Foresters View Oregon Coastal Dunes at Meeting

Foresters from all sections of Oregon and southern Washington gathered Saturday at Gardiner, Ore., to view the unique Oregon coastal dunes area. Much controversy has raged during past years over the establishment of a National Searshores Recreation area. The trip was the main subject of the Society of American Foresters Columbia River section annual field trip.

During the day-long trip over the dunes area both north and south of the mouth of the Umpqua river foresters saw many of the scenic attractions which make this area one of the most outstanding coastal recreation areas in the nation. Shifting and imposing dunes framed against the blue sea on one side and the green of Oregon's forests on the other provided a startling and different change from the normal habitat of the foresters work-a-day world of forest, lake and stream.

Multiple-Uses

As a highlight of the trip the group was shown the combination of multiple-uses shaped out of the dunes which directly involve the forester. On the edge of Coos Bay a pulp mill, using fibres of the little used before red alder tree and also clear water pumped from the dunes, provided an example of the possibilities of other uses compatible with a highly used scenic recreation area.

Water in great abundance was found under the coastal dunes north of Coos Bay. Adjacent to this area are vast stands of red alder, growing to maturity now after fires a century ago. Very little use of alder had been made until water was discovered in the dunes, a natural underground reservoir, thus making possible the building of a pulp mill to use both these resources. All of this has been accomplished through full cooperation of federal, state, and local governments as well as a number of private firms.

THREE TRAIN WRECKS

Turin, Italy —(UPI)— The small railroad station at Bussoleno between Turin and Modane Sunday was the scene of three mishaps within 24 hours. Authorities said a freight car burned up, a coupling that broke delayed one passenger train and two engines being hooked up jolted another when they backed up too fast. A few passengers on one train were slightly injured when the jolt knocked pieces of luggage off their racks.

COMPLETES COURSE

Army Reserve Brigadier Gen. William H. Prentice, 1432 Crown ave., has recently completed the one-week refresher course at the Army Command and General Staff college, Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

The general is assigned to Headquarters, 104 Division, and Army Reserve unit in Vancouver, Wash.

ARMORED CAR—Richmond, Calif., policeman with shotgun stands guard by Brink's Armored car which was overturned by semi-tractor truck at an intersection last week. The armored car was en route to a bank when hit broadside by the truck. The two Brink's riders were injured, one seriously. (UPI)

RIDE MERRY-GO-ROUND — Nuns from Catholic schools in Fond du Lac County, Wis., climaxed a big day by riding the merry-go-round at an amusement park last week. The nuns started their day by taking a cruise on Lake Winnebago, and having a picnic. It ended at the amusement park. (UPI)

Emergency Board Has Power to Allocate or Deny Funds Between Terms of Legislature

(Editor's note: Status of the State Emergency board hit the news this week after its powers were challenged by the three top executives in Oregon government. This dispatch tells what the board does, who its members are, and why there is a controversy.)

By DOUG GRIPP

Salem —(UPI)— Even the name is kind of scary. Emergency board. If this sounds like crisis, then you are right. Crises are what the State Emergency board was created for—to deal with emergencies, namely money.

Like all government agencies, the board is made up of flesh and blood, and lots of paper. But this board is unique.

It is really a "little legislature." The nine lawmakers who sit on it have full power to allocate — or deny — money between legislative sessions when any agency of state government thinks it is in a financial bind.

This means everyone, from the governor's office on down.

Clearly Defined

Extent of the board's authority on all emergency matters is clearly defined in the Oregon constitution. But the festering sore that erupted this week between the governor, secretary of state, state treasurer and the board is just how far the board can go after that.

The charge is that the board is becoming more of a monster each year — the legislature gobbling up preogatives of the executive branch to run its end of the government.

The rebellion was announced Tuesday by Gov. Mark Hatfield, Secretary of State Howell Appling Jr. and State Treasurer Howard C. Belton.

They make up the State Board of Control, which oversees all state institutions, and they aren't going to the Emergency board anymore, except for what they consider pure emergencies.

Get Okay

Almost every major state agency has occasion to go before the Emergency board. If they aren't after a direct allocation, they have to get an okay to shift funds from one category or another, to spend funds already allocated, to get building plans approved, or to get permission to apply for or receive federal funds.

The board has a reputation for being tough. Anyone who appears before it can count on steely eyes and sharp interrogation. It is bureaucratic suicide if the request isn't backed up with a mass of supporting data.

Since no state administrator can predict how the board will view his request, there is a varying degree of worry—and sometimes fear — before an appearance. Also, some of the board members weren't chosen for their even temperaments. They get tough over fiscal flab, and they hate what they consider nonessentials.

Bad Reputation

At least one agency chief who has a bad reputation for saying the wrong thing—and whose enemies in the legislature are legion — says privately he would almost rather go to the guillotine than before the Emergency board. But there's no where else to go for money.

Who are these purse string holders?

The chairman is Senate President Harry Boivin (D-Klamath Falls). The vice-chairman is State Rep. Clarence Barton (D-Coquille).

The others are State Sens. Daniel Thiel (D-Astoria), E. D. Potts (D-Grants Pass), Francis Ziegler (R - Corvallis), and State Reps. Robert B. Duncan (D-Medford), F. F. Montgomery (R-Eugene), Leon Davis (R-Hillsboro), and Ben Evick (D-Madras).

Another good reason for catering to this group is that some of the members are omnipotent in the regular legislature.

Runs Senate

Boivin, of course, runs the Senate. Barton was co-chairman last year of the Ways and Means committee. Thiel was the other co-chairman.

Duncan is current House speaker, and both Barton and Montgomery are candidates for speaker in 1963. Also, Montgomery is House minority leader.

The board meets at the call of its chairman, never more than once a month, when enough emergencies build up to warrant a meeting.

