London - (AP) - American frogman Fred Baldasare early today became the first person to swim the English Channel underwater.

He was in the water a little over 20 hours.

Baldasare stayed two feet below the water's surface and fought a two knot flood tide early this morning. He left from Cap Gris, France, at 1 p.m. Tuesday and arrived at Pegwell Bay, southwest of Ramsgate, at about 8:15 a.m.

The 38-year-old frogman said he felt fit enough "to do a round."

The official Channel Swimming association observer, Sam Norbury, said, "it was the greatest display of fortitude and determination I have ever seen."

SOC Library Displays New Juvenile Books

Ashland-The best of this year's new juvenile books are now on display in an organized, graded exhibit in the Children's library at Southern Oregon college, according to Mrs. Eleanor Everett, children's librarian.

Beginning at kindergarten level and ranging through grade nine, 750 titles are exhibited, including major areas of interest of both child and pupil and parent and adult. The exhibit will be open daily between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. this week. An additional display of 432 young adult books is also on exhibit.

To give a foretaste of what will be found in this representative collection, Mrs. Everett noted that it is only necessary to sample a selection of the various subjects and interests covered. Starting with the pictorial magic of the picture and easy books, there are "Here and Now" stories, stories of family and community life, of other people and other lands, mystery, and growing up stories. On the imaginative side, fantasy, poetry, folk and fairy tales also are represented. In addition there are books about science: factual, informative books about living things, the space age, experiments and mathematics; about personal development, careers and guidance; about America today and yesterday, and the world and its people.

The 750 books of the juvenile exhibit include at least 80 subject classifications or sub-classifications. They represent an output of variety and appeal, the significant production of our most creative talents in both writing and pictorial art, Mrs. Everett noted.

The exhibit comes to SOC from Books on Exhibit, a national promotional enterprise of the country's leading juvenile publishers. Its function is to make it possible for schools and libraries to do an informed and intelligent job of book selection. With the additional young adult titles, the display should provide adequate coverage of the newest books, designed for readers ranging in age from preschool to high school graduates, Mrs. Everett said.

Educational Consultant Speaks to SOC Faculty

Ashland - Mrs. Marjorie Priger, educational consultant for D. C. Heath and Company and associate professor of education at Southern Oregon college this summer, spoke to the faculty Thursday on "Straws in the Wind."

Her discussion concerned changes in Northwestern education which she has observed being emphasized recently. She briefly sketched the changes in science and math, pointing to a concern with open-end experiments and an emphasis on reasoning rather than rote respectively. She emphasized "significant changes" in the Northwest's language arts programs.

Mrs. Priger, utilizing the mobility her job as an educational consultant gives, named several pertinent language areas which she feels are being emphasized in the Pacific Northwest. She finds five major changes to be occurring.

1. A reduction of formal grammar in the lower grades is taking place. Dr. Robert Pooley's experimental research and other empirical studies dating back to 1908 were cited as some of the causes of this shift in emphasis.

2. A greater interest in written expression of all types is under way, ranging from the primary grades through high school and college.

3. The impact of structural linguistics upon the whole language arts program is being felt with special attention being granted this approach to language instruction in the junior high and high school years.

4. More and closer attention to literature is being demonstrated in the classrooms.

Poetry Noted

5. Greater attention is being given to poetry than has been the case in recent years. Less memorization of poetry is occurring but wider application of this literary form is being employed.

Mrs. Priger discussed the advantages that poetry has in the modern curriculum and cited pupil growth in sensitivity, creativity, humor, and in vocabulary as a normal student acquisition while studying poetry.

The lecture was one of a series at SOC each Thursday afternoon at 4 p.m. The public is invited to attend the lectures free of charge. Next week's lecture on July 12 will feature Dr. George Bruntz, whose topic will be "A Motor Tour Through Europe."

Dr. Alvin Fellers is coordinator of the series.

Try and Stop Me

EDGAR ANSEL MOWER suggests that thoughtful folks today consider these pithy quotations: 1. "The fear of death, the desire to survive at any cost or price in human degradation, has been the greatest ally of tyranny, past or present." - Sidney Hook, 2. "Optimism is a mania for declaring that all is well when things are going badly."

3. "A conqueror is always a lover of peace. He would like to make his entry into a coveted state unopposed." - Karl Von Clausewitz, 4. "People are not deceived. They deceive themselves." - Goethe.

St. Peter gazed solemnly at twenty-seven wives, just arrived, and seated before him. "Now, girls," said St. Peter kindly, "I want every one of you who ever nagged your husband on earth to stand up—and remember, no fibbing. I have ways of checking up on you, you know."

Sheepishly, twenty-six of the wives rose to their feet, but the twenty-seventh steadfastly remained seated.

St. Peter nodded, and put in a phone call to the devil. "Satan," he said, "I'm sending down twenty-seven nagging wives to you—and I advise you to be particularly careful of one of them. She's stone deaf."

A would-be contestant on "What's My Line" confided that he had invented a wonderful machine for exterminating termites. "Is it on the market yet?" inquired Herb Stein. "Oh, no," admitted the inventor. "I'll have to get the bugs out of it first."

Ruminates Sam Himmelf: "The good old days, the good old days, We all so fondly speak of, Which if they ever should come back, No one could stand a week of."

Southern Pacific Named in Lawsuit

Portland - (AP) - The federal government has filed suit for $124,583 against Southern Pacific Co. because of a fire that occurred Sept. 21, 1957 in the Willamette National Forest near Wicopee.

The action was filed in Federal District Court here Tuesday. The suit alleges that the fire was caused by an internal combustion engine which had inadequate spark arresters.

The government seeks $80,000 as the cost of fighting the blaze and double the cost of the timber losses, which is permissible under Oregon law.

Red Chinese Troops Surround Outpost

New Delhi - (AP) - Communist Chinese troops surrounded a remote Indian outpost in northern Ladakh today, raising fears of a clash in the disputed border area.

The Indian government said about 400 "Chinese intruders" were preparing for a "hostile attack." Informed sources said the Indian troops at the outpost were ordered to go "all out" to resist any Chinese aggression, but to avoid taking the offensive.

Officials here said the besieged outpost reported by radio this morning that "there has been no armed clash as yet" and both sides were holding their positions. The officials said the supply position of the outpost was difficult.

The encircled outpost is in the Galwan River valley in the Ladakh area of Kashmir which borders Tibet, India and Communist China have been feuding in the area for several years.

OUT CHASING COWS

Clinton, Conn. - (AP) - Anthony Florentino, 39, forfeited a $30 bond in Circuit Court Tuesday when he failed to appear to answer a charge of allowing cattle to roam on the highway. Police said he missed his court date because he was "out chasing his cows."
