

One of the artists planning to exhibit in the annual Greenwich Village art show of the Southern Oregon Society of Artists is Mrs. Leonard Andrews, Gold Hill. Mrs. Andrews is shown here with the mural which she recently completed for West Main Church of Christ, Medford, as a background for the baptistry. It is the sixth such mural for churches of this denomination in southern Oregon and northern California which she has painted. Mrs. Andrews executed the work in two horizontal panels at home, and then joined them after they were in place on the church wall.

Emil Knutson, a commercial artist, recently turned to serious painting as a recreation and produced this still life, noteworthy for its exact detail. This member of the Southern Oregon Society of Artists studied with his father, an artist, and recently enrolled in an adult education course in Ashland taught by Marilyn Briggs.

Two Ashland artists, Mrs. Sydney Ainsworth (at left) and Mrs. Marcella Magruder, are active in SOSA. Mrs. Ainsworth will exhibit in the coming Greenwich Village show in Medford, and Mrs. Magruder in the Lithia park show set for mid-August.

Greenwich Village Art Show Coming

One of summer's more interesting events in Medford is the annual Greenwich Village Art show traditionally held in the Medford Library park. This year's show is set for Saturday, July 14, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and the public is invited.

Sculpture is the main interest of many southern Oregon artists, including Mrs. Frank Ralston of Medford. She will enter pieces in the Greenwich Village show July 14. Ruby Ralston, a graduate of the University of Oregon, studied under Nicole Spornberg and Kaye Toyson, and recently studied ceramics with Oso Wilda of Seaside. Oregon collage.

Mrs. Jonathan Middleton, who joined SOSA a year ago, recently began to paint in a free-flowing style using a variety of media. She is pictured here with her daughter, Darcy, at the Public Library of Medford and Jackson County where some of her works are displayed. Mrs. Middleton's parents at one time owned a ceramics shop in Grants Pass, and she became acquainted with that phase of artistic endeavor.
