

Prescription Drug Said Effective in Virus Infections

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor
New York - (UPI) - Dr. Warren E. Wheeler, a distinguished pediatrician and chief editor of a medical science journal of the American Medical Association, takes up the question of whether there is some "empty-headedness" in his profession and concludes there is.

His reference was to a prescription drug now widely advertised and "detailed" to the profession which is said to be effective against virus infections. This claim flies in the face of repeated medical science findings that no chemical agent now known to man can stop such infections.

The success this drug is having with some prescribing physicians "is sad testimony to the distortion of purpose which keeps creeping into modern medicine," Dr. Wheeler said editorially in his journal, "Diseases of Children."

Forget Role
"Perhaps all of us some of the time — and some of us all the time — depart from our traditional role of aiding the patient to adopt the frustrating position of feeling that we must, by our own prescription, cure every patient."

The drug, he added, "stands ready to rush into that type of professional empty-headedness." He reminded physicians it is by no means a new drug. It's been available since 1938, but until 1957 was recommended for treatment of protein deficiency. In 1957 it became the "first proven" anti-viral drug. Dr. Wheeler complained of the nature of this "proof" offered by the manufacturer.

Evidence Lacking
The "proof" is by testimonials which contain no evidence of scientific testing either in the laboratory or in patients, he said. Nevertheless, "the entire spectrum of virus infections" is said to have been "successfully treated" with it.

He was commenting on a research report in the same issue of his journal from Drs. C. Henry Kempe and Vincent A. Fulginiti of the University of Colorado Medical center, Denver. They tested the drug with accepted scientific techniques against viruses in tissue cultures and viruses infecting mice, monkeys and human beings.

