

AUTO INSPECTED—Inquisitiveness got the better of Gary McCormick, 5, who joined this line of cars as it inched forward at a Salinas, Calif., traffic check point. Inspectors jokingly checked over Gary's car and labeled it safe for driving. The safety check is an effort to reduce the mechanical cause of accidents. (UPI)

Neuberger, Green May Need Political Help From Morse

By A. ROBERT SMITH

Washington Correspondent
Washington (Special) — Sen. Wayne Morse, who enjoys knightly status in the minds of his followers, may have to play Sir Walter Raleigh and help Oregon's two lady lawmakers in distress across another patronage mud puddle. The obstacle the ladies cannot seem to clear without aid is the nomination of a deserving Democrat as U.S. marshal for Oregon. The deserving Republican marshal, Paul Kearney, appointed by President Eisenhower, is still holding this $10,635 post — one of the few in the country not yet replaced by President Kennedy in the tradition of partisan patronage politics.

Oregon's congressional Democrats agreed several times on individuals who later washed out for various reasons. The most recent prospect, Norman Howard of Portland, withdrew in March due to a heart condition. In April Sen. Maurice Neuberger, on advice from judicial friends in Portland, recommended a young probation officer, Burdette Emery of Portland. The same month Rep. Edith Green recommended a labor official who had been active in the Kennedy presidential campaign in Oregon. James K. Haggerty of Portland.

But these recommendations are gathering moss at the Justice Department because Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy has enough troubles without arousing the ire of either lady by accepting the other's recommendation. He remembers that the two ladies last year made separate recommendations for U.S. attorney, that he picked Mrs. Green's choice, Sidney Lezak, which provoked Sen. Neuberger to refuse senatorial clearance when Lezak's name was sent to the Senate for confirmation.

Lezak was then named acting attorney, which didn't require confirmation, but it cost Lezak a lower salary — and it cost the Democrats public embarrassment and internal strife.

Sen. Morse, running for reelection, is anxious to avoid a repeat of the Lezak dispute. Patronage squabbles encourage factionalism, and party splits are the bane of a candidate's existence.

Administration observers wonder why the Oregon Democrats don't quietly arrive at the most obvious solution: Mrs. Green giving ground on her nomination of Haggerty in return for Mrs. Neuberger giving clearance to Lezak's confirmation, with that veteran labor arbitrator, Wayne Morse, officiating at the bargaining table.

But they don't reckon with the personalities which make this pragmatic solution probably impossible. In addition to the appearance that the two ladies thrive on disagreement, such a solution is a dim prospect probably because some wicked-minded citizen might interpret it as a political deal, of which there is nothing more abhorrent to the Morse code.

The problem must be solved on the basis of principle. Fortunately there is a principle which can be called up for this sticky occasion. It is the principle on which the

Hatfield Asked For Hanford Stand

Portland (UPI) — Gov. Mark Hatfield said Thursday night he would give "careful study" to a request by Sen. Maurice Neuberger (D-Ore.) that he endorse nuclear power production at Hanford, Wash.

Hatfield, arriving home from the National Governor's Conference, declined to say what his position would be until after he has given his answer to Mrs. Neuberger.

The governor said 34 governors signed a petition at the Hershey, Pa., conference favoring a constitutional amendment which would permit prayer in public schools. Hatfield blamed the Democrats for failure of the conference to produce a strong civil rights resolution. "If the northern Democratic governors had been willing to be courageous and hold firm we could have come out with a strong civil rights proposal," he said. He charged that they "caved in."

Hatfield said he was pleased at the resolution against federal reorganization of the National Guard.

credit for rescuing them is that legendary knight of Oregon politics.

Interior Alaska Timberland Burns

Fairbanks, Alaska — (UPI) — Mop-up operations continued on three fires in interior Alaska Thursday while firefighters began concentrating on a blaze near Galena. More than 600 acres of timberland were involved.

The largest fire, covering about 400 acres near the village of Huslia, 270 miles west of here, was being mopped up and many of the firefighters have shifted to a 160-acre blaze northeast of Ruby on the Yukon river.

The fire near Galena covers about 50 acres. Firefighters also brought under control a five-acre fire near the village of Tanana.

South Vietnamese Battle Guerrillas

Saigon, South Viet Nam — (UPI) — More than 600 South Vietnamese troops backed by American-manned planes battled Communist guerrillas today on the northern edge of the Plain of Reeds, about 20 miles west of Saigon.

An informed Vietnamese military source said government troops had initial success in the attack aimed at driving the Reds from positions so close to this South Viet Nam capital city.

He said preliminary reports indicated seven Communist guerrillas were killed, five others wounded and a quantity of arms captured.

ATTENDANCE DROPS

Seattle — (UPI) — Attendance at the Seattle World's Fair on Wednesday, the fourth of July, was only 49,930, less than half that which had been projected for fair officials by a research group.

Responsibility for Soblen Disclaimed

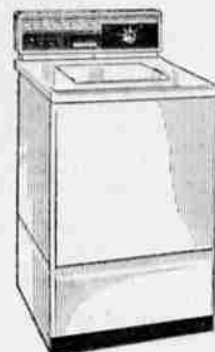

London — (UPI) — The United States, Britain and Israel have disclaimed responsibility for runaway Soviet spy Dr. Robert Soblen during his recovery here from a suicide attempt. A spokesman for the American Embassy said the British government was responsible.

Whether he moves

Whether he moves from the hospital. The British Home Office said the 62-year-old spy was still in transit and under the jurisdiction of the United States. An Israeli Embassy spokesman said the Soblen case was now a matter of concern for either the United States or Britain. His condition continues to improve but he will not be discharged today, the hospital reported.
