X15 Hits Highest Angle of Attack

Edwards AFB, Calif. — (UPI)—Air Force Maj. Bob White, the world's fastest flying pilot of winged aircraft, last week flew the X15 rocket ship to its highest angle of attack.

During his successful flight White reported over his intercom, "I hit 20 degrees angle of attack."

The angle of attack, the attitude of the X15 in relation to wind direction, relates to studies of reentry into the earth's atmosphere from space flights. Today's flight, however, was within the earth's atmosphere, at about 162,000 feet.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials said actual confirmation of the degree of attack was pending a study of test figures.
