SOC Praised for Relations Courses

Ashland—Professor Robert E. Doherty of the New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations with headquarters at Cornell University will visit Southern Oregon college this summer as a part of a nationwide survey of materials in industrial relations available to and used by teachers in the field. President Elmo N. Stevenson has announced.

Dr. Stevenson reported that SOC had received high praise from Professor Doherty for the number and caliber of its course offerings in the field of industrial and labor relations.

He cited the following courses as listed in the current catalog as "highly unusual for a college with its primary function the training of teachers": education 325 labor economics; economics 326 organized labor; and economics 327 labor legislation.

Dr. Arthur S. Taylor, lecturer, author, historian, and member of the teaching staff at SOC since 1926, is chairman of the social science division.
