

Please excuse our gardener's pride, but we couldn't resist. We coaxed photographer Bob Vroman into taking a picture of the yucca baccata which is blooming in our patio for the first time since it was planted 10 years ago.

As we wrote before, Pappy brought the yucca from Arizona and planted it next to the pump house which encloses one side of the patio. Pappy has a fondness for desert plants, and also brought along a prickly pear cactus, which can be seen in the picture, and two or three others.

But now it has dozens and dozens of big, waxy white flowers—last Wednesday Pappy counted 35 still tightly folded buds and there are many more than that in bloom.

Long years in the news room have taught Potpourri that often when a gardener believes he is growing something extra rare and unusual, it turns out that any number of other enthusiasts are doing the same thing.

FDA Has New Report On Strontium-90 In Foods

Washington, D. C. — Strontium-90 in the diet of infants and children eating nothing but the commercial baby foods and junior foods available last year would not have exceeded 4 per cent of the average daily intake considered by the Federal Radiation Council to be acceptable for lifetime consumption under normal peacetime conditions.

Soviet nuclear weapons testing last fall, or from the current U. S. test series. The preliminary report covered 70 samples representing major manufacturers and collected at retail outlets. Samples included vegetables, fruits, meat and meat products, and cereals.

Family Attends School Ceremony

Eagle Point—Mrs. Gertrude Stanley and Mrs. Nora Strauss of Eagle Point and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stanley and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Stanley, Brownsboro, attended the graduation exercises of the high school in Chiloquin, Ore., Tuesday.

William Force Visits Parents

Gold Hill—William R. Force, West Vancouver, B.C. was a recent weekend end visitor at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Force and family.

In Ashland

Ashland—Guests over the Memorial Day holiday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Madison, 1190 Bellview avenue, were their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Burr of San Mateo, Calif.

California Pair Visits Eagle Point—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Clarcia, Inglewood, Calif., were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Bruner, Eagle Point. The Clarcias stopped off to visit with them and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barton en route to the World Fair in Seattle.

Social Events ♦ Women's News

Bell Choir Program Is Different

An entirely new musical entertainment will be presented with "Let Inspiration Ring," which will bring David A. Wehr and the Cathedral Bell Choir of the Boise Methodist Cathedral of the Rockies to the Medford Methodist church, 607 West Main street, on Saturday evening, June 2, 1962.

The bell choir, soloists, and their 105 English Handbells forged in Holland will appear in this impressive new production.

A feature of the program will be an analysis of the art of bell ringing and human interest sidelights of such groups.

The Cathedral Bell choir has appeared on NBC and CBS television and was featured May 30 at the Seattle World's Fair.

Imaginative "Bellstrations" are joined with an extensive wardrobe in thrilling colors to make a panorama of music, motion and color in the program.

The program is open to the public.

UN Officers Announced

The board of directors of the Jackson County chapter, Oregon United Nations association, chose officers at a meeting last night in the Public Library of Medford and Jackson County.

They are Omar Bacon, first vice-president; Mrs. Henry Padgham, second vice-president; Mrs. Wallace Robinson, secretary; Irving Thomas, treasurer. Mrs. C. Rease Bralley was named membership chairman, with Miss Clara Hinz as her assistant.

Roy Neal, Ashland, was elected chapter president earlier this year.

The group voted to wire Congressman Edwin R. Durno urging his support of the bill which would empower the United States government to purchase United Nations bonds, and to ask his advice on what means can be taken by citizens to ensure passage of the measure.

The board is also making plans to enlarge its scope with representatives from various service and civic organizations in the county.

Luncheon Honors Handby School Speech Squad

Gold Hill—Members of the Hanby Elementary school speech squad were honored at an impromptu smorgasbord luncheon last week. Mrs. Beth Ness, home economics teacher and pupils in the homemaking department, took charge of table arrangements and prepared the luncheon.

Speech students who were present to receive their recognition included Dave White, Bob Boye, Patty Washburn, Joe Thomas, and Carol Washburn from the humorous section. In the poetry section were Christine Olson, Linda Parker, Randy Turner, Mike Barber and Sandy Ganong.

