Sacred Heart Lay Board to Request Hill-Burton Funds

Architects Told to Proceed With Plans

The lay board of directors of Sacred Heart hospital Friday voted to apply for Hill-Burton funds for construction of a new 81-bed hospital on Crater Lake ave., approximately 300 feet south of its intersection with McAndrews rd.

The directors said they wanted to qualify for the federal matching money this year to help finance the construction next year. "We feel there will be a tremendous increase of hospital building in Oregon in 1963. We must get going and establish priority in Hill-Burton funds in 1962," a spokesman said.

The board authorized Medford architects Edson and Pappas to proceed "immediately" on plans for the new building for the 18-acre site. Deadline for the building start is July 1, 1963.

Spoke Briefly

Edson and Pappas have been working with Medical Planning Associates, of Beverly Hills, Calif., in laying the groundwork for the plans. James Moore, president of the planning firm, spoke briefly on what the firm hopes to accomplish here and what it has accomplished for other hospitals throughout the United States.

Approval for purchase of the property was received early in March from the Sisters of Charity of Providence from Mother General Phillip de Cesaire in Montreal, the Order's headquarters. The planning company representative selected the Crater Lake ave. site.

In 1960 it was announced that the hospital would close after nearly 50 years of operation. Following a re-study of the hospital's situation and potential by the Order it was decided in November, 1960, to keep the hospital open. At that time the fourth floor and maternity department were closed and a foundation was set up to receive donations for the construction of a new building.

Widespread Support

After the announcement that the hospital would close, widespread support for the continuation of two hospitals in Medford was received from throughout the community, both from individuals and the medical profession.

It was stated at that time that even with the Rogue Valley hospital addition, if Sacred Heart hospital were to close, the number of beds would not exceed those now available. Also cited was the continuing growth of the community as indicated by the census figures.

The present hospital has an 80-bed capacity, according to Bert Thierolf, board chairman. In 1960 an inspection by the state fire marshal gave the hospital a "clean bill of health." The entire structure is covered by a sprinkler system.

NEWS BRIEFS

CABINET OFFICIALS SAID BRIBED
Paris — (UPI) — The former aide of ex-Gen. Raoul Salan charged through his attorney Saturday that members of President Charles de Gaulle's cabinet took bribes totaling $158,000 to support the anti-Gaullist French Algeria movement.

NIKE ZEUS MISSILE FIRED

Pt. Mugu, Calif. — (UPI) — A three stage Nike Zeus anti-missile missile was successfully fired Saturday in what Army officials termed a "high altitude shot."

OAS BOMBS SCHOOL

Algiers — (UPI) — The Secret Army (OAS) Saturday bombed and burned schools and public buildings in what informed sources said was the start of a scorched earth policy to leave no public buildings intact when the Moslems take over an independent Algeria.

ATTEMPTS MADE TO BLOW UP WALL

Berlin — (UPI) — Anti-Communist forces Saturday made the first widespread, organized attempt to blow up the anti-refugee wall in Berlin and the East German government warned the West that such attempts could bring military clashes.

Oregon Honored at Seattle World's Fair; Gov. Hatfield Notes Tourist Traffic Jump

Seattle — (UPI) — The neighboring state of Oregon was honored Saturday at the Seattle World's Fair and the governor of the Beaver State invited Washingtonians and visitors to the exposition to come to see the "Little World's Fair" beginning June 2 in Damascus, Ore.

President Joe Gandy of the World's Fair asked Gov. Mark Hatfield if the president of the Damascene Fair would return the favor if Gandy would visit the Damascene Fair.

"Well, they're pretty busy down there," Hatfield replied. "But I would make every effort."

Increase in Tourism

Turning to more serious matters, Hatfield said the impact of the Seattle Fair had already brought about a 50 to 100 per cent increase in Oregon's tourism so far this season.

Hatfield joined Mayor Terry Shrum of Portland, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg and thousands of Oregon residents in observance of Oregon Day.

The governor said Oregon's Expo-lodging bureau tied in with the Fair's housing by direct telephone lines, has had business "far in excess of what we anticipated."

