Child Who Is Not Growing Satisfactorily

Alvarez

I get dozens of letters from worried parents who say either that a son is not growing tall, or a daughter looks as if she were going to be six feet in height—what can be done? For the last few years, I have read everything I could find on this subject; but about all I have learned is that authorities do not feel like giving medicine in an effort to change the rate of growth in the lower limbs.

I recently read an article on this problem written by Dr. James C. Dennis, a children's specialist in Oakland, Calif. He points out first, that there is a wide range of normal among children. Also, there is a wide range of normal in the amounts of food different children will eat. Like all good children's specialists, the doctor disapproves of a mother's having a fight at table each mealtime trying to get a child to eat much more than he wants to eat.

Often, all the nagging does is to develop a streak of mulishness in the child. Unfortunate, also, can be the impression he gains that the only way in which he can win his mother's approval and love is by eating each day more than he wants and needs. Sometimes, the mother works on the family doctor until he gives supposed tonics and perhaps male hormone.

Dr. Dennis presents a chart showing how children usually gain in weight, and this shows that a peak in the amount gained comes somewhere between the twelfth and the fifteenth years. Between the ages of 8 and 15, some girls will shoot up, and this can alarm their parents.

Drugs Not Favored

The doctor is not in favor of prescribing drugs in an effort either to increase or decrease growth. There is a tendency today to give short boys some male hormone, but we physicians always are afraid we may do harm. Also, it is very hard to know if the drug does any good, because, without any medicine at all, the boy may suddenly shoot up and reach 5 feet, 10 inches or so. It must be remembered also that girls who have been growing fast may suddenly stop.

Some doctors have suggested the giving of ovarian extract to stop a girl from growing, but to Dr. Dennis this seems unwise. It may upset the girl's menstrual cycle; it may cause an unwanted spurt of growth; and it is possible that it may have bad effects that we doctors do not yet know about.

Often, the short man or the tall woman will have to learn to accept the situation and to live a normal life in spite of it.

Some who think they are suffering from colitis actually are victims of nervousness. To know all about this confusing disease, read the booklet, "Colitis," by Dr. Alvarez. To obtain it, send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. MMT, The Register and Tribune Syndicate, Box 957, Des Moines 4, Iowa.

Dr. Oberholtzer to Speak at Meeting

Eugene – Dr. Kenneth E. Oberholtzer, superintendent of schools in Denver, Colo., will be the keynoter at the annual Summer Conference of the Oregon Association of School Administrators July 19 and 20 at the University of Oregon.

Administrators from throughout Oregon are expected for the conference, which has as its theme this year "Improving School-Community Relations."

Scheduled on the program of the two-day conference are panel discussions, speeches and a business meeting. A dinner will be held July 19 honoring retiring school superintendents. Dr. William C. Jones, dean of administration, University of Oregon, will be guest speaker.

Guilty Plea Brings Suspended Prison Term

Newport – (UPI) – Carl Edward Lynn, 53, South Beach, was handed a five-year suspended prison sentence in circuit court here Wednesday following his plea of guilty to a charge of manslaughter.

Lynn pleaded guilty to the death at South Beach Feb. 2 of Louven Fred Dunas, 66, South Beach.

Feeding the Family

By ZOLA VINCENT
Food Editor

Fresh Apricots Golden Delight

Fresh apricots date back to the ancient Persians. They're being harvested at their very best. Golden yellow color, plumpness and firmness are indications of quality. Since they are an extremely delicate fruit, avoid handling apricots any more than necessary; plan to use them very soon.

Fine for eating out-of-hand, they're also enjoyable stewed gently. They're fine in pies, puddings, sauces, upside-down-cake and in salads. Apricots are easily home-canned and frozen for out-of-season use.

Apricot Salad

For five servings of a delightful salad, take one pound fresh apricots; wash, cut in half and remove pits. On lettuce or romaine leaves, arrange apricot halves around mound of snowy cottage cheese using a pound (pint) of cottage cheese. Or arrange individual servings, if you like.

Serve at once with mayonnaise thinned with two tablespoons of orange juice. Garnish with nutmeats, if you like.

Caribbean Fruit Is Deluxe Dessert

People of the Caribbeans are said to have this delectable way with fruit—dramatic, too. They suggest serving it in fresh pineapple halves. We suggest also making a showpiece of it by preparing and piling high in your handsomest bowl with perhaps mint leaves tucked in around the edges.

Combine one-third cup honey, one-fourth cup lemon juice, one-fourth teaspoon ground cardamon and one-half teaspoon salt and simmer for five minutes. Cool. Add one seven-ounce bottle lemon-lime carbonated beverage and two tablespoons finely chopped watercress.

Pour over 1½ quarts of mixed fruit combining watermelon and/or cantaloupe balls, seeded grapes, sliced bananas; refrigerate for several hours, stirring occasionally to flavor fruit with sauce. Serve chilled as suggested above.

Dressings for Those Good Seasonal Greens

Market bins are piled high with seasonal greens! Here are ways to dress them up and to have the family coming back for more. For each four servings.

Mustard Butter. Cream together one-third cup butter, two teaspoons prepared mustard, one teaspoon sugar, one-half teaspoon salt and two teaspoons lemon juice.

Lemonaise. Heat mayonnaise in heavy saucepan and stir in some lemon juice.

French Sauce. Heat one-third cup French dressing; stir in two tablespoons chopped parsley, one hard-cooked egg that has been finely chopped, one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Cucumber Boats

Cool cucumbers, halved and scooped out make fine "boats" in which to launch a very attractive and tasty salad. Like this:

Take six medium size cucumbers and halve lengthwise; scoop out the insides leaving a thin shell. Dice the cucumber pulp; sprinkle with salt and pepper and drain.

