UO Readies For NCAA Track Test

University of Oregon — Officials of Oregon athletic officials are hitting the home stretch in preparations for the NCAA track and field championships June 15-16 at Hayward Field.

Ticket sales have been exceptionally good and entries are pouring in at a rate which insures a large and talented field. Over 100 schools have entered close to 600 athletes for the national collegiate meet.

The host Webfoots, along with defending champion Southern California and Eastern powerhouse Villanova, rate as the teams to watch in the battle for national track and field supremacy.

Coach Bill Bowman's Ducks will rely heavily on defending individual champions Jerry Tarr and Doyol Burelson and Harry Jerome, runner-up in the 100-yard dash a year ago.

Tarr, holder of the American collegiate record of 13.3, rates as an overwhelming favorite in the high hurdles, while Burelson, with a best of 3.57 in this spring, should capture his third consecutive NCAA mile title.

Jerome is the key in the dashes for the Ducks. He'll be matched against Villanova's Frank Budd, who captured both the 100 and 220 last year at Philadelphia.

A breakthrough by Jerome would give Oregon a big push in its bid for a first national track championship.

USC, which lost to Oregon in dual meet competition this spring, will look to defending shot put champion Dallas Long and star quartermiller Rex Cawley to spark its title defense.

Other defending champions expected to be on hand are New Mexico's Adolph Plummer in the 440, Pat Clobessy of Houston in the three-mile, Dixon Farmer of Occidental in the 440-yard hurdles, John Thomas of Boston U. in the high jump, and Glenn Passey of Utah State in the discuss.