Hatfield made his comments at a news conference before he and Washington Gov. Albert D. Rosellini proceeded to the Plaza of the States to officially open the Oregon Day observance.

Body of Man, 60, Found in Box Car

The body of a man identified as William Steven Taylor, about 60, of Bakersfield, Calif., was found in a box car Friday afternoon in Ashland.

An autopsy performed Friday night by Medford Pathologist Dr. Robert Buck revealed that Taylor had been stabbed twice. The upper wound was four to six inches deep and penetrated the heart. Time of death was estimated 36 hours before the body was found. This would indicate the stabbing did not occur in the box car, a sheriff's deputy said.

When found, the man was attired in neat, clean blue jeans. He is described as 5 feet, 9 inches tall, weighing about 140 pounds and with grayish brown hair, the sheriff's office reported.

Ashland police who first reported the body said there was no money on it and only means of identification was a Bank of America passbook. Taylor has since been identified as a day laborer from Bakersfield area.

A further investigation is being made in cooperation with the Bakersfield and Ashland police, the sheriff's office reported.

One clue being followed up was a scrap of paper on the body bearing the name of A. L. Futch. Sheriff's deputies indicated that Bakersfield police have a man named Futch in custody on a drunk charge. He is being questioned in connection with the case.

Goldberg to Deliver Commencement Speech
Portland — (UPI) — Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg took a break between Oregon appearances Saturday to tour the Seattle World's Fair, before returning here to receive an honorary degree.

Goldberg will be awarded a degree at the University of Portland Sunday, where he also will deliver the commencement address.

raised Oregon's state flag to a position of honor at the Plaza.

The ceremonies included music by the Benson High school band of Portland and the Forest Grove, Ore., Glee-men. Boy Scouts raised the flags of the other 49 states in order of their admittance to the Union after the Rev. Everett J. Jensen, pastor of the Getsemane Lutheran church of Seattle, delivered the invocation.

Then the symbolic fire font was lighted to signify the unity of the states. Other groups participating in the celebration included the North Bend, Ore., High school choir and William Speech of the Eugene, Ore., Junior Symphony, who presented a violin concert.

American Indians made Hatfield their "head chief" during the program. Portland Rose Queen Linda Fugue was introduced and the program ended at 4 p.m. with all Oregon musical groups combining in a rendition of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Unity of States

Larson, who served former President Dwight D. Eisenhower as White House assistant and director of the U. S. Information Agency, hit back at claims by the AMA that Kennedy's proposal was a first step toward socialized medicine.

He said the Social Security concept was the "only truly American approach to the problem."

Larson, now director of the Duke University World Rule of Law Center, conceded that the President's plan could cause "administrative complications" through friction between the need for maximum professional freedom and minimum federal standards.

Coquille Man Dead In One-Car Crash

By United Press International
A 27-year-old man was killed in a one-car accident on state highway 42 near Coquille Saturday.

The victim was Raymond E. Shull of Coquille, a passenger in a car driven by Elvon K. Tams, 27, of Coos Bay. Tams suffered minor injuries.

Lucinda A. Long, 76, Eugene, was killed Friday night in a car-train accident at Springfield.

The Soviets, on a nationwide tour sponsored by the Interior Department, saw five more dams in the Pacific Northwest Friday.

They saw The Dalles and the Bonneville dams on the Columbia river and toured the Merwin Swift and Yale dams on the Lewis river in southwest Washington.

The Russians are scheduled to leave Seattle Monday to see the huge Glen Canyon project in Utah.

Neuberger Speaks On Price of Stamps
Washington — (UPI) — It is "ridiculous" for Congress to have to argue about whether it will cost 4 cents or a nickel to mail a letter, Sen. Maurice B. Neuberger (D-Ore.) said Saturday night.

Addressing the first annual convention of the newly-combined Unitarian and Universalist church denominations Mrs. Neuberger said the question of raising postal rates should be left up to the post office department.