Serious readers present for the affair were Marlene Wright, Barbara White, Gwen Benry, and Joan Hilkey, Randy Turner, Linda Parker, Tom Kellogg and Rhonda Rosecrans were the orators who attended.

The debate team was represented by Mike Turner, Linda Hilkey, Suzanne Kinney, Carolyn Lamb, Susan Rosecrans, and Eileen Kell.

Speech coaches present were Mrs. Ida von Buskirk, serious section; Allen Hill, humorous; Mrs. Mildred Black, poetry; Gilbert A. Mack, oratory; and Walter Doherty and Leon Myers, debate coaches. Other Hanby teachers attending were Deane Roberts, Mrs. Ness, and Marvin Throne.

Contest Is Won By Talent Man

Fresno, Calif. — W. Bagley, Route 1, Talent, Ore., is a sixth prize winner in the recently concluded national raisin bread toast-to-travel sweepstakes contest, the California Raisin Advisory board announced here. The prize is an electric toaster.

The contest open to consumers of raisin bread and supported in each community by local bakers, offered a top prize of 10-day vacation trips abroad for four persons for the next five years.

For an informal wedding the invitation can range from a phone call or personal note to an engraved invitation of conventional form.

'Aging' Bride Encounters Difficulties in Shopping

By JOYCE SCHULLER United Press International Chicago — (UPI) — The aging bride (over 21, that is) has her problems and the biggest is finding a wedding dress that doesn't look like it's designed for the junior prom.

The short wedding dress, favored by so many brides "getting on in years," appears to be in particularly short supply.

And, in my case, at least, hard-pressed salesladies tried to pass off some unlikely substitutes — like the dowager-type beige lace with surplice neckline they brought out on my first foray into the bridal shops.

It came in half sizes, "but maybe they could make it up for you in size 9," the saleslady ventured—straight-faced.

She evidently didn't grasp the situation, and I explained that I was the bride, not the mother of the bride.

The selection wasn't much better at the next shop where they brought in an armload of fluff, apparently to prove it was too youthful for me. Maybe, I thought, I should consider applying for social security instead of a marriage license.

But, undeterred by the slings and arrows of outrageous salesladies, I continued the quest. It wasn't easy on the salesladies, either.

Admittedly, I'm a tough customer. I can't seem to close my eyes when I try on a sample dress, size 18, in vivid turquoise, and imagine how it would look in ivory, size 9.

I also don't see why I should wear a tweed suit, even if that's what one saleslady said she would choose if she were getting married again.

It's true, I do have a taste for something more sophisticated than the scoop-necked, lace-hung, button and bow-backed gowns favored abundantly by many younger brides.

But I was unprepared for what I saw in a swank suburban shop — gold-threaded, sequin-encrusted sheaths, slit at the sides to mid-thigh; slinky jerseys; strapless and backless draped numbers.

Evidently I don't know "high style" when I see it. "These dresses are the most elegant on the North Shore," the saleslady snapped.

Somewhere along the line, I got around to emphasizing I wanted something in white, ivory or a pastel. But that didn't stop one saleslady from showing me a flashy blue and yellow number that looked like the Swedish flag.

That also wasn't quite what I had in mind, which moved the saleslady to say, "Well, what if I... you're only going to wear it once!"

Another saleslady assured me she knew just what I wanted, "but they don't make that kind of thing this time of year."

"Now, if you'd gotten married last January, or if you wanted to wait till next winter..." she suggested.

P.S. I gave the idea some thought, but decided not to wait. I'd be one year older next year and it would be that much harder to find the dress, not to mention the husband.

Another saleslady assured me she knew just what I wanted, "but they don't make that kind of thing this time of year."

"Now, if you'd gotten married last January, or if you wanted to wait till next winter..." she suggested.

P.S. I gave the idea some thought, but decided not to wait. I'd be one year older next year and it would be that much harder to find the dress, not to mention the husband.

Another saleslady assured me she knew just what I wanted, "but they don't make that kind of thing this time of year."

