Fourth Graders at Lone Pine Study Life of Bees in Beehive

Lone Pine—Leo Taylor, an interested parent who believes in furthering education by actual displays, put himself out in order to further the study of insect life at Lone Pine school recently.

Taylor set up a beehive in Mrs. Barbara Reedy's fourth grade room, with the aid of Mrs. Kenneth Blair, who has a daughter, Barbara, in Mrs. Reedy's room.

Taylor's son, Melvin, a student at Hedrick Junior High school, constructed the case, and Taylor helped set up the project as part of a Scouting program for his sons.

Mr. Reedy's room studied bees and their habits. She feels this display added greatly to the study. The case was mounted near the window. The bees came and went through the tube. The case is class enclosed, so pupils could watch them as they worked. Taylor gave the students a description of the hive and the bees' activities. He showed them the routine of the workers and how the queen bee is cared for by a group of bees. Her life span is from three to five years. The only bees that survive the winter months are the workers and the queen. When she is too old to lay eggs, she is smothered by the workers.

New Queen Chosen

The new queen bee is chosen by the workers, and the special egg they pick out. Students also learned that 12 bee stings are equivalent to one rattlesnake bite, and the venom is the same. On hot summer days the hive is ventilated by the bees fanning their wings. Mrs. Reedy said the pupils showed considerable interest in the project and did some research on their own.

Prizes for Agness Boat Race Listed

Agness—A total of $1,000 in cash prizes will go to the first four boats to finish in the Agness White Water Boat race, according to Bernard Jackson, general chairman of the event.

Twenty-two boats have signed to start the race June 10 as part of the sixth annual barbecue and boat race put on by the Agness Community council.

The annual celebration will be held this year in conjunction

County Court Will Discuss Location Of Health Center

The Jackson county court this week will further discuss the possible location of a public health building at the fair grounds south of Medford, County Commissioner Chester Wendt said Friday.

Medford Architect Robert J. Kenney hopes to present a layout of the fairgrounds to help the county court to better coordinate future building there, Wendt said.

Wendt said it might be possible to construct an L-shaped public health building to allow for an arboretum sponsored by the garden clubs between the two buildings, providing a courtyard affect.

Garden Clubs Protest

Last month representatives of 26 garden clubs in the Siskiyou district protested to the county court over the possibility of placing the health building in the plot where the arboretum is planned.

The county court has made no decision pending a more thorough examination of the area south of the county extension building. County court members visited the area last week to study the problem.

County court members have suggested location other than the one adjacent to the extension service building might be possible.

The arboretum would display trees and shrubs which could be planted around homes in this area. The Sears and Roebuck Foundation has given $100 for the project. Sunset Magazine representatives have studied the proposed arboretum as a unique project.