She noted that many other government agencies have authority to take, on their own, appropriate actions to improve operations and said the post office department should be empowered to set rates as needed.

'Man-Made Explosive' Believed Cause of Fatal Airliner Crash

Kennedy Predicts Medical Care Bill Will Be Approved

Remarks Made to Senior Citizens

Washington — (UPI) — President Kennedy predicted Saturday that his embattled medical care proposal would be voted into law next year for sure if Congress fails to approve it this year.

Continuing his personal campaign to whip up public and congressional support, he said his plan to provide medical benefits for the elderly through the Social Security system is opposed "by those who have in other days opposed the ways of progress."

Supports Proposal

The Chief Executive made the remarks at the White House to a delegation from the National Council of Senior Citizens, a new group which supports his proposal.

Dr. Arthur Larson, a former official of the Eisenhower administration, told the founding convention of the council later that the American Medical Association should "accept the inevitable" and throw its support behind Kennedy's program.

"I believe," the President said, "that we are going to be successful. We have very good prospects this year. But if not this year, then certainly next year."

The Chief Executive, who will be 45 years old next Wednesday, voiced hope that "when I become a senior citizen, which gets closer and closer, I have as worthy a cause to support."

Hit Back

Larson, who served former President Dwight D. Eisenhower as White House assistant and director of the U. S. Information Agency, hit back at claims by the AMA that Kennedy's proposal was a first step toward socialized medicine.

He said the Social Security concept was the "only truly American approach to the problem."

Carpenter Erred, Ran Out of Fuel During Re-Entry

Grand Turk Island, Bahamas — (UPI) — Astronaut Scott Carpenter's Aurora-7 space-ship ran out of fuel as it began its critical re-entry into the atmosphere at the end of a three-orbit flight around the earth Thursday because Carpenter accidentally turned on two control systems at once, it was disclosed Saturday.

Project Mercury officials said this mistake left Carpenter in a potentially perilous situation as he streaked through 3,000-degree temperature upon re-entry. But they said this was not the reason for the capsule flying more than 200 miles beyond the planned landing area in the Atlantic.

Without fuel for control in these last critical seconds, however, the experts said Aurora-7 could have started swinging back and forth like a pendulum, exposing the vulnerable sides of the bell-shaped capsule to the terrible heat of re-entry. A plastic heat shield on the blunt end of the capsule is supposed to protect the astronaut.

This apparently did not happen, officials said after more interviews with Carpenter on this British tracking station island, and Carpenter made his sea landing safely.

Oregon Building Industry May Go On Strike Monday

Portland — (UPI) — The Oregon construction industry is threatened with a strike by some 700 iron workers Monday morning, following the breakdown of contract talks Saturday.

Negotiators for Local 29, International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, demanded a two-year contract calling for wage increases of 75 cents an hour for rodmen and 68 cents an hour for all other workers during the talks here.

Union spokesmen replied their members would not show up for work Monday morning unless some agreement is reached by then. No further talks have been scheduled.

Financial Burden

Representatives of five employers groups said they could not act without a vote of their members because of the financial burden involved in the contract.

Union spokesmen replied their members would not show up for work Monday morning unless some agreement is reached by then. No further talks have been scheduled.

Jack Cullinan, chairman of the employers' negotiating group, said the union indicated no pickets would be posted, and said employers would attempt to keep construction projects going "as long as practically possible."

Groups Involved

The employers groups involved are the Associated General Contractors heavy and building divisions, the Willamette General Contractors Association of Salem, the Steel and Wire Fabricators Association, and the Eugene Contractors association.

In addition to their wage demands, the Iron Workers asked for a five-cent increase in health and welfare payments to 15 cents hourly, 15 cents an hour for a pension fund to be started July 1 and increases in present travel costs, Cullinan said.

Fujita and his son, 25-year-old Yasuyoshi, took pictures from the aircraft as they were piloted over Mt. Emily, eight miles east of here.

Fujita's wife, Ayako, did not go along on the flight. The plane trip was the highlight of the third day of Fujita's week-long visit.