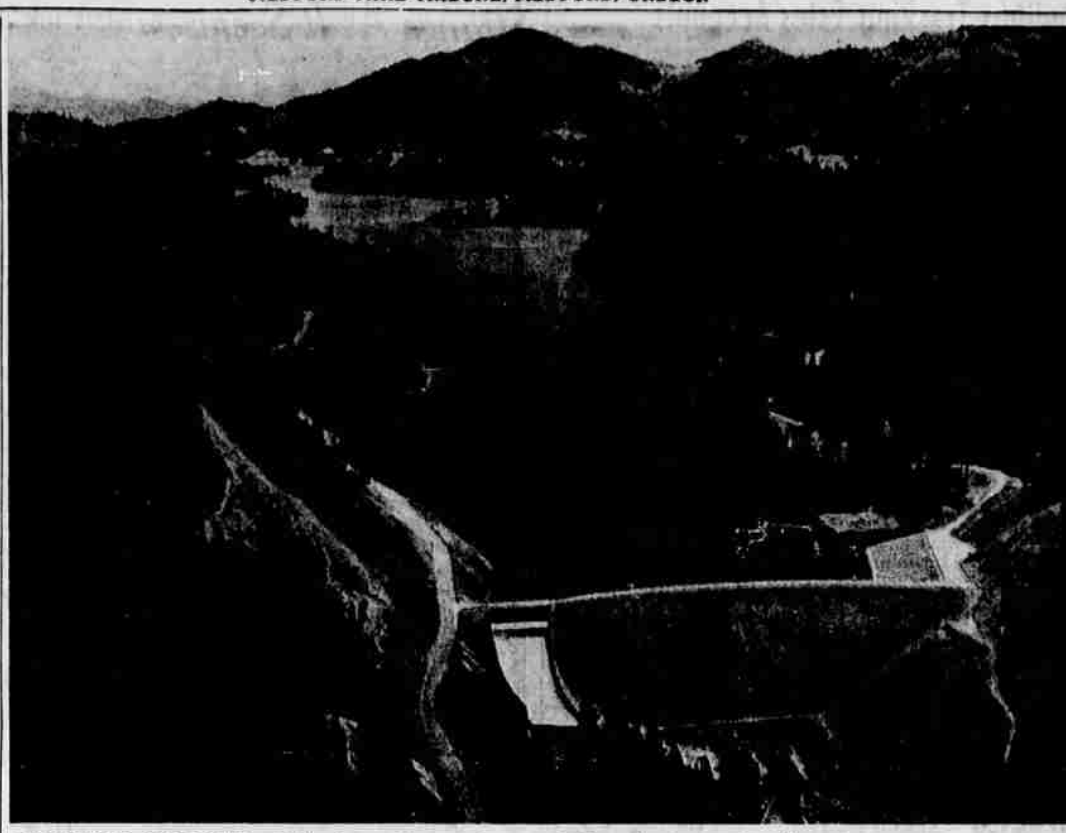

They reported a "total failure" to find any anti-viral activity in the drug.

Water Well Code Effective Monday

Salem - (UPI) - State Engineer Chris L. Wheeler has reminded that Oregon's new water well code goes into effect Monday.

It sets standards for the thickness of walls of water wells, casings, and seals around the outside of casings. Wheeler said the code will help to prevent ground water pollution.

All well owners, will drillers and water well contractors are affected by the code. The standards also provide regulations for maintaining wells, controlling artesian wells to prevent waste, and sealing abandoned wells. On the latter point, Wheeler said there are many wells throughout Oregon which are a menace to public safety. The new code requires that they be filled, capped or sealed.

RESERVOIR DEDICATED—Ruth dam and reservoir on Mad river in western Trinity county, California, has been dedicated to culminate seven years of planning by the Humboldt Bay Municipal Water District of Eureka. The 52,000 acre-foot reservoir will supply water for pulp mills and municipalities in the Humboldt Bay area. The $6 million structure is 144 feet above the river bed and is 760 feet long at the crest. (UPI)

Our Strawberries Have Many Takers So Enjoy Them Now

Strawberries are big business in our part of the country. At this season they're at their finest for eating out-of-hand with stems on and dipped in powdered sugar. They're marvellous with plain cream, with whipped cream and with dairy sour cream.

They're dessert perfection in shortcakes, frozen puddings, custard delights. Frozen strawberries lead all other frozen fruits. They also head any list of fruits used for commercially packed jams and jellies. We remind you of these things because there's no longer a peak season when strawberries are cheaper.

Today's home-maker of strawberry jam and the home freezer of strawberries buys them in competition with the commercial packers. So it's every man for himself. The bargains of yesterday are no more. But strawberries are a good value any time.

Trust Fruit Man
When it comes to berries of any and all kinds, we suggest that you talk your preserving plans over with your favored and trusted fruit man. Tell him what you have in mind; how many you plan to "put up" and he will be glad to advise you as to the best time to "pick them up." Plan to pick them up early in the morning; "put them up" right away—without delay.

No Experimenting
Do not attempt to put up too many berries (or fruits for that matter) at one time. Above all things, do not experiment with your recipes. Ingredients are too costly. Follow canning, freezing, jam making or other directions to the letter. They've been perfected by experts to insure praise-worthy results. Have fun!

Ham Salad Spread
Combine one-half cup finely diced cooked leftover lean ham, one-third cup finely chopped celery, one tablespoon chopped pimiento, one-half teaspoon powdered mustard, one-eighth teaspoon garlic powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-sixteenth teaspoon ground black pepper and one tablespoon mayonnaise.

Butter Cookies
For special occasions (the celebration of June Dairy Month, for instance) and for one's own very special family, there are few things to compare with cookies made with butter. You'll get 2 1/2 to 3 dozen cookies with this recipe.
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
3/4 teaspoon pure vanilla
1 1/2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
Cream butter; add sugar

gradually and cream thoroughly. Add egg; beat well. Stir in vanilla. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Add to first mixture; stir until blended. Chill for one-half hour.
Roll cookie dough out on floured board to one-eighth inch thickness. Cut in various shapes with floured cookie cutters. Bake on cookie sheet in moderately hot, 375 degree, oven for 8 to 10 minutes.