"Now, if you'd gotten married last January, or if you wanted to wait till next winter..." she suggested.

P.S. I gave the idea some thought, but decided not to wait. I'd be one year older next year and it would be that much harder to find the dress, not to mention the husband.

Another saleslady assured me she knew just what I wanted, "but they don't make that kind of thing this time of year."

"Now, if you'd gotten married last January, or if you wanted to wait till next winter..." she suggested.

P.S. I gave the idea some thought, but decided not to wait. I'd be one year older next year and it would be that much harder to find the dress, not to mention the husband.

Chapter Has Installation; Plan Party

Installation of officers for the coming year and final meeting for the current year of Alpha Beta chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, was held recently at the home of Mrs. James Butler, 1004 East Main street.

Officers installed in a candlelight ceremony were Mrs. George Polski, president; Mrs. Richard Card, first vice president; Mrs. Ray O. Jones, second vice president; Mrs. D. R. Waltermire, recording secretary; Mrs. Richard Wager, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harris Ross, treasurer; Mrs. H. H. Patterson and Mrs. Jones, Beta Sigma Phi City Council representatives.

Mrs. O. A. Eden accepted the responsibility of chapter sponsor and was given a yellow rose by the retiring president, Mrs. Harold Ames. A gift was presented to Mrs. Ames by the chapter for her services.

Committee chairmen were announced for the coming year. Those serving are Mrs. Card and Mrs. Jones, membership and pledge; Mrs. Ray Barnett, Mrs. John Watkins and Mrs. Gerald Nelson, social; Mrs. Michael Alecko, program; Mrs. Dalton Gressett and Mrs. Patterson, welfare and service; Mrs. Richard Wager and Mrs. Charles T. Tucker, ways and means; Mrs. Eugene Garner, sunshine committee; Mrs. D. R. Waltermire, telephone committee; Mrs. James Butler, cancer bandages; and Mrs. Charles T. Tucker, publicity and scrapbook.

The hostess and her assistants, Mrs. Willard Chinn and Mrs. Tucker, served refreshments.

The new pledges of the sorority invited members to a patio party to be given at the home of Mrs. Ray Barnett June 5. A report will be given then on the state convention held in Eugene May 25, 26 and 27. Members of the chapter attending the convention were Mrs. Ames, Mrs. Wager and Mrs. Tucker.

Medford was selected as hostess city for the 1964 convention and chapters from Ashland, Grants Pass and Medford will sponsor the event.

Medford Duplicate Bridge club members will hold their monthly master point game on Tuesday, June 5 and on Saturday, June 9 Medford unit, American Contract Bridge league, will hold its June master point play.

At the May 29 regular session, Mrs. Sam Richardson and Paul A. Hatton won first place in the north-south position by scoring 140½ points; Mrs. Richard Milestone and Mrs. Berg Marten won second with 138 points; Ray S. Wise and Leland Clark, third, with 133½ points, and Mrs. Dolph Phipps and Mrs. Clark, fourth, with 132½ points.

Scoring in the east-west position were Mr. and Mrs. Dale Fornbrook, first, with 143½ points; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Smith, second, 120½ points; Mrs. R. T. Jones and Mrs. H. E. Anderson, third, 119 points, and Al Gilhouse and Roy Pruitt, fourth, 116 points.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Mrs. Anderson was a visiting player.

Veni-Vidi

By MARGARET SCHULLER

Romans will eat and drink as usual today at their favorite cafe restaurants. The strike which was to have taken place was called off at midnight last night, the tax protest on the use of umbrellas and awnings in front of cafes.

Not only had every bar and restaurant owner planned to participate, but merchants of other shops also were to strike in sympathy. The government averted the mass strike by promising not to tax, at least this year, the use of awnings and umbrellas.

Three hundred and forty thousand school teachers began a four-hour strike today, for more pay. All of the intermediate and secondary schools were closed. Other strikes are imminent. Next Monday there is to be a one-day railway strike and a strike of farm laborers. All of them are striking for more pay. The Communist and Socialist parties are promoting the strikes.

