GOP Adopts List Of 10 Principles At Bend Meeting

Hatfield Praises Action of Group

Bend, Ore. (UPI)—The Oregon Republican convention adopted a broad, ten-point statement of principles here Saturday which drew praise from Governor Mark Hatfield and other Oregon GOP leaders.

The vote to adopt the one-page document was 130 to 6. It will be filed, by law, with the secretary of state's office within five days.

The statement adopted was virtually the same as a draft proposed by the Republican party growth committee that had been working on the statement for the past several months. A dozen or more attempts to make minor changes from the floor were beaten down by the delegates.

The words "and social" were inserted into the tenth item. They made it read Oregon Republicans believe that "attempting to solve our economic and social problems through give-away programs destroys individual initiative, self-reliance and tends to corrupt the moral fibre of the nation."

Main Architect

At the same time, the main architect of the statement, Robert C. Ingalls, Corvallis, charged that the Democratic state convention in Salem Tuesday and Wednesday failed to follow the law. The 1961 law which ordered convening of both GOP and Democratic conventions called for a "statement of principles" from each party.

Ingalls said the Democrats adopted a party platform instead.

The main theme of the GOP statement is belief in a limited form of government while at the same time provision for adequate aid for the aged, ill, unemployed and needy to restore them to productive citizenship.

Hatfield said he was pleased that the principles set out were broad, since the GOP contains "many points of view," a situation, he added, which is good.

Delegation Objected

The entire Douglas county delegation objected to the statement as drawn, contending two of the items contradicted one another. One calls for aid to the aged and the second one criticizes "give-away programs."

But state Rep. John Deffenback, Medford, called them "strongly affirmative" and not contradictory. He got a big hand.

The Republicans, meeting in convention for the first time in more than 54 years, also reelected state officers and approved a $95,913 budget.

Returned to office by unanimous vote by the GOP state central committee

Phil Roth, Portland, chairman; Mrs. Forrest Hedges, Grants Pass, secretary; and Joseph Burns, Hermiston, treasurer. A fight developed over vice chairman between incumbent Mrs. Helen Daugherty, Portland, and Mrs. Della Campbell, Salem, with Mrs. Campbell, wife of a physician, defeating Mrs. Daugherty on the third ballot 29-11. They were tied 20-20 on the first two ballots.

Hillsboro Migrant Labor Camps Hit By OLCC Agents

Hillsboro (UPI)—State liquor control agents raided two migrant labor camps near here Friday, seizing liquor and arresting two men.

Booked at the Washington county jail on charges of unlawful sale of alcoholic beverages were Jim "Shorty" Marshall, 53, and Floyd Reed Mellennix, 61, listed as working out of North Plains. Officers said they were from California.

The raid was conducted by agents of the Oregon Liquor Control Commission, a state labor inspector, and a Washington County sheriff's deputy.

The camps were at strawberry farms near Hillsboro and Cornelius. They housed some 200 pickers, mostly from California. The camps were operated under contract.

Authorities said quantities of beer and wine were confiscated.

A labor inspector said a joint investigation was started earlier in the week after four migrants jumped into his car during a camp visit and asked him to take them away.

He said they complained of camp conditions and beatings and said they were prevented from leaving the camp.

Mental Patient Riot Subdued by Officers

Lima, Ohio (UPI)—Some 100 policemen stormed a maximum security ward where some 60 "dangerous" prisoners rioted Saturday night and subdued the men without a fight at the Lima state hospital for the criminally insane here.

Hospital administrator Robert Baylor said the situation was under control shortly after 10:30 p.m. EST.

Baylor said he understood the officers stormed the ward from three directions and the prisoners gave up without any violence.

Italian Airliner Crashes in India; 94 Persons Killed

Bombay, India (UPI)—The wreckage of an Alitalia DC8 jetliner that crashed with 94 persons aboard was found last night in a thick forest 100 miles northeast of Bombay with no sign of survivors, police reported today.

Only one body was found at the crash site on a small hill in the forest in the western Ghats mountain range, which runs down the west coast of India.

