Fund Drive Completed For New Academy Buildings

The four Seventh-day Adventist Churches of Rogue Valley have completed a $141,000 membership commitment drive for Rogue River academy and various local needs.

According to Pastors Arvin W. Winkle and Lyle W. Cornforth, the four participating churches: Ashland, Medford, Shady Point, and Valley View, have been engaged in a valley-wide organization since the first of April. R. C. Rembold, Portland, has been in Medford for seven weeks assisting in the organization.

Funds from the drive are to be used largely for the completion of the cafeteria and office wing of the present building at Rogue River academy. In addition, some $73,000 is allocated for a new gymnasium and vocational building. The new building will be constructed on the campus just west of the present unused structure.

Commitments totaling $142,113.50 have been received from church members, and will be followed through on a monthly basis for the next 36 months. This means that the presently committed totals are more than a thousand dollars over the objective. In addition, there are still a number of members who have indicated a willingness to participate. With this in mind, the present financial emphasis is considered a strong success.

Rogue River academy is a private school owned and operated by the Seventh-day Adventist church. It is supported and guided by a local board elected from the four member congregations in Rogue valley. The school is affiliated with the Association of Seventh-day Adventist Secondary Schools and Colleges in the Department of Education for the denomination.

Enrollment for Rogue River academy this year is above 150 in grades one through ten. Considering the additional facilities to be provided, it is expected that the enrollment will continue to climb.