The new president would seem to have his problem laid out for him.

Whenever I see a crowd in Rome I stop, and I am usually rewarded. So this morning as I came down from my house through the Borghese gardens and saw a host of people gapping at something in the garden cafe, I gaped also. There sat Danny Thomas and his pretty television wife, drinking coffee and being directed for something, television or cinema. It seemed hectic with all the crowds about, the talking and noise. It would be interesting to know how they ever achieve the smooth, finished product. That wonderful scene, "The Light on the Piazza," was shot on the Via Veneto at a crowded time of day.

Frank Sinatra is here also this week. But you can't get seats to hear him (at $16 per). He is giving a benefit performance for the Italian Red Cross one evening. There will undoubtedly be the usual mob outside to see the great man enter and leave.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

Elizabeth Taylor is out of print. Just before I came to Rome, which was the last part of April, the papers had declared a "No Taylor in the News" day and it must have continued as one seldom sees her name anywhere. Her manager declares the film, "Cleopatra," will be the greatest picture ever filmed. It costs more money, they say, sixty million dollars, so it should be, perhaps.

O'Brien Travelers Return After Six Weeks Abroad

O'Brien-Mr. and Mrs. Les Archer have returned to their home in the Sikiyou Village from a six weeks trip abroad. The Archers flew by the Polar route from Los Angeles to Copenhagen and Stockholm where they visited some of Mrs. Dave Wilson's cousins and were treated to a Swedish smorgasbord.

Their main tour started in Cairo, Egypt, where they visited the Sphinx and traveled to the pyramids on camel back into the Valley of Kings and King Tut's tomb. Cairo boasts of beautiful modern buildings and a middle class people who are well educated, the Archers report.

Wide spacious avenues were occupied by almost every mode of travel conveyance; limousines, camels, carts drawn by donkeys and horse drawn wagons mingled together in spectacular array, they state.

Native dressed in long gowns with turbans and some with veils could be seen. The majority of Egyptians favor European fashions. Especially noticed by the travelers was the fondness of the natives for their leader, Nasser and their dislike of his predecessor, former King Farouk, whom they termed "a selfish man."

Whenever I see a crowd in Rome I stop, and I am usually rewarded. So this morning as I came down from my house through the Borghese gardens and saw a host of people gapping at something in the garden cafe, I gaped also. There sat Danny Thomas and his pretty television wife, drinking coffee and being directed for something, television or cinema. It seemed hectic with all the crowds about, the talking and noise. It would be interesting to know how they ever achieve the smooth, finished product. That wonderful scene, "The Light on the Piazza," was shot on the Via Veneto at a crowded time of day.

Whenever I see a crowd in Rome I stop, and I am usually rewarded. So this morning as I came down from my house through the Borghese gardens and saw a host of people gapping at something in the garden cafe, I gaped also. There sat Danny Thomas and his pretty television wife, drinking coffee and being directed for something, television or cinema. It seemed hectic with all the crowds about, the talking and noise. It would be interesting to know how they ever achieve the smooth, finished product. That wonderful scene, "The Light on the Piazza," was shot on the Via Veneto at a crowded time of day.

Whenever I see a crowd in Rome I stop, and I am usually rewarded. So this morning as I came down from my house through the Borghese gardens and saw a host of people gapping at something in the garden cafe, I gaped also. There sat Danny Thomas and his pretty television wife, drinking coffee and being directed for something, television or cinema. It seemed hectic with all the crowds about, the talking and noise. It would be interesting to know how they ever achieve the smooth, finished product. That wonderful scene, "The Light on the Piazza," was shot on the Via Veneto at a crowded time of day.

Whenever I see a crowd in Rome I stop, and I am usually rewarded. So this morning as I came down from my house through the Borghese gardens and saw a host of people gapping at something in the garden cafe, I gaped also. There sat Danny Thomas and his pretty television wife, drinking coffee and being directed for something, television or cinema. It seemed hectic with all the crowds about, the talking and noise. It would be interesting to know how they ever achieve the smooth, finished product. That wonderful scene, "The Light on the Piazza," was shot on the Via Veneto at a crowded time of day.

