Two Persons Die In Small Plane Crash at Lebanon

Lebanon, Ore. — A small plane on a holiday instruction flight crashed on landing here Wednesday claiming two lives and critically injuring another person. It was the only reported fatal aircraft accident in the United States on the Fourth of July. Killed when the single engine craft fell into a grove of trees and flipped over was student flyer Clarence A. Curtis, 44, an employee of Pacific Power and Light. Mildred Faye Baxter, 42, a passenger, died of injuries at 2:40 a.m. today. The instructor, Kenneth Ramer, 31, was listed in critical condition at a Salem hospital. All were of Albany.

Clipped Power Line

The first report of trouble came when the plane radioed it had clipped a power line near Knox Butte northeast of Albany. Because of large crowds gathered for the Albany Timber Carnival, the plane said it would proceed to Lebanon to land. Lebanon airport manager Lee Sitton said the plane circled once, then approached the landing strip. He said it stalled, made a steep left turn and fell into the trees. It cartwheeled about 30 yards.

Oregon Democrats Adopt 12-Plank Platform at Parley

Salem — The Oregon Democratic convention on Wednesday adopted a platform of 12 planks closely following a March platform, but made four major changes including an overhaul of a controversial plank on world peace. The two day convention ended on a strong note of harmony, broken only by a denunciation of the adoption of the unit rule plan for electing legislative officers. The world peace plank, given the new name of foreign policy, supported necessary nuclear testing. This reversed the March policy, which called for a ban on testing. State Chairman E. D. Spencer, Salem, admitted the old plank was embarrassing since it ran counter to the Kennedy Administration's decision to test.

A summary of the 1962 Oregon Democratic Party platform appears on page 2A.

The new plank also eliminated language which many said sounded like an endorsement of Red China's admission to the United Nations. The new language, which sailed through by unanimous vote, says Democrats "look forward to the day when all countries will so conduct themselves as to join all peoples in the United Nations."

Curfew Clamped On Oran After Violent Outburst

Algiers — Violent gunfire today shattered Algerian independence celebrations in the port city of Oran, once the stronghold of the terrorist European Secret Army organization.

End Ordered To Demonstrations

First reports, believed to be conservative, said seven or eight persons were killed and an undetermined number of others wounded. But Moslem nationalist sources put the number of dead at least 30. The reason for the shooting was not clear hours after the firing had ceased, but it apparently followed an exuberant overflow of Moslems into the European quarters of the city.

The Nationalist army this afternoon clamped a curfew on Oran and ordered all citizens to remain indoors. Their action was taken in agreement with French authorities.

Joy in Algiers

In Algiers, where public demonstrations of joy at the granting of independence and the return of the provisional government built up into a wild frenzy that seemed to be getting out of hand, the government ordered an end to the demonstrations tonight.

On the political front, the forces of Premier Benyoucef Ben Khedda and those of dissident Vice Premier Mohammed Ben Bella vied for power. But responsible leaders expressed confidence the crisis could be ended without civil war or bloodshed.

Picketing at Willamette Jobs Said Successful

Portland — A federal mediator said today a tentative meeting has been scheduled Monday between striking Iron Workers and contractors in an attempt to settle the dispute which has crippled construction in many areas of Oregon and southwest Washington.

Mediator George Walker said this morning the meeting had not firmed up but that it was hoped to have one either here or in Seattle. Iron Workers also are on strike in the Seattle area and in Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho.

Picketing concentrated today in the Willamette valley. Picketing Successful

John J. O'Halloran, business agent and secretary of Iron Workers Local 29, said all jobs in the Willamette General Contractors area were being picketed "with practically 100 per cent success."

The strike started late in May when negotiations for a three-year contract broke down.

O'Halloran said "We are ready to meet, either here or in Seattle."

The strike has affected some $8 million worth of work in the Corvallis area and at state institutions in the Salem area, in addition to work shut down earlier including the Hilton hotel and Standard plaza in Portland.

The union recently rejected an employer proposal to submit the dispute to the National Joint Board of Appeals.

In Salem, contractor spokesman Pat Blair said that work was continuing at the Corvallis High school project, but most other work was halted where pickets were up in the valley. Blair said it was hoped work would resume at Corvallis today on the Blue Lake Packers' plant job, the laying of wire mesh by members of the Laborers' union.

Blair announced the filing of a secondary boycott charge against the Carpenters' Union, Salem Local No. 1065. The charge, filed with the National Labor Relations Board in Portland, says the union illegally threatened and coerced its members in avoiding Iron Worker pickets at several jobs in Salem, including the Marion county juvenile home, and at Hillcrest School for Girls and Oregon Fairview Home.

Climber Rescued From Mt. Adams

White Salmon, Wash. — Injured Seattle mountain climber John Dias, 22, was reported resting comfortably at Skyline hospital today after being brought down from the 8,000 foot level of snow-packed Mt. Adams.

