William B. Radey Drowns in Pond West of Phoenix

A Medford chemical firm executive drowned in an irrigation pond near his home Saturday evening when he collapsed and sank while swimming in five feet of water.

Sheriff's department skin divers recovered the body of William B. Radey, 51, of Rt. 4, Box 429F, Medford, from a pond near Phoenix orchards, about half a mile off Pioneer rd. west of Phoenix.

Radey, known to his friends as "Bud," was an executive of De Pester Western, Inc., a division of Phillips Roxanne chemicals, with offices at 139 South Fir st. He and his wife moved to the Rogue valley about two years ago.

State police, who were notified of the drowning at 6:40 p.m., said Radey and his wife had driven from their Coleman Creek rd. home to the pond to pick up two boys who had been swimming there.

Radey himself decided to go for a swim. He dove off the top of a capsize boat into five feet of water, took about four strokes and then just sank, officers said.

What caused Radey to collapse was not immediately known, although police theorized that he might have suffered a heart attack.

Anesthetizing Machine Explodes; Young Boy Killed

Dallas, Tex. (UPI) — An anesthetizing machine being used to prepare a 9-year-old boy for an adenoid operation at a hospital, exploded Friday, fatally injuring Mark Caldwell McKinney.

"It's one of those things that just cannot happen but it did," said assistant hospital administrator William Mays. "A full investigation is in progress."

Two Area Forest Fires Reported

The state department of forestry reported two forest fires Friday night.

One, a spot fire covering about one-tenth of an acre, was in the vicinity of Ashland and was quickly extinguished.

The second covered about 1 1/2 acres a mile south of the Lincoln mill near Keene creek off Highway 66. The fire was reported under control Saturday with a state crew mopping it up.

So far this fire season the state department of forestry has recorded about 75 fires, all but 10 of them man-caused. The other were from lightning strikes.

Iron Workers And Contractors Agree To Resume Parley

Portland, Ore. — (UPI) — Representatives of striking iron workers and contractors in Oregon and Washington agreed Saturday to reopen negotiations in Washington, D.C. this week.

The two sides accepted an invitation to meet Wednesday with John T. Dunlop, chairman of the national joint appeals board.

The invitations were issued earlier in the day in telegrams signed by William E. Simkin, the national director of the federal mediation and conciliation service.

Federal mediators from the Pacific Northwest also will attend the meeting. A preliminary meeting was set for Tuesday.

The iron workers went out on strike in Washington May 23 and went out on strike in Oregon May 28 after contract negotiations broke down.

The dispute has tied up millions of dollars worth of construction in the two states and in northern Idaho.

Dunlop, a Harvard university professor, will preside at the meeting. However, it will not be a meeting of the joint appeals board.

The board is composed of officials of seven international unions and seven contractor representatives and was established to arbitrate disputes.

The iron workers previously rejected an appeal by Oregon Gov. Mark Hatfield to submit the strike to the board for arbitration. The contractors accepted.

Negotiations were scheduled to resume with Hatfield in Salem, Ore., Friday between iron workers and contractors involved in the strike in Oregon but the union failed to show up for the meeting.

Macmillan May Extend Political Purge in Britain

London — (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan will carry his political purge to the junior ministries within the next four or five days and end the "little austerity" policy which cost the conservative party much popularity, informed sources said Saturday.

He began the purge Friday by firing six cabinet ministers and the secretary of state for Scotland and brought one newspaper headline: "Macmillan's axe."

Newspapers revived the old moniker "Mac the Knife" and several called it "The Massacre of Friday the 13th."

Selwyn Lloyd, the chancellor of the exchequer (treasurer), bore the brunt of the blame for the little austerity drive which froze white-collar and laborers wages. He was dumped in what some papers called "cold blooded" fashion.

Replacing him is former Colonial Secretary Reginald Maudling who is expected to reverse the belt tightening drive and to try to return the conservatives to their "you never had it so good" theme, which won them an unprecedented third-in-a-row general election victory in 1959.