Mix one tablespoon well-drained prepared horseradish with 1¼ cups cottage cheese and fold in the cucumber pulp. Add more seasonings if desired. Pile in the cucumber shells and place on lettuce or other greens. Sprinkle with paprika. Pass a French dressing, if you like. Six servings.

Apricot Piquant

This Apricot Piquant is delicious with any meat or poultry. Arrange fresh pitted apricot halves on broiler or in shallow baking pan, cut-side up. Drain crushed pineapple and put one teaspoonful in each apricot half; sprinkle with French dressing and broil until thoroughly heated.

Honey-Date Sundae

Heat one-half cup honey; stir in one-fourth cup butter and dash of nutmeg. Cool and stir in one-half cup sliced fresh California dates. Spoon over vanilla ice cream.

Best Buys Include Poultry, Peaches, Apricots, Plums

Plenty of poultry at attractive prices. For family gatherings, civic organizations, Grange and church affairs, there's no better value than turkey; nothing more easy to prepare. Party givers will delight guests with buffet offering cold roast turkey surrounded by help-yourself items like soft butter, a mayonnaise bowl, huge pepper mill and salt shaker, rye and white bread, whole cranberry sauce and cucumber sticks.

Broiler-fryers continue in bargain class. Make up a big batch. Enjoy fried chicken hot one day, cold the next, perhaps with chilled tomatoes and cucumbers, bread and butter.

If poultry you choose is frozen, be sure to keep it frozen until almost ready to use; allowing only time for defrosting before cooking. Wrap fresh chicken loosely in aluminum wrap or moisture-proof paper and refrigerate.

Peach crop is in full swing. Consumers prefer freestone peaches for fresh use. Enjoy them daily. Make a peach pie or cobbler. Plan to "put up" some for the future.

Plums are abundant. Enjoy their tart sweetness out-of-hand for ideal snacking. Put them in fruit salads. Plan a plump pie or cobbler for something plumb wonderful.

Apricots are golden and luscious. Enjoy them now for their season will soon end.

Other Fruit. Astrachan-apples are best for cooking, for applesauce, apple butter and apple pie. Gravensteins are showing up. There's menu variety in strawberries, raspberries, Boysenberries, currants, oranges, grapefruit. There's a record-breaking summer avocado crop. Nectarines are getting into full swing. Cherry season is short so hurry! Plenty of pineapple and papaya.

Vegetable Buys. Name it and you can buy it at a bargain. Quality seems excellent on everything in sight.

Midsummer cantaloupes were never more plentiful, never more wonderful, never within this writer's memory, so low in cost. Watermelons are July-abundant at small cost.

Other Good Buys. Pot roasts and stewing beef, hindquarters of lamb. Hamburger and franks are high on lists. Vary menu with fish and shellfish. Enjoy cold cuts occasionally.

California's annual rainfall ranges from an average of three inches in the southeast deserts to 100 inches in the north coast rain forests.

'New Frontier' Is Used as Approach To Fruit Harvest

The "New Frontier" approach to problem of harvesting the 1962 fruit crop in the Medford area was scored in an address this week by Shelby Tuttle, pioneer fruit processor and representative of the Fruitgrowers League here.

Speaking before the Medford Rotary club at the Rogue Valley Country club, Tuttle said the department of labor's insistance that migrant labor only be used in the Rogue River valley would impose a real hardship upon growers here and adversely affect the entire fruit industry.

Growers and packers here generally depend upon home labor to fill the jobs for packing and processing. The annual use of Mexican Nationals, permitted under Public Law 78, has for years efficiently handled much of the picking of Rogue River valley's fruit crop.

This year the department of labor wants only itinerant laborers used, Tuttle told Rotarians. Since migrants travel in family groups and fruit picking is not adapted to family harvesting, growers here are confronted with a serious problem. Records show that it takes from 800 to 900 migrants to keep a hundred ladders busy in pear orchards here; that six experienced Mexican Nationals pick as much as 91 transient laborers in one surveyed operation.

Fruit picking in Oregon occurs about the same harvest time as in California and Washington so recruiting laborers in those areas becomes an almost impossible task. Idaho and Texas have closed their states to this type of recruiting because of their own labor market.

Mexican Nationals, on the other hand, are certified for entry for one specific job – harvesting fruit. They are then returned to Mexico without the usual problems of welfare that go hand-in-hand with transient workers, Tuttle noted. Mexican workers are available when the perishable fruit crop is ready for harvest while a migrant work force is seldom available for split-second timing of pear crops.

There have always been the illegal foreign workers in this country at harvest time, Tuttle said, but the program of admitting Mexican Nationals for specific work, initiated in 1943, has been highly successful. Continuance of this plan in the Rogue valley is highly important to the success of the fruit industry here and vital to southern Oregon's economy, Tuttle added.

More than 340,000 motor vehicles pass over the unique four-level freeway structure in Los Angeles every day.

Sawmill Closures Add To Economic Despair

Portland—(UPI)—Permanent closure of four more large sawmills in the Douglas fir region have added to the economic despair of the industry, the West Coast Lumbermen's Association said on Thursday.

The association said the latest closures threw hundreds out of work at Bradwood, Ore., and at Seattle, Raymond and Aberdeen, Wash.

GOOD ADVERTISING REALLY SELLS!

When you tell them, they know. But when you sell them, they buy! And buying makes the difference in your business profits.

Apply this same thinking to your advertising. A listing in a business directory tells the public that you're in business. A timely, pointed ad in the Mail Tribune Classified Section tells 'em . . . and sells 'em! A Want Ad shows the customers that you have what they want right now . . . and gives them good reasons for buying it right now.

When you have something to sell . . . use the advertising medium that knows the difference between telling and selling. Use the Want Ads . . . they make the profitable difference!
