

Former Drew Girl Wins Honors In Creede, Colo.

Drew — In a recent letter received from Mrs. Howard Midkiff of Creede, Colo., formerly of Drew, she said her daughter, Lana, had recently received two honors.

First, on her birthday, May 30, she was notified she had been elected "Miss Creede." Her official title is "Miss Creede '62-Queen Lana I."

Then she placed second in competition with 11 other girls from all over southern Colorado for Queen of the Raft Races. This makes her Lady in Waiting to Queen DeDe. They are touring southern Colorado the week of June 11-18 wearing a different Western costume each day and reigning at two Raft Race dances wearing formal.

Creede is situated high in the mountains of Colorado in the heart of the dude ranch country.

CSF life membership awards were presented to Pam Simming, Alan Lawton, Christine Mathiesen, and Sally Alexander.

Main speaker for the evening was Paul Fisher of Yreka, Siskiyou County Superintendent of Schools, who urged the students to further their education prior to starting life on their own.

The Salutatory address was given by Alan Lawton. Sue Coleman read the history of the class, the prophecy was given by Sally Alexander, and the valedictory address was by Christine Mathiesen.

The diplomas were presented to the graduates by Al Swaim of Happy Camp, member of the Siskiyou County Board of Education.

Regional Roundup

I hear from friends in southern California that some people down there have become so accustomed to breathing smog that they cannot stand to be in areas where the air is fresh and clean. I was told of one case in which a southern Californian became violently ill after two days out of the smog and had to go back home in order to recover.

People who live in smoggy areas become accustomed to taking very shallow breaths because of the air pollution. Then when they go to areas where the air is clean they find it difficult to take deep breaths.

I know that when I moved up here it took me a while to get accustomed to fresh air. Readers who remember my column in December or January concerning air pollution in the Medford area may be surprised at my use of the term "fresh air." But the air here is really quite fresh and pleasant compared to that of most metropolitan areas, even on days when temperature inversions keep the lumber mill smoke close to the ground. I note that there has been very little smog in the Rogue valley since I wrote that column. My thanks to whoever has been responsible for that.

Tidbits: Velda Barr, our Prospect correspondent, reports that her husband Warren has been unable to work lately because of a bout with an electric table saw which severely cut his right thumb requiring 10 stitches. . . . New stretch of freeway from Rogue River to Grants Pass affords some of the most exciting scenery I've seen around here. It also reduces the Medford to Grants Pass trip to 30 minutes.

MRS. SOUZA LEAVES
Hornbrook — Mrs. George Souza left last week for her summer job as forest service lookout on China peak, out of Seiad valley. Before going to China peak, she attended a two-day class of instruction given at Oak Knoll station on the Klamath river by forest service personnel. This will be Mrs. Souza's third summer at China peak.

Miss Katzenbach Is Dairy Princess

Williams — Roberta Katzenbach, 18-year-old, 5-foot, 6-inch daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Katzenbach, 17610 Williams hwy., Grants Pass, entry of the Williams Farm Bureau, has been crowned "1962 Josephine County Dairy Princess."

Special award ceremonies took place during the Grants Pass Rotary luncheon June 13. Lyle Douglas, Rogue Gold Dairy products, Grants Pass, made the official presentation for Coordinated Milk Sales and Oregon Dairy association. A cascade of red and white carnations was also presented to the new princess.

Runners-up for the Josephine county title were, Miss Carol Martin, Cave Junction, sponsored by the Illinois Valley Farm Bureau and Miss Susan Cathey, Missouri Flat road, Grants Pass, sponsored by Rogue Gold Dairy products.

Contestants were judged, not only for beauty, personality and charm, but also for their background at the dairy farm.

Having won this honor, Miss Katzenbach will represent her home county at the State contest, to be held in Portland, June 24 to 26. Mrs. Harry Kimball, Applegate, will accompany both the Josephine and Jackson county princesses to the state finals.

Princess Roberta has just completed her freshman year at Oregon State university, Corvallis, and was graduated from Grants Pass High school in 1961. She has two brothers, Charles and William, both of Medford.