Since introduction of the little austerity program — backed fully by Macmillan — the conservatives have dropped 14 seats in parliament by recent elections.

Macmillan's arch foe, Labor Party Leader Hugh Gaitskell and Liberal Party Leader Joe Grimond, called for an immediate general election. But political sources said Macmillan engineered the reshuffle to give his government time to recoup its popularity before October, 1964, the deadline for calling a general election.

Labor Party M.P. Harold Wilson, the opposition foreign affairs spokesman, said Macmillan made Lloyd and the other outgoing ministers the "scapegoats." He said, "When a company is facing bankruptcy through mismanagement, it is usually the chairman of the board who goes first, not the executive directors."

The sources said in recent days there had been a move to ease up on austerity but that Lloyd had opposed this. His refusal frightened some of the conservatives and they pointed to the spectacular loss to labor of the "safe" conservative white color constituency of Orpington this spring.

The seven escaped in their motorized sloop, ran out of fuel near the mouth of the Mississippi river and were given assistance by a private vessel. They were met at the mouth of the river by a Coast Guard vessel and escorted to Venice.

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service took the men into custody and questioned them.

All seven said they left families in the fishing village of Batubano and spoke freely to newsmen and posed for pictures.

Other refugees arriving here from Cuba had refused interviews and identification for fear of reprisals against their families.

Communist Court Sentences U.S. Student to Jail

Term Moted for Aiding Escapee

Berlin — (UPI) — A Communist court Saturday sent a cheerful American college student to jail for 15 months at hard labor on charges he tried to help an East Berlin youth flee to the West.

Robert E. Mann, 19-year-old Stanford university sophomore from Sepulveda, Calif., heard the East Berlin court's verdict without batting an eyelash.

In a 20-minute talk with his father after the sentencing the cheerful youth asked for hair tonic to treat his dandruff. He said he was afraid he would go bald.

Only Complaint — Mann told his father that despite the six months he already had spent in jail awaiting his trial he was in good physical and mental health. His only complaint was that he was getting so fat from inactivity "I can hardly put my pants on."

The court sentenced Mann to 21 months at hard labor but ruled the six months he spent in jail awaiting trial would be subtracted from the sentence.

He told his father, Charles Mann, he hoped to be released soon and his East Berlin attorney expressed the opinion Mann would be given clemency before Christmas.

The court gave a co-defendant, Uwe Sturberg, 24-year-old East Berlin locksmith, a one-year suspended sentence on the grounds he had been the victim of Mann.

Mann was charged with plotting to give Sturberg a foreign passport so he could get past the anti-refugee wall to the West. Other details were not disclosed at the secret trial.

The father, health education instructor and athletic coach at Los Angeles Valley (Junior) college, told newsmen, "I was buoyed up by talking to Bob. I am pleased with the way he looked and sounded. He is in very excellent health, physically, emotionally and mentally."

"He is his good jovial self," the father said. "Despite his long ordeal he has retained his sense of humor, is well balanced and has been quite well treated."

"He said he is looking forward to returning to Stanford, waxing floors, pulling weeds and perhaps helping the family build another house."

Ben Bella Attacks Elements in FLN

Algiers — (UPI) — Dissident Algerian Vice Premier Mohammed Ben Bella Saturday night strongly denounced elements of the national liberation front (FLN) which he said had been criticizing him.

His statement emphasized the growing split in the provisional government.

Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda was reported ready and anxious to make major concessions to the left-wing vice premier to try to end the split, but Ben Bella's side steadily increased its accusations against the Ben Khedda faction.

Ben Bella told newsmen at Tlemcen he denounced with violence "the actions of certain directors of the FLN and the systematic campaign of disparagement undertaken by them against my person."

Ben Khedda was leader of the FLN in the final stages of the seven-year fight with France and still has the loyalty of its political leaders. However, Ben Bella has the support of most of the Algerian liberation army (ALN) of the FLN.

