

New York — Designer Oleg Cassini, (right) handles the microphone to describe one of his new creations modeled before a critical audience in New York. Mr. Cassini said the costume was inspired by Mrs. John F. Kennedy's future trip to Mexico. The Mexican inspiration is reflected in the wool sheath dress, embroidered bolero-type jacket and the broad-brimmed black sombrero. Mr. Cassini has created many of the First Lady's fashions. (UPI)

New Fabrics, Mexican Designs Featured in Cassini Showing

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

New York — (UPI) — Fashion's big change for fall and winter 1962 lies with developments in fabric more than in change of silhouette.

As shapes go, women's apparel remains basically the same natural one that the nation's No. 1 garment center provided in spring collections. Waistline natural, shoulders unpadded, skirts with enough ease for walking and sitting, and skirt lengths continuing to end at the middle of the knee cap.

These are the trends midway in the previews of new collections—previews to continue solidly through mid-June. The clothes will begin to show in the stores by late July. Watch for the superlatives to roll when the subject of fabric surface and fabric luxury comes up.

CHATTER FROM MANN'S

"Young men and young women, you are now at the crossroads of your life, a whole new world is opening up before you... success is just around the corner"... wonder which one?

Speeches something like this are being made all over the country now because it is graduation time. The students are sitting there, slightly warm under the caps and gowns, the air is heavy with the fragrance of flowers, the hall is decorated to the hilt, parents are sadly beaming and there is a general feeling of anticipation and regret. Something which just cannot be defined. Whether you are graduating from Kindergarten or College, there is a transition to make, and while you are thinking of the great opportunity that lies before you, you can't help remembering the happiness that is past. It is a happy, sad, trying time for all concerned.

Be that as it may, every Mother and Mother's daughter will want to look her best for the occasion. And at Mann's we have just the dress you are looking for. For the junior figure, we have embroidered eyelet, snow white with slim skirts, three-quarter sleeves and scoop neckline. The rayon chiffons in pastel shades are a delight to see. Sizes from 5 to 15 and priced at 10.98.

For Mothers, we carry regular and half sizes. The L'Alpion cotton and dacron polyester voile comes in dark as well as pastel shades and is priced from 17.98.

There are so many we just could not begin to describe them all! Why not come in and see for yourself? Remember the place, it is Mann's in the center of Medford.

"The news is in the new fabric—all surface interest, bubbly, textured," said manufacturer Edward Abbott at the opening of his collection. Tweeds are so nubby they're called cobbles. Lacy wools are so airy they're billed as chiffon souffles. Mo-

Organizational Meeting Thursday for Ashland LWV

Ashland—Two study groups met Tuesday in Ashland in discussion of the subject "You and Your National Government." Both meetings were attended by women interested in organizing a local unit of the League of Women Voters.

At 9:30 a.m. Mrs. Arthur Kreisman was hostess to 17 women at her home, 455 Liberty street, and the same evening a group of 22 women met with Mrs. Robert O'Hara, 1235 South Tolman road.

Mrs. Eugene Antley, Mrs. Edward Fitzpatrick and Mrs. Donald Moore led the morning session, while Mrs. Ben Willard, Mrs. Arthur Everett, Mrs. Wallace Seaton and Mrs. Moore made up the evening panel. Informal open discussion included plans for an organizational meeting set for May 31 at 8 p.m. in the Gresham lecture room of the public library.

Mrs. Roy Neal, who is serving as temporary chairman in Ashland, announced that there will be a report on the city of Ashland and its government given by Mrs. John Wenker and Miss Florence Lusted.

There also will be election of officers and adoption of by-laws at the May 31 meeting. Thirty-five members are required for a new unit of the League of Women Voters.

On a statewide basis the Oregon League is currently a pace-setter in efforts to secure a sound revision of the state constitution, determine the state's role in the solution of fringe area problems and promote comprehensive long-range planning for conservation and development of water resources in the Columbia River basin. Study areas cover national, state and local government.
