Fund Drive Due for Salk Institute of Biological Research

By DELOS SMITH, UPI Science Editor. New York—Dr. Jonas E. Salk got overruled. He wanted this new center of science to be called...

Dr. Jonas E. Salk, director of the Salk Institute for Biological Studies.

The Salk Institute for Biological Studies is a center of science to be called "The Salk Institute for Biological Studies." It doesn't exist now except as a set of architectural plans, a building site in San Diego, a board of trustees, a director (Dr. Salk), six resident fellows. Yet it is dedicated last week and the plan is to "move in" a year hence.

That's the kind of confidence Basil O'Connor has in himself, and his associates have in him. Everything depends upon the public contributing $15 million during the next few weeks to a building fund. No one could believe the confidence is misplaced. He is America's champion fund-raiser.

Through the "March of Dimes" he raised the millions which led to the development of Salk's "killed virus" anti-polio vaccine and to the "live virus" vaccine which is promising to replace it in the next few years. With his National Foundation, he is raising the building fund.

Overruling Dr. Salk were O'Connor; Dr. Warren Weaver, who is chairman of the trustees; Gerard Piel, president of the board; and the business men, lawyers and scientists who are its members. Their view is that Salk has the breadth, depth, flexibility yet discipline of mind to lead a different kind of scientific assault on the basic secrets of life which biology longs to expose. There must be no question that he is the leader, they held. Salk is self-conscious about a full-fledged institute bearing his name but he had to give in.

going on in every university in the world, in countless laboratories public and private, and are the preoccupations of many scores of thousands of scientists. But at the Salk Institute a scientific atmosphere will prevail which exists nowhere else. In the words of Weaver, in an organ of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, it will be "an atmosphere of unparalleled freedom and flexibility, within which the controls will rest with the scholar-scientists."

They will have no worry about personal security because they will be appointed for life with no strings attached. Any need to undertake specific projects in order to get grants of tax or charitable funds because they will be ended. And they won't be burdened by administrative duties nor handicapped by a frozen departmental setup.

Expect Great Things Weaver, who is a former president of the association and one of America's best known men of science, expects great things to come from biological studies in the next 50 years. He expects it to conquer diseases of all kinds but "even more significant," he continued, it will advance "man's inner life of the mind and the spirit."

"At last man will begin to understand his own nature, his place in the total universe of living and non-living matter, his essential oneness with the star, the cell and the atom."

Nimitz Hotel Once Was Driver's Heaven

Fredericksburg, Tex. (AP)—More than 100 years ago, a Texas stagecoach driver's idea of heaven was the hot bath and buffalo-hair mattress waiting at the Nimitz hotel. The rugged trip halfway across the state from El Paso to Fredericksburg, near San Antonio, took six days and there was not a better hotel west of California. Good German cooking, home-made beer and the cleanest rooms on the frontier were trademarks of the hotel run by ancestors of retired Admiral Chester H. Nimitz, who lived there as a youth. Part of the original stone and wooden structure is still used as a hotel. Toronto (AP)—Thirty students at the University of Toronto, working in relays, recently completed a 126-hour game of "hearts." They broke the record set previously at 102 hours by students from McGill University.