The transient, William Frank Brown, 36, explained to officers, "I've had him for years." He was charged with being drunk.

The snake? Jailor Marion Browne took it out and set it loose.

CONGRATULATORY CALL — Cleveland Mayor Anthony J. Celebrezze receives congratulatory call after release of the news that he was appointed to succeed Abraham Ribicoff as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. President Kennedy's nomination is expected to go to the Senate for confirmation early this week. (UPI)

Celebrezze Noted As Strong Exponent Of Racial Equality

By United Press International

The new U.S. secretary of health, education and welfare believes in "racial equality and fair treatment for all."

Cleveland Mayor Anthony Celebrezze also takes into his new job a dedication to duty and a record of getting things done. During his unprecedented five terms as mayor, he gained a reputation as a no-nonsense office holder.

He is impatient with levity in serious situations and outspokenly critical when levity occurs, as witnessed by his frequent clashes with city council when it strayed from the agenda.

States Late — A conscientious office holder, Celebrezze — who pronounced his name Sel-labree-zee — always arrives at his office early, and stays late when the occasion demands.

In his daily press conferences Celebrezze neither dodges questions, nor hedges in answering. He believes in holding nothing back, even though the information might be unfavorable to his administration.

Celebrezze, the most popular mayor the city has had, keeps in close touch with the public, attends all public functions and never refuses an invitation to appear at neighborhood meetings or ceremonies.

In his eight and a half years in office, Celebrezze has never been away from his desk more than a few days in a row.

Pointed Up — While he has an abiding interest in civil rights and education, his chief pride has been in the city's vigorous slum clearance and urban renewal projects.

His critical attitude toward what he considers inefficiency or poor planning was pointed up when a planload of Cuban refugees descended on Cleveland in February without warning.

Celebrezze worried about the refugees finding jobs in a city where unemployment at the time was higher than usual. He said he was not informed of their arrival "until plans were already jelled."

He said he thought the cities jobless should get first choice on the available jobs unless there was a shortage of skills and the Cubans had the skills.

However, he added, "Anyone is welcome to come to Cleveland, there are no barriers here."

Alba Lawyer Slates Visit

A young law school graduate from Alba, Italy, Medford's sister city, is scheduled to arrive here for a six-week visit on Aug. 1, according to Robert Baccus, chairman of Medford's sister city program.

The visitor, Pino Dutto, 25, whose trip is being arranged under the auspices of the sister city program, will be the first citizen of Alba to come to Medford since the two cities affiliated about two years ago.

A group of area residents, led by Mrs. Bert Pree, 2495 West Main st., visited Alba last summer in the first person-to-person contact between the sister cities.

Dutto's expenses to New York are being paid by an Alba service club. His trip from New York to Medford and back again will be financed by local contributions.

Appointee Said A 'Surprise Choice' For Cabinet Post

Nomination May Go To Senate Monday

Hyannis Port, Mass. — (UPI) — President Kennedy Saturday named Cleveland Mayor Anthony J. Celebrezze, a son of Italian immigrants, as secretary of health, education and welfare.

Celebrezze, an active supporter of Kennedy since 1956 and a strong exponent of civil rights, was the surprise choice to succeed Abraham A. Ribicoff who resigned to seek a U.S. Senate seat.

Celebrezze, a Catholic, will become the second member of that faith in the cabinet. The other is Attorney General Robert Kennedy, brother of the president, who also is a Catholic.

Hartford, Conn., July 14 — (UPI) — Resigned Welfare Secretary Abraham A. Ribicoff tonight won the Democratic state convention nomination for the U.S. Senate. His victory margin was great enough to keep his only opponent, Congressman-at-large Frank Kowalski, from challenging his selection in a primary election.

Kennedy, in announcing the appointment from the Summer White House, said he had the "highest regard for his ability, integrity and dedication to public service."

The President said Celebrezze brings a "wealth of experience" and "intimate knowledge" of health, education and welfare to the cabinet.

Acting White House Press Secretary