OLD CEMETERY—Some 20 persons all related to each other are buried on this hilltop cemetery near the north end of Eagle Point. It is believed to be the oldest cemetery in the Eagle Point area.

ORIGINAL GRAVE—Part of the stone on the first grave in the cemetery is still above ground and the inscription can still be seen. Buried here was Woodson Tucker, killed in an 1857 hunting accident by John Matthews, then owner of the land.

Old Cemetery Lies Near Eagle Point

Eagle Point—What is believed to be the oldest cemetery in the Eagle Point area lies on a hill near the north end of the city.

As many as 20 persons may be buried there, although today only around eight or ten graves are marked by stones. The cemetery, part of a farm, hasn't been used for many years. The last burial was made there 71 years ago. It was originally started in 1857 when a man named Woodson Tucker was accidentally killed by John Matthews, then owner of the homestead.

Matthews was hunting deer on Butte point, located just off the Butte Falls highway, and mistook Tucker for a deer. He brought him back to his homestead and buried him. Part of the tombstone on Tucker's grave can still be seen, and enough dirt was scraped off recently so that the identification could be read.

Around the year 1890 an epidemic of typhoid fever took the lives of Matthews and several others of his family, including William Woolley, the father, and Michael Woolley, the grandfather of Mrs. Susie Stowell, who now lives on Agate rd.

Two brothers, the mother and step grandfather of Mrs. Stowell also are buried there. The step grandfather's name was H. G. Shock, and both he and William Woolley served in the first infantry at one time. Therefore, their headstones were furnished by the U.S. government.

Everyone buried in the cemetery is related in one way or another.

Since the last burial 71 years ago, the farm has exchanged hands several times. Polk Matthews willed it to two brothers named Smith. One of Polk Matthews' brothers took the matter to court and was granted part of the homestead—a section including the cemetery.

This piece of land was eventually handed down to Ernie Daback, who also is related to the original family. He then sold it in about 1947 to a Mr. and Mrs. Berryman.

Present Owner
Mrs. Berryman, now Mrs. Maxine Berryman Hansen, is the present owner.

The original John Matthews is believed to have been the first man to settle on homestead in the Eagle Point area. There were other cemeteries in the Brownboro and surrounding areas but not in Eagle Point.

During recent years, some of the tombstones have been damaged by vandals, and at present the county district attorney's office has been asked to investigate a dispute over a broken fence around the cemetery.

Happy Camp Elementary School Graduates 29

Happy Camp—The Happy Camp Union Elementary school graduated 29 eighth grade students in an outdoor program at the school June 7.

Victor Dusenberry, superintendent of Willamette Plywood, Happy Camp, was the main speaker. Dusenberry stressed that the advantages in education are both the college and the vocational fields.

He pointed out to the class that those who are unemployed are those who do not have a skill or education and that last year when unemployment was at its peak, placement agencies were crying for machinists and other technicians. With the future of space travel, Dusenberry said, wide fields of study are there for the taking to those interested enough to take.

Diplomas were presented to the graduates by William Simmons, member of the elementary school board. The high school band entertained during the program and also played the processional and recessional.

Taking part in the program from the graduating class were Robert White leading the Flag Salute; Carol Spence, giving the salutatory message; Donna Shannon and Marty Ferguson reciting the class poem; Nancy Coffield and Thomas Huddleston reading the class will; Jean Vinson and John Klein reading the class prophecy; Dorothy Owens, reading a message from the new school principal, John Sugden who will be taking the position July 1; and the valedictory address by Beverly Colford.

The invocation was given by Reverend Virgil Terry, and the benediction by Rev. M. L. Fuller, both of Happy Camp.

Ruch School Gives Musical Program

Applegate Valley—As a close of school activity a musical program, including a play in two scenes, was presented by Ruch school recently. In addition to band and orchestra numbers, singing cowboys and chorus gave renditions.

The theme of the play was a musical portrayal to city girls of cowboy life. All of the more than 100 pupils at Ruch participated.

Singing cowboys appearing in solo numbers were Randy Eck, Mark Fossen, Lee Wright, Mike White, Robert Dahl, Gordon Hackett, Billy Watson, and Dean Mitchell.

Eight pupils appeared in square dances, with guitar music by adults. William Shannon and John Eck. Square dancing was directed by Frank Scott, sixth grade teacher, who also had charge of lighting. Songs between scenes were given by second and third grade pupils directed by Mrs. Mary Lou Whitmore.

Band and orchestra were directed by Al Huntman, and the chorus and singing cowboys were directed by Mrs. Ilene Ogier, fourth grade teacher.

