Rural recorders showed a 2.8 per cent increase in traffic in May. Urban counts were up 0.6 per cent on non-interstate routes.

Exceptionally high increases, possibly due to Seattle World's Fair traffic, were noted on Interstate 30 north, Interstate 5, Highway 99, and Highway 30.

The average daily traffic on Main st. east of Geneva st. in Medford during May was down from last year.

On Highway 66 five miles east of Ashland 1,018 cars were recorded in May, compared to 992 in May, 1961.

One mile west of Ruch on Highway 238 785 vehicles were recorded in May, and 771 in May, 1961.

Traffic declined two miles south of Talent on Highway 99. A total of 9,767 vehicles were recorded in May this year, compared to 9,800 in May, 1961.