Curried Deviled Eggs
There are about as many ways to devil eggs as there are to make potato salad, but we think you'll agree this fluffy combination of hard-cooked egg yolks, cottage cheese and a bit of curry is one of the better ways.

Hard-cook six eggs and cut in half; remove yolks and put in medium size bowl. Mash yolks and mix with two tablespoons mayonnaise, one teaspoon vinegar, one-fourth teaspoon dry mustard, one-half teaspoon curry powder (more, if desired), one-half cup cottage cheese and salt and pepper to taste. Beat until well mixed and fluffy. Pile high in egg white halves and sprinkle with paprika and/or chopped chives.

Creamed Vegetables
Add interest and flavor variety to creamed vegetables by adding one or more of the following: grated cheese, mushrooms, prepared mustard, chopped almonds, minced parsley, chopped pimiento, minced green onions or chives, sliced stuffed olives, curry powder, chopped hard-cooked eggs.

June Markets Feature Choice Dairy Products
June traditionally is known as "Dairy Month." During this month the production of milk and other dairy products reaches the highest levels of the year. Watch for bargain buys in popular cottage cheese, cheddar cheese, processed cheeses, nonfat dry milk and evaporated milk. For many purposes, evaporated and nonfat dry milk are very economical.

Care and Storage. A simple rule for keeping fresh fluid milk and all its product family at its best is the rule of the three "C's." Keep them Clean, Cold and Covered. Canned milk is a pantry shelf item until opened. Nonfat dry milk should be kept tightly covered in a dry place; can be kept at room temperature for several months. When reconstituted, it requires the same storage as fresh milk.

The many fine cheeses, not glassed or specially packaged, should be covered tightly or wrapped in aluminum foil, transparent wrap or waxed paper and stored in the refrigerator. Most cheese with the definite exception of cottage cheese is best served at room temperature. For "hard"

Emergency Lumber Quota Held Illegal

Portland - (UPI) - The U. S. Tariff Commission informed the Lumbermen's Economic Survival Committee Thursday that the commission has no authority to impose an emergency quota on imports of Canadian lumber.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) and Sen. Vantage Hartke (D-Ind.) had suggested after a hearing here June 4 that the lumbermen ask the tariff commission how to proceed in petitioning for an emergency quota.

In a reply Thursday, the commission said it would take at least six months to get any action and suggested that the lumbermen wait until President Kennedy's interdepartmental committee turns in its report. The President's committee is investigating the plight of the Northwest lumber industry and the effect of Canadian imports.

Lumbermen said Thursday's answer eliminates the tariff commission as a possible means of relief for the sagging lumber industry.

Branchfield Plans To Attend Seminar

State Legislative Candidate Edward Branchfield will leave Saturday for Ann Arbor, Mich., where he will attend a two-week law seminar at the University of Michigan. The Medford lawyer will study two courses, "Wills and Trusts" and "Commercial Law," which concerns the uniform commercial code adopted last year by the Oregon legislature to become effective in September, 1963. Branchfield was graduated in 1942 from the University of Michigan law school.

Oregon Receives First Portion Of Ford Money

The State Department of Education has received $970,000 from the Ford Foundation, the first installment of the Oregon Program funds.

According to Dr. Leon P. Minear, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the money received will cover expenses of the first fiscal year (which begins July 1) of the three-year, $3.5 million program.

The State Board of Education, at its quarterly meeting in Salem June 11-12, is scheduled to approve the proposed budget for the first year's operation of the Oregon Program. The Board will also approve participation applications from various colleges and local school districts involved in the project.

Six briefing sessions, called by Dr. Minear last month, were held in Salem to inform the 12 participating colleges and the 26 school districts of necessary steps to be taken in submitting applications to the State Board of Education for approval of Program participation, and to initiate the formation of committees for Oregon Program activities.

The Education Department plans to conduct a summer workshop for Oregon Program participants so they may become better oriented to the purposes of the program. No date has been set for the workshop.