Whenever I see a crowd in Rome I stop, and I am usually rewarded. So this morning as I came down from my house through the Borghese gardens and saw a host of people gapping at something in the garden cafe, I gaped also. There sat Danny Thomas and his pretty television wife, drinking coffee and being directed for something, television or cinema. It seemed hectic with all the crowds about, the talking and noise. It would be interesting to know how they ever achieve the smooth, finished product. That wonderful scene, "The Light on the Piazza," was shot on the Via Veneto at a crowded time of day.

Whenever I see a crowd in Rome I stop, and I am usually rewarded. So this morning as I came down from my house through the Borghese gardens and saw a host of people gapping at something in the garden cafe, I gaped also. There sat Danny Thomas and his pretty television wife, drinking coffee and being directed for something, television or cinema. It seemed hectic with all the crowds about, the talking and noise. It would be interesting to know how they ever achieve the smooth, finished product. That wonderful scene, "The Light on the Piazza," was shot on the Via Veneto at a crowded time of day.

Whenever I see a crowd in Rome I stop, and I am usually rewarded. So this morning as I came down from my house through the Borghese gardens and saw a host of people gapping at something in the garden cafe, I gaped also. There sat Danny Thomas and his pretty television wife, drinking coffee and being directed for something, television or cinema. It seemed hectic with all the crowds about, the talking and noise. It would be interesting to know how they ever achieve the smooth, finished product. That wonderful scene, "The Light on the Piazza," was shot on the Via Veneto at a crowded time of day.

Whenever I see a crowd in Rome I stop, and I am usually rewarded. So this morning as I came down from my house through the Borghese gardens and saw a host of people gapping at something in the garden cafe, I gaped also. There sat Danny Thomas and his pretty television wife, drinking coffee and being directed for something, television or cinema. It seemed hectic with all the crowds about, the talking and noise. It would be interesting to know how they ever achieve the smooth, finished product. That wonderful scene, "The Light on the Piazza," was shot on the Via Veneto at a crowded time of day.

Whenever I see a crowd in Rome I stop, and I am usually rewarded. So this morning as I came down from my house through the Borghese gardens and saw a host of people gapping at something in the garden cafe, I gaped also. There sat Danny Thomas and his pretty television wife, drinking coffee and being directed for something, television or cinema. It seemed hectic with all the crowds about, the talking and noise. It would be interesting to know how they ever achieve the smooth, finished product. That wonderful scene, "The Light on the Piazza," was shot on the Via Veneto at a crowded time of day.

Whenever I see a crowd in Rome I stop, and I am usually rewarded. So this morning as I came down from my house through the Borghese gardens and saw a host of people gapping at something in the garden cafe, I gaped also. There sat Danny Thomas and his pretty television wife, drinking coffee and being directed for something, television or cinema. It seemed hectic with all the crowds about, the talking and noise. It would be interesting to know how they ever achieve the smooth, finished product. That wonderful scene, "The Light on the Piazza," was shot on the Via Veneto at a crowded time of day.

Whenever I see a crowd in Rome I stop, and I am usually rewarded. So this morning as I came down from my house through the Borghese gardens and saw a host of people gapping at something in the garden cafe, I gaped also. There sat Danny Thomas and his pretty television wife, drinking coffee and being directed for something, television or cinema. It seemed hectic with all the crowds about, the talking and noise. It would be interesting to know how they ever achieve the smooth, finished product. That wonderful scene, "The Light on the Piazza," was shot on the Via Veneto at a crowded time of day.

Whenever I see a crowd in Rome I stop, and I am usually rewarded. So this morning as I came down from my house through the Borghese gardens and saw a host of people gapping at something in the garden cafe, I gaped also. There sat Danny Thomas and his pretty television wife, drinking coffee and being directed for something, television or cinema. It seemed hectic with all the crowds about, the talking and noise. It would be interesting to know how they ever achieve the smooth, finished product. That wonderful scene, "The Light on the Piazza," was shot on the Via Veneto at a crowded time of day.

Whenever I see a