The challenge of its authority tickles many state agencies. But not out loud.

Douglas County Fair Premium Books Are Available in Area

Roseburg – Premium books for the 1962 Douglas county fair and exposition in Roseburg Aug. 15 through 19 have been mailed to residents in southern Oregon, according to Bert Allenby, fair manager. The book contains exhibit rules and regulations and lists premiums.

Ten fair departments will offer open-class competition to exhibitors from Douglas, Coos, Curry, Jackson, Lane and Josephine counties.

Among these will be the open-class livestock competition, which will be resumed and expanded for the 1962 fair. Classes for beef cattle, dairy cattle, swine, poultry, and rabbits will be added to the existing sheep category. Cash premiums totaling more than $2,500 will be available in open-class livestock, Allenby disclosed.

Classes for Future Farmers of America and 4-H exhibitors will be open to Douglas county residents only.

Free copies of the 1962 premium list are available at County Extension offices or may be obtained by writing Douglas County Fair, P.O Box 759, Roseburg, or by calling ORchard 3-6277.

Fishing, Hunting Fee Hike Urged

Bend —(UPI)— The Oregon Wildlife Federation supports an increase in state game funds through an adjustment in fishing and hunting license fees.

Meeting here Sunday, the delegates came out for a license fee hike without specifying how much.

It sanctioned appointment of a committee to study both the fee structure and the issue of fishing and hunting license reciprocity with adjoining states. The committee is to report in January after which the federation plans to make recommendations to the legislature.

Cost of the State Game commission program will be $12.2 million in the 1963-65 giennium while its cost by 1971 is expected to total $17.7 million.

Royal Canadian Policemen Slain

Kamloops, B. C. – (UPI) – A gunman today killed three Royal Canadian Mounted Policemen with a rifle outside the provincial building here and fled into rugged bush country nearby.

The policemen were not identified immediately.

Authorities said every available RCMP member was sent to the vicinity of Petersen Creek, an area of rugged canyons and heavy underbrush about a mile south of this city which is 300 miles northeast of Vancouver.

Police urged residents in the area to stay at home and lock their doors and warned motorists against traveling the Kamloops - Merritt Highway which the killer was believed to have used immediately after the shooting.

Three Persons Injured In Area Week End Accidents

Three persons were injured in a series of accidents Saturday and Sunday, according to state police.

Robbin Jocelyne Emmens, 17, of 1511 East Main st., Medford, was reported in fair condition at Rogue Valley hospital Monday following an accident on the Big Applegate rd. Saturday afternoon. She is being treated for a dislocated hip and head cuts. Her passenger Susan Mary Root, 16, of 2435 Lyman ave., Medford, was treated for cuts and scratches and released.

The one-vehicle accident occurred two miles south of the Little Applegate rd., state police reported.

Charles William Forrest, 56, of 881 Harmony lane, Ashland, also was reported in fair condition at Ashland General hospital while being treated for chest injuries.

Forrest was injured Saturday evening when his car hit a car driven by Frank Lafayette McCarter, 65, route 4, box 428D, Medford.

The accident occurred on Highway 99 three miles south of Medford. McCarter had stopped his car to make a left turn, police reported.

Non-Injury Accidents

Earlier Saturday afternoon a non-injury accident occurred on Table Rock rd. near the Modoc rd. A car, driven by John Francis Mitchell, 33, of route 2, box 572D, Central Point, was southbound on the Table Rock rd. when it falied to make a curve and hit a telephone pole, police said.

Sunday evening a two-car collision occurred on the Blackwell rd., slightly north of Tolo rd. intersection. No injuries occurred.

A car driven by William Jemison Scott Jr., 20, of Witchepec, Calif., was traveling north on Blackwell rd. when it attempted to pass a car driven by Homer James Bringel, 70, of 100 South Orange st., police reported. The Scott car hit the left rear of the Bringel car, police stated.

PILOT ESCAPED INJURY

New York —(UPI)— A Marine reserve pilot escaped injury Sunday when his jet fighter skipped off a runway, skidded through a fence and struck a parked car at Floyd Bennet Naval Air Station. The plane, piloted by Capt. Paul H. Hogardus, 32, of New Haven, Conn., burst into flames about 200 feet from a group of homes housing naval personnel. No injuries were reported.

OPERATORS CONVINCED

Jackson, Miss. —(UPI)— Nightclub operators along Mississippi's Gulf Coa apparently are convinced Gov. Ross Barnett's "no gambling" ultimatum is on the level.

"I had a man check this week end," Barnett said Sunday, "and he reported all gambling closed down." National Guardsmen under Barnetts orders, destroyed about $35,000 worth of gambling devices in raids on three coastal clubs last week.

Geographic Names Receive Approval

Astoria – (UPI) – New names have been recommended for six geographic features by the Oregon Geographic Names Board, an agency of the Oregon Historical Society.

The board will recommend to the U.S. Geographic Names Board, which makes the selections official: That a 140-foot high waterfall on the upper McKenzie river in Lane county be named Sahlalie Falls; that a 5,133-foot elevation two miles northwest of Mt. Hood be named McNeil Point; that Mud lake in Deschutes county on the eastern Cascades become Hosmer lake; and that an artificial lake near Medford become Willow lake.

The board either deferred or took no action on a number of other suggestions.

The next meeting of the Oregon Geographic Names Board will be in December in Portland.

Supreme Court Rules On Court Injunctions

Washington – (UPI) – The Supreme Court ruled today that a company cannot get a court injunction to halt a walkout by a union which has signed a no-strike contract.

The case, highly significant in union - management relations, involved the Sinclair Refining Co. and the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union. The union's contract, signed in 1959, contained a no-strike clause calling for compulsory arbitration of unsettled grievances.
