious health problems and one which is receiving more emphasis nationally with the publication of the recent challenging Congressional report on mental illness, according to Dr. Erin Merkel, county public health officer.

In addition to the panel discussion, election of officers for the association is scheduled.