Mrs. Rupert F. Maddox of the Parent Teacher group was in charge of scenery, and pupils acting as stage hands were Scott Tweedy, Frank Heberling, and Donald Bailey. Miss Ann Van Valzah, third grade teacher, was general chairman of the production.

Hanby Students Feted at Banquet

By MARY KELL
Gold Hill—Hanby Elementary school students were honored at an academic banquet given at North's Chuck Wagon, Medford, recently. The 30 students selected to receive the honor to attend the scholarship dinner had to have good citizenship records as well as honor roll grades.

This was the first time that a banquet had been held to honor students here for scholastic achievement. Gilbert A. Mack, principal of the Gold Hill school said it is planned that Hanby students will be honored at such an affair each year hereafter if they have earned both academic achievement and good citizenship records.

Hanby Elementary school is the first school in District 6 to have introduced a program to recognize pupils in fifth through eighth grades for scholastic achievement. Mack said he and faculty members at Hanby were encouraged by Charles A. Meyer, superintendent of District 6, with the idea.

Both Mack and Meyer told parents and students that the pupil who has earned a record of academic achievement and good citizenship is just as deserving of recognition as the athlete. In the past, great emphasis they said has been put on sports, in the future it is intended that equal attention will be focused on the scholar for academic achievement.

It was pointed out that a background of individual academic achievement and good citizenship is a fine record for eighth graders to take to Crater High school.

Added to the awards system at Hanby this year were blue ribbons for good citizenship and white ribbons for the scholar who had both academic and good citizenship. Recipients of these were recognized during an awards assembly.

Mack praised students who had earned the new awards. He stressed that a person who has good citizenship will get further in this world than someone who does not. The student who received citizenship awards he said had applied themselves in the classroom, cooperated with classmates, teachers, and parents, and could be very proud of the blue ribbon earned. The ability to get along with others under all circumstances is of utmost importance.

Fifth graders receiving citizenship awards were Sharon Neel, Jess Davidson, Susan Dye, Sharon Harrison, Lawrence Burr and George Hetrick. Sixth graders were: Don Castleberry, Carol Rosecrans and Kay Huntley. Seventh graders: Douglas McMahon, Glenda Callahan and Jimmy Williams. Eighth graders were: Steven McMahon, Bane Wilson, Duane Fields, Lloyd Governor, Marlene Wright, Leon Blake, Jackie Dye, Carol McCall and Irita Taylor.

White ribbons were awarded to the following students who had both good citizenship and honor roll grades. These students were also the ones honored at the academic banquet at North's Chuck Wagon. They were fifth graders: Mark Drake, Trudy Brown, and Judy Corona. Sixth graders: Kristine Olson, Graham Dusenberry, and Kathy Williams. Seventh graders: Sandra Ganong, Trudy Deal, Rebecca Banry, Eileen Kell, Tom Keellogg, Carol Washburn, Judy Wheeler, Leslie Wakeman, Donald Molloy, Judy Fisher. Eighth graders: Mike Turner, Linda Parker, Susan Rosecrans, Dave White, Mike Barker, Shirley Kell, and Julienne Stollfield.

Leon Myers, Hanby coach and eighth grade teacher awarded the trophies. This award is given to the boy who has the best attitude for sportsmanship and not for the best athlete ability.

Joe Thomas was awarded the shop trophy and submitting the most outstanding work. Joe designed a lamp which he made of mahogany. This award was made by Dean Roberts, shop instructor and seventh grade teacher. Marvin Throne, band and coral instructor presented coral certificates to the following students: Little graders: Barbara Morris, Linda Cheney, Betty Cook, Geoney Cook, Judy Corona, Terry Dillon, Cindy Hartung, Barbara Morris, Sharon Neel, Patricia Stroh, Melinda Wheeler. Sixth graders: Kent Anderson, Bertha Morris, Theresa Davis, Kay Huntley, Janice Stoh, Kathy Williams, Diana Williams. Seventh graders: Paul Anderson, Rebecca Banry, Judy Fisher, Sandra Ganong, Eileen Kell, Cynthia Mitchell, Linda Mitchell, Theresa Nelson, Ralene O'Brien, Carol Washburn, Hallie Williams. Eighth graders: Leona Rosecrans, Glenda Callahan, Glenda Callahan, Mike Cheney, Jackie Dye, Linda Hickey, Alene Taylor, Barbara White and Marlene Wright.