The plane, with one of Italy's most experienced pilots at the controls, vanished only minutes before it was to land in a heavy rainstorm. Last radio contact was at 4,000 feet over Aurangabad, 175 miles northeast of Bombay.

Traffic Increase Noted on Highway

O'Brien—Southbound traffic through the Redwood Highway California Quarantine station on Highway 199 south of here increased by more than 35 per cent last month over June, 1961.

The June, 1962 total was 27,597 vehicles as compared with 20,320 during the same month last year.

A recent count of both south and northbound traffic, made by the California Division of Highways during a 24-hour period, recorded a total of 4,350 vehicles, indicating that twice as many cars traveled northbound on Highway 199 that day than those going southbound. Northbound traffic is not tallied at the quarantine station.

A certain number of regular commuters, including local vehicles and construction trucks, were not included in the June southbound traffic figures. If this local traffic were included, it would boost the total by an estimated 3,000 to 3,500 per month.

An estimated 45,000 southbound vehicles are expected to pass through the station in July. This month and August are considered to be the months when most vacations are taken.

While Indian navy planes searched the sea and air force planes and helicopters circled the Bombay area in a search for the Italian plane, an air force Canberra jet on a routine cross-country flight also crashed in the torrential rains. Its wreckage was found about 175 miles from Bombay.

The Alitalia plane was scheduled to land at Bombay's Santa Cruz airport at 12:05 a.m. (12:35 p.m. EDT Friday).

Oral Polio Vaccine Clinic Scheduled

An estimated 3,900 persons who have purchased coupons for Salk oral polio vaccine, but for one reason or another have not been able to take advantage of the county-wide clinics held recently, will have an opportunity to receive type one vaccine on Wednesday, July 11.

A makeup clinic will be held at the Jackson county health department in the southeast room 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Consent for those who wish to avoid the Salk vaccine will be available at the makeup clinic. The cost is 91 for the three doses or 95 for a family of five or more members.

Type three vaccine will be administered at a makeup clinic at the health department on Aug. 17, according to Dr. A. Erin Merkel, county health officer. Type two will be offered for the first time in the county early in September. Dr. Merkel said.

Snider Voids Sign Variance Granted By City Council

Medford Mayor John W. Snider late Friday afternoon vetoed a variance granted by the city council Thursday night which would have permitted the construction of a sign at the entrance to Siskiyou Memorial Park, 605 Highland rd.

Lew Miles, proprietor of Siskiyou Memorial Park, had requested the variance in order to erect a 3 by 7 foot illuminated advertising sign.

By city ordinance, signs of that type are not permitted in single-family residential zones.

Though a council committee had recommended against granting the variance, the full council voted by a 4 to 3 margin to allow the sign at its meeting Thursday night.

In vetoing the measure, Mayor Snider said in part: "In my opinion, advertising signs are not a proper use in residential districts. I believe that a sign such as the one contemplated by this variance would be inconsistent with the character of the surrounding residential area and would not be in keeping with the purpose and intent of the zoning ordinance."

"Further, I do not believe that a sign of this type would be consistent with either of the two previous variances under which Siskiyou Memorial Park is now operating."

"I can appreciate the wish of the property owner to use this location for advertising purposes, but in my opinion this is not sufficient reason to jeopardize the interests of the other property owners in this section of the city."

The city planning commission had earlier recommended against granting the variance. Miles then appealed the matter to the city council.

AEC Fires Surface Atomic Device in Nevada Testing

Blast Is First Above Ground in U.S. In 4 Years

Low Radiation Level Expected

Honolulu (UPI)—A U. S. attempt to explode a rocket-borne nuclear device high above Johnston island was delayed 24 hours Saturday in the fourth such postponement this week.

Unsuitable weather was blamed for the postponement until 11 p.m. Sunday (5 a.m. Monday EDT).

Nevada Test Site

The first above-ground nuclear test over the continental United States since the world's powers placed a moratorium on atomic testing four years ago was conducted Saturday by the Atomic Energy Commission and the Department of Defense.

A small white cloud formed over the test site following an almost instantaneous flash as the low yield nuclear weapon effect test was carried out just several feet above the ground.