The family attended the festival's annual parade following a breakfast at a local church. They also attended the coronation of the festival queen and went to a luncheon.

JFK Aides to Check Area Lumber Woes
Washington — (UPI) — President Kennedy has instructed a staff aide to look into problems of the Pacific Northwest's lumber industry and determine whether it would be useful to set up an inter-departmental committee on this matter.

This was reported by White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger, who said the action stemmed from a query submitted by a newsmen who had been unable to ask the President about the situation at his news conference.

Salinger said he did not know which staff assistant was being assigned the task or how extensive an inquiry would be needed.

ERECT BUILDING
Portland — (UPI) — Portland General Electric Co. will build a new office building in downtown Portland between 10 and 14 stories high, Frank Warren, PGE president said Saturday.

Pageant Finalist

Beverly Kay

Beverly Kay, one of the 11 finalists for the Miss Rogue Valley Pageant, will present a talk on philosophy for her segment of the talent competition. Beverly is 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs 125 pounds. She has had three years of dramatic training and is now studying humanities at Southern Oregon college. The Miss Rogue Valley pageant will be staged in the Oregon Shakespearean Festival theater, Ashland.

The FBI investigation centered immediately on the travel patterns of the 37 passengers who boarded the "Golden Jet" at Chicago's O'Hare field on a flight to Los Angeles.

Within Aircraft

Continental spokesmen at airlines headquarters in Denver said investigation by their experts indicated "a man-made explosive had been set off within the aircraft."

A highly-placed source at Centerville, where the federal investigation was headquartered, told United Press International "as practical people we can only assume it was a bomb."

W. Mark Felt, agent in charge of the Kansas City, Mo., FBI bureau said "a substantial number of agents" had gathered in this southern Iowa community to help pin down the cause of the crash and to identify the perpetrators of any sabotage.

It appeared the FBI investigation might stretch from one end of the nation to the other before the case finally is closed.

Both the CAB and the FBI said they would have no further word last night on what touched off the explosion which ripped the "Golden Jet."

Following the Continental and CAB announcements, interest and investigation centered immediately on the passenger list of the doomed airliner, and on the insurance policies which the passengers had taken out before the flight began.

A Chicago newspaper, Chicago American, said it had learned that a murder or suicide plot involving a man and a woman might have been responsible for the disaster.

Attempts to revive the child failed. An autopsy later showed he suffered crushed ribs, a brain concussion, and a fractured skull.

Herrera's son, six-year-old Bobby, told state police his father became angry at the child's whining and jumped on him.

Mrs. Long said she was not in the room at the time. Herrera left the scene before police arrived. He was picked up about an hour later and charged first with drunken driving, District Attorney Dale Crabtree added the murder charge after the autopsy.

Historic Beekman House To Be Opened to Public
The home of C. C. Beekman, Jacksonville's pioneer banker, will be officially opened to the public at 10 a.m. Wednesday, May 30, according to the Siskiyou Pioneer Sites Foundation, the sponsoring county agency.

Brief dedication ceremonies will be held on the grounds of the historic yellow wood frame home on California st. A local minister will be asked to give the invocation, and a member of the Jacksonville county court will give a brief address.

The public in groups of six will be guided through the home by hostesses dressed in pioneer costume. Since the costs of daily maintenance and supervision will be covered by receipts received from visitors, a small entrance fee will be charged, an official of the Sites Foundation explained.

Served Under Roof
Refreshments will be served under the trees in back of the house by members of the Sites Foundation. In case of rain, the refreshments will be served under the woodshed roof. Local law enforcement officials will direct the traffic.

County crews have made the necessary preliminary repairs to the house. The Sites Foundation members are maintaining the grounds and house. The furniture and con-

Originally, the university had removed most of the contents of the home and planned to put it up for public auction to finance a professorship of northwest history at the university. The house and property had been deeded to the Miss Carrie Beekman, daughter of the pioneer banker. Through intervention of the county court upon request of the Sites Foundation, the sale was postponed.

The Beekman home, like the bank has been rehabilitated and preserved as close to its original appearance as possible.
