Tips Are Given For House Plants

Washington - (UPI) - Spring's time to get as many house plants as possible outdoors. The Society of American Florists suggested that plant owners take these preliminary steps:

Discard plants which have outlived their usefulness, including those too big for their indoor niche and too big to be pruned.

Prune, to promote symmetry or to reduce size, several weeks ahead of the time when it is safe to set plants outdoors.

Re-pot in larger pots those plants needing more room in which to grow.

If the pots are to be put into the earth, first combat any insect pests which might be on the plants. Put the pots on their sides and squirt water or an insecticide on the undersides of the leaves.

For convenience in caring for them, it is better to group house plants in an outdoor bed location providing a variety of conditions: full sun for desert plants (cacti and succulents) and geraniums; partial shade for azaleas, Christmas cactus and orchid cactus; and shade for foliage plants in general.

The society said a spot near a high-headed tree or shrub whose foliage is not too dense, or in the vicinity of a building, usually provides these various conditions.

Placing the pots in the ground - or in a special bed of peat-moss or sand - will lessen the need for plant watering.

Pot rims should be slightly above the soil level and the base of each pot should be surrounded with cinders or gravel to provide free drainage.

P.S.-The pots should be given an occasional half-turn so the plants will not grow too much toward the sun.

New York - (UPI) - Homeowners should combine a household safety check with their annual spring cleanup, building experts advise. If you have a sand box, sift the sand to make sure it's free of nails and glass. Check play equipment for defective parts.

When adding a game room or patio surface it with a slip-proof material such as quarry tile.

Luncheon Given By PTA Board For School Staff

Members of the Hoover Parent-Teacher association executive board entertained the faculty and staff of the school at a luncheon held Friday, June 8, on the terrace of the Rogue Valley Country club.

A highlight of the occasion was the report given by Miss Anna Laura Honts, Hoover teacher of the first grade, who had been a delegate to the meeting of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers held in Portland May 20-23. She stated that the theme of the convention had been "New Adventures in PTA Leadership and Responsibility," with "Action" as the keynote.

The main emphasis of the meeting was on the education of the individual pupil as such, she said. Dean Quillen of Stanford university was quoted as saying that since 1940 college enrollment has risen by 250 per cent, and that the real challenge is to keep the quality of education up with the quantity. Harry Smallenberg, mental health chairman for the NCPT had said, "The more educational techniques change, the more children remain the same. Their basic needs are love, understanding, faith, guidance and control."

Miss Honts said the meaning of the parent teacher association program was summed up by W. R. Fulton, national education chairman, when he described it as "a better understanding and knowledge of the goals and purposes of education and a better understanding of what is taking place in this field."

The luncheon was arranged by Mrs. T. P. Bars, new president of the Hoover association, assisted by Mrs. Ray Casterline and Mrs. Gene Chamberlain. Mrs. Bars complimented the teachers and staff on their year's work, and Roy Gilbertson, principal of the school, responded with an expression of appreciation for the teachers, staff and parents.

'Musts' Given in Event Of Automobile Accident

New York - (UPI) - So there you are, Jane Doe, driving along minding your own business when another car hits yours and ruts a fender.

Or maybe your brakes fail and your car slams into the one in front.

What should you do to protect yourself and your car after the accident?

Jean Kinkaid, women's consultant for the Travelers Insurance companies suggested the following steps:

If anyone has been injured, get medical help quickly and then get the name of the doctor attending the hospital to which the injured are taken.

Don't make any comments concerning liability for the accident, such as "It's my fault." Give information only to the police, and don't sign any statements except those prepared for you by your insurance agent.

Get the make, model and year of the other car and the name, address and license registration number of the other driver.

Note as fully as possible the damage to your car and to the other car. Secure the names, addresses and phone numbers of witnesses.

Get the name, badge number and precinct location of the police officer when he arrives.

Write down the location of the accident. Note the side of the street you were driving on, the direction you were driving, whether or not your lights were on and whether you blew your horn.

Note the day, date and hour of the accident. Note also the weather and the condition of the street or highway at the time.

Report all the information you noted to your insurance company and to your state's Motor Vehicle bureau within 48 hours.

Playtime Togs Go Feminine

Young set playtime togs go feminine this summer, reports the National Cotton council. Dainty ruffles add charm to many sports styles in the 3 to 6x and 7 to 14 set.

All sportswear is sparked with a profusion of ruffles. They run around collars and hems and ripple down fronts and backs of many youthful fashions. Sporting shapes that favor this frothy look include the popular unfitted chambray beachdress in A-line style, charmingly punctuated with a delicate ruffled hem. Gaily printed bathing suits feature ruffled skirts and bloomers and are teamed with matching jackets, also lavishly frilled.

Gingham is summer's number one feminine fabric for small world cottons. Whether in pastel or bright colors, it looks newest in big checks, trimmed with embroidery or used as detailing on solid colored play outfits of smooth broadcloth. The gingham look is smart in the full blown all-in-one romper play suit which is slated to be a winning summer fashion for the little lady.

Like big sister the young

The youngest member of the beach set looks pert in rompers by Girltown. Red and white gingham patterned in small, medium and large checks is frilled softly.
