

Sixteenth Annual Show Planned in Central Point

Central Point — Flower growers and lovers of artistic arrangements are making plans for "Petal Progress", the 16th annual flower show of the Central Point Garden club on June 13th and 14th. Entries must be at Jewett Elementary school in Central Point by 9:30 a.m. of Wednesday, June 13th.

As the theme, "Petal Progress" indicates this show will feature the progress made by both horticulturists in introduction of new plants, and by flower arrangers in the art of floral design. The floral designs change from the mass arrangements of European influence and from the lines of Oriental arranging to the contemporary and modern, combining features of both.

Of special interest to other garden clubs will be awarding of a silver trophy for the best design exhibited in Division V. The trophy was presented to the Central Point Garden club by the rest homes of Central Point—Lyn Haven, McCue's Home and the Watson Home, in appreciation of arrangements placed in the homes each week by the club members.

Questions regarding the show may be answered by calling the general chairman, Mrs. Steve Benston, 664-3121; entries, Mrs. Clem Ault, 664-1344 or president and awards, Mrs. L. C. Gorden, 664-2219.

Other committees for the show are co-chairman, Mrs. Ivan Skyrman; schedule, Mrs. Gaston Floury; staging, Mrs. R. D. Kay; properties, Mrs. Robert Schmidt; classification, Mrs. Bert Elliott, Mrs. Curtis Hopkins and Mrs. Wallace West; placement, Mrs. C. W. Higginbotham and Mrs. Everett Young; publicity and juniors, Mrs. C. W. Anhorn; judges, Mrs. Arnold Bohnert; hospitality, Mrs. A. O. Floyd and tea, Mrs. Charles Ghelardi and Mrs. Eugene Ferrell.

Travel Dream Coming True

A life-long dream is about to come true for Mrs. Carl Fehige, Mrs. Fehige, who lives at 1810 Orchard Home court, will leave Sunday, June 10, by air to spend several weeks in Norway, the home country of her parents.

Mrs. Fehige will fly from Medford to Los Angeles Sunday evening and there will enplane Monday morning on a Scandinavian jet plane for Norway. She will be met at Oslo by a cousin, Miss Louise Stensvik, who will accompany the traveler on visits to the homes of various relatives. Her enjoyment of these visits will be heightened by the fact that she speaks Norwegian fluently.

The Medford woman's parents were Albert and Mrs. Milda Dahl. They emigrated to the United States as young people and made their home in Montana. During her years at home, Mrs. Fehige says she began to dream and plan how some day she would visit her parents' homeland. Her mother was born and reared in Boi-Vestrolin, and her father was a native of Harstad. Mrs. Fehige is filled with excitement as she realizes that the visit is about to become a reality, and she will see these places.

Mrs. Fehige plans to return home by ship, and will take the train from New York across country in order to see more of the States. The traveler is very busy this week because in addition to preparing her home for her absence and packing, her daughter, Connie, is graduating from Medford High school Thursday night.

Men's Clothing Changes Predicted by Association

Atlantic City, N.J. — (UPI) — Tuck in the waist line, men, there's a one-button jacket in the immediate future.

The International Association of Clothing Designers, closing its 105th semi-annual meeting today, broke the word for three-button and two-button males.

The "American Envoy Model" is on the way, according to Jerome Hoffman of Baltimore, association vice president, and it's termed the forerunner of a new trend in men's clothing style.

The American Envoy calls for a one-button square-shouldered jacket, fitted to curve in at the waist and out at the hips. The trousers will be plain front with one quarter top pocket and plain bottoms instead of cuffs recommended.

Designers from the United States, Colombia, Chile, England, Canada and Australia were told that the American Envoy will be known by its French simplicity of line and style effect, as evident by the neat, double-piped pockets and the plain, unvented back.

It is recognized immediately by the one-button closure, the 200 members on hand were told.

The new model will be somewhat shorter than the traditional Ambassador and American natural model, although it will cover the hips well because of its proportioned lines to keep the effect of added height.

Members were told the use of three buttons continues to be overwhelming, but there now is a trend to two buttons. Three buttons still hold the

Americans Eating Less Extension Survey Shows

Americans today are eating less, changing their food habits, and spending a smaller amount of their total income on food than 20 years ago, reports Mrs. Elvera Horrell, Oregon State university extension agricultural economist.

The "typical" American is now eating about 85 pounds less food than he did 20 years ago. In 1940, each person ate 1,551 pounds of food, compared with 1,465 pounds in 1960.

The shift in eating habits has been the most striking change over the past two decades, Mrs. Horrell points out.

In the case of meat and potatoes, per capita consumption has gone different ways. In 1940, the nation ate 144 pounds of meat per person, including fish and poultry. By 1960, this had increased to 179 pounds per person. At the same time, potato consumption declined from the 1940 level of 136 pounds per person to only 108 pounds in 1960.

Each American also eats about 50 pounds less flour and cereal products now than before, but consumption is about the same for coffee, tea, cocoa, sugar and syrup, Mrs. Horrell states. Consumption of processed fruits and vegetables has increased, with fewer being eaten in fresh form. Each person, on the average, uses 10 per cent more milk and 5 per cent more eggs now.

Incomes in the past 20 years has grown faster than food bills. Total food expenditures per person climbed from $126 in 1940 to $392 in 1961, with per capita disposable income increasing from $376 to $1,987 in the same time. This means that Americans spent less than 20 per cent of their disposable income for food in 1961, compared with 22 per cent in 1940, Mrs. Horrell said.

Food supplies will continue large this year, but there may be some give and take as to type, she continued. About the same or larger amounts of red meat are expected, but fewer broilers and turkeys. Egg supplies should be about the same, but there may be more milk.

The shopper may find fewer fresh vegetables and potatoes on the market, but more fats and oils. Supplies of cereals and most other foods will continue to be plentiful.

Couple Gives Tips About Seattle Fair

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur A. Arnold, 1011 Reddy avenue, have returned home after a vacation trip north during which they visited the Century 21 exposition at Seattle. They were guests of relatives and friends in Portland, Vancouver, Tacoma and Seattle.

In Seattle the Arnolds heard a concert by the Philadelphia orchestra, directed by Eugene Ormandy, in the new Seattle Opera house newly opened for the World Fair. Musicians, patrons and critics have all praised the new building for its beauty and fine engineering, they report.

Persons holding tickets for programs in the Opera house are not required to pay the grounds entrance fee, they learned.

The Medford couple returned with considerable information which they believe will be interesting to others planning to attend the fair. It is not known generally that one of the elevators in the Space Needle is for the use of those who wish to see the view from the Needle, but do not wish to use the dining room. Lines for this accommodation are much shorter than those waiting to use the dining room, they report. The Arnolds waited but about 15 minutes.

Also, the Arnolds were interested to learn that if Fair visitors wish to leave the grounds and return the same day, they may do so without paying the second admission. Attendants "stamp" the wrist of each person with the date, and this suffices for the second entry that day.

It is also suggested that those not able to spend time to visit all three sections of the Science building, enter for the second or third sections. Long lines are to be found constantly at the main entrance, but many persons leave after viewing the first section and the size of the crowd is much smaller for the second and third sections, they learned.

The Arnolds found the Fine Arts displays one of the most interesting of all the Fair offers, and also enjoyed water skiing demonstrations. They report that considering what the exposition offers, prices are not too high.