Table Rock—Some 55 members of the Jackson County Unit of the Oregon Retired Teachers association attended the annual meeting held Monday, June 11, in the big Oaks at the J. S. Richardson home. The following were elected to manage the organization for the next current year. President, Delie Whisenant; secretary, Ina Smith; treasurer, Ruth Treichler. Only a few retired school masters were present, and amid the chatter they were scarcely seen or heard, except H. P. Jewett who had brought along a loud speaker. The members were divided into two sides called North and South, and went through a guessing process with Jewett. The questions he asked pertained to education, and were what a good teacher might ask her pupils, but we thought were rather tricky. One of them, asked us by Debbie, our young niece from Portland, was what disciple baptized Christ, and when we answered John, she said John was not a disciple. In talking with several of those present we learned that practically all retired teachers in our county have social security, and believe it to be one of the best plans ever devised for the welfare of the common people, and the economical setup of the county.

We have heard it said that the hand that rocks the cradle, rules the world, but after the rocking stage is over a good teacher takes over, and teaches the future citizen physically, mentally and morally how to fit themselves to be good citizens and rulers, if the occasion should arrive. At first the twig may be bent, but the good teacher trains and trims it so that it will grow tall and straight. We doff our hat to all good teachers past and present. May the good Lord bless and keep them.

Grange Visitor
Victor Croxton, lecturer of the Oregon State Grange was a visitor here Wednesday. Croxton is busy preparing a program for Monday night June 18, in the gym of the Grants Pass high school. This program promises to be something out of the ordinary, with some 100 Grange members taking part. Croxton had recently attended the PF&L hearing in Medford, and fears that if we don't wake up and show more interest than at present we may find this area sewed up so it would be impossible to develop a public power district or even put in a small power plant on a creek for your own use. This may not be as bad as it sounds if they will pass it around. We could raise enough potatoes to supply the county. Now if some commission could give us the sole right to supply the county with potatoes, we could really "go to town" with this. You would have to buy my spuds at my price, or else. How nice is this what they call free enterprise?

Mrs. Paul Hewitt and children are leaving today for Placerville, Calif. where Mrs. Hewitt has a job with the civil service. Mr. Hewitt will join them later, after he sells the house and logging truck.

Ringe Memorial Swim Center in Yreka Opens After Dedication Rites

By DORIS ROBINSON

Yreka—The Ringe Memorial Swim Center was dedicated and opened to the public at ceremonies June 2. A large plaque in front of the pool was unveiled by State Sen. Randolph Collier and Yreka City Councilman Harry Friedman.

Friedman was master of ceremonies and introduced Mayor Charles Cooley, who told of the memorial by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ringe to the community and welcomed the small fry who were waiting anxiously to enter and swim.

Ray Kelley told how the memorial came about. It was through his suggestion to Mrs. Ringe that her request be used as a memorial to her late husband and herself in the form of a living memorial or swim center for the community. Ab Evans, brother of Mrs. Ringe was present and was introduced.

Senator Collier was the main speaker. He gave a brief outline of the history of Henry Ringe and wife. Ringe was a saddle maker in the early day of Yreka, and lived on third street where Collier often visited as a boy and watched him stamp out saddles.

The pool is located at the corner of Sherman and Knapp streets and has three sections. One is for general swimming, another is a 25 meter long racing lanes and the third contains water deep enough for diving and diving towers. There is also a pool for little children where a minimum height of 48 inches is required.

The bath house is modern and contains a snack bar and a new fast way to check towels and swim suits. The pool was built by the Geremia Paddock Pool Co. at an approximate cost of $110,000. The bequest from the Ringe Estate was $86,000.

Community Club Projects Postponed Pending Audit

Phoenix—The board of directors of the Phoenix Community club last night decided to postpone any money-making projects until the books have been audited.

The work should be completed in approximately 10 days, it was reported at last night's directors' meeting. The membership drive has been held up pending transfer of the clubhouse back to the directors from the city. The directors hope to have a special meeting with the city council to discuss this after the books are audited.

It was suggested by Director Edwin Brown that if the city council decides not to turn the Community club back to the directors the Phoenix Lions club be given all Community Club funds with the stipulation they use them to help develop a community park.

Most logical site would be along Bear Creek, Brown said. This would be part of a continuous park area stretching along the creek, he explained. A trail for cycling and horseback riding along the creek is sorely needed since too many cyclists are peddling along the highway.

NO ONE HURT—Leland Townsend of Kerby was driving this log truck and trailer down the Caves highway last Friday and was approaching its intersection with highway 199, in Cave Junction when the brakes failed. The driver swerved across the Cave highway to avoid hitting a car in front of him and onto a vacant lot behind the Oregon Caves information booth. At this point Townsend jumped safely from the truck, which continued on across highway 199, striking a dirt embankment on the other side and overturning. Miraculously no one was hurt and traffic was not blocked.