Dias fractured his right leg while climbing the 12,307-foot mountain Wednesday with three companions.

The Crag Rats and the Alpines of Hood River started the rescue operation at 5 p.m. Wednesday after two brothers, James and Jerry Heron, reported his condition to the Trout Lake Ranger station.

The rescue effort was organized by ranger Robert Tokarz.

The Heron brothers, Dias, and Matt Crogan, all employees of the Boeing Co. in Seattle, began the climb Wednesday morning. Dias broke his leg at 10:30 a.m. The Heron brothers immediately started back to report the injury and reached the ranger station in mid-afternoon. Grogan stayed with Dias.

The rescue groups were hampered by high winds, sleet and snow. They reached Dias Wednesday night and he was brought to the hospital in the early morning hours.

Smith Acquitted Of Assault Charge

Stanley Smith, owner-operator of Cubby's Drive-in restaurant, 1275 South Riverside ave., has been acquitted in Medford municipal court of a charge of assault and battery.

The complaint had been filed against Smith by Charles B. LaCasse, 29, Central Point, as a result of an altercation between the two at the drive-in on May 24.

LaCasse had also alleged that Smith used vile and abusive language toward him during the incident, but Smith was found innocent of that charge in a trial on June 22.

At that time, Municipal Judge Joseph Fliegel Jr., indicated he would consider the evidence on the assault and battery charge and render a decision at a later date.

His verdict that Smith was innocent was handed down earlier this week.

Holiday Traffic Deaths Set Record

By United Press International

A total of 155 deaths on the nation's highways set a record for a one-day Independence holiday and the National Safety Council today called the toll a "needless waste of human life."

Late casualty reports boosted the United Press International count of traffic fatalities far past the previous record of 137 deaths for a 30-hour July 4 holiday set in 1950.

California led the nation with 21 traffic deaths. New York had 14 and Texas reported 10. Minnesota and Michigan listed 9 each while Tennessee had 8 and North Dakota 7.

Fourth Activities Draw Large Crowd At Ashland Event

Ashland — Crowds estimated to be the largest ever gathered in Ashland to attend Fourth of July activities here yesterday.

Although officials declined to make an estimate of the number of people, they did report the day was relatively accident free.

The Canadian Junior Band, comprised of 59 pieces, won the grand sweepstakes award in the parade yesterday morning. The youngsters from Vancouver, British Columbia, wore dress uniforms in Beefeater style, colorful and complete with hats. The band also performed at a late afternoon concert in Lithia Park.

Winning an award for the outstanding float in the parade and social class was the Dirk Knies family, 600 Chestnut st., Ashland. The family recently arrived in the valley from the Netherlands, and the float depicted a large windmill. The family, riding the float, was dressed in native costumes.

Bend Slaying Suspect May Have Killed Mother

Susanville, Calif. — The Lassen county sheriff said Wednesday a woman who reportedly died of natural causes three years ago may have been killed by her son, who also was questioned recently about an Oregon slaying.

Sheriff Calvin L. Smith said the son, Albert Lee Rose, 34, told Oregon authorities he strangled his mother.

Rose, whom Smith said is in a mental institution, reportedly confessed he killed his mother during questioning about the unsolved slaying of Judi Lee Reeder, in Bend, Ore. Bend chief Emil Meen said the questioning took place about a week ago. He said it was inconclusive.

The mother, Lena A. Rose, 47, died March 3, 1958. Her cause of death was listed as a massive cerebral hemorrhage.

But Smith said he was informed by Oregon authorities that Rose confessed having an argument with his mother, after which he held his arm around her neck until she lost consciousness. Then he summoned a neighbor who called a doctor, he reportedly said. Mrs. Rose died five days later. The sheriff said his department was investigating the case.

Lieutenant Governor of Nevada Dies

Las Vegas, Nev. — Nevada's Lt. Gov. Rex Bell, one-time western movie idol and husband of former "It" girl Clara Bow, died of a heart attack Wednesday night shortly after greeting supporters of his gubernatorial bid at a Fourth of July picnic.

Only hours before, the colorful, 58-year-old campaigner who brought his filmland flair for western attire into his everyday life, had spoken at a Republican Independence Day rally to boost his candidacy for governor.

As he would have wanted it, and in the tradition of the cowboys he portrayed so many times on the screen, he died with his boots on.

The friendly, hand-shaking politician was a familiar sight in most every Nevada city—always attired in colorful western garb, a white ten-gallon hat and land-tooled leather boots. And he headed numerous parades with his familiar white horse.

Bell's death threw the 1962 GOP gubernatorial election hopes into turmoil. Republicans had high hopes that Bell could wear the state house from incumbent Democrat Gov. Grant Sawyer.

The silver-haired politician collapsed at the home of Miss Katie Jenkins shortly before dinner.

Survivors include his widow and two sons, Rex Anthony, 27, and George, 24.