The cloud resulting from the detonation rose to an altitude of about 8,000 feet and drifted toward the north, dissipating rapidly.

Authorities expected the resulting radiation levels over inhabited areas surrounding the test site would be so low they would be detectable only with sensitive instruments.

Friday's big below-ground shot here was more spectacular in appearance. The cloud formed by Saturday's shot was not of the mushroom type associated with atomic tests, and it was not dirty as was the case Friday.

Four tanks on flatbed trucks were seen heading into the test area Saturday morning before the explosion, indicating nuclear warfare test maneuvers by the military would be conducted in connection with future tests.

Newsmen were not permitted on the test site and witnessed the detonation from a vantage point about 50 miles away. Haze obscured vision of the site somewhat, making it difficult to see how extensive the flash from the detonation was.

A second shot that had been scheduled for Saturday but later postponed was delayed for at least another 24 hours.

William Faulkner Laid to Rest In Mississippi Hill Country

Kept Closed

Oxford, Miss. (UPI)—Novelist William Faulkner was buried in a plain pine casket under two oak trees Saturday in the heart of the Mississippi hill country he immortalized with his literary genius.

A small group of relatives and close friends attended the simple Episcopal service in the Faulkner home, then accompanied the body to Oxford Memorial cemetery where about 75 persons saw the gray wooden coffin lowered into the red clay.

Employment Rise In Rogue Valley

Employment is rising in the Rogue valley, including a good percentage of employment of students, according to John J. Patton, manager of the Medford office of the Oregon state employment service.

Unemployment compensation claims at the end of June stood at 3.6 per cent, compared to 4.4 per cent one month ago and to 5.9 per cent at the end of June, 1961.

A wide variety of occupations is represented by working students, Patton said. Although not all the students have found jobs, there is a continuing number of requests labeled specifically of students help. New hiring is continuing at a good pace, he added.

One of the biggest demands at this time is for help in fruit thinning, due to a fairly heavy crop. This work will continue in many orchards almost until picking begins, estimated to be the middle of August. Later, for picking, the fruit work will not be suitable for women and youth, Patton noted.

There has also been some demand for skilled workers, such as automatic transmission mechanics, fully qualified cabinet makers, and well qualified stenographers.

The 64-year-old Faulkner, who died of a heart attack early Friday, was born, lived and wrote most of his novels and short stories within a few miles of his final resting place.

The coffin was kept closed, a relative said, except for a moment when two Negroes who had been life-long servants of the Faulkner family were granted their request to view the body. A policeman was posted in Cedar Grove outside the house to stop any intruders during the service in the ante-bellum Faulkner home.

The brief graveside service was conducted in 95 degree heat. Faulkner was buried on a hillside under two water oaks.

"A man that is born of woman, hath but a short time to live and is full of misery," the Rev. Duncan Gray Jr. read from the Episcopal Book of Common Prayer.

His burial in this little community that failed to understand him even in death was in accordance with his own wishes.

Once Said

Speaking of his native land and himself, he once said:

"He was born of it and his bones will sleep in it."

But Saturday, as usual the town of Oxford, a community of 8,000 that Faulkner made famous as "Jefferson" in his fictionalized "Yoknapatawpha" county, went on without him.

The square was jammed with trucks and farmers who had come to town to shop, sell produce and gossip. But little of the talk concerned Faulkner.

In late years townspeople had come to look upon the man that many hailed as one of the greatest talents of 20th century as just somewhat of a "character." This was a less harsh judgment than their original reaction that he was "no account."

Most of mankind thought differently.

Great Creators

President Kennedy praised him Friday "as one of the great creators of this age," and eulogies poured in from all over the world.

Pulitzer prize-winning novelist John Hersey summed up the feeling of many of Faulkner's fellow writers.

"He never compromised," Hersey said, "not for money, not for popularity, not for an easy audience."

Faulkner himself once explained his work was motivated "not for glory, and least of all not for profit but to create out of the human spirit something which did not exist before."

The extent to which he succeeded was evidenced Saturday by the carloads of flowers that admirers sent to adorn his grave.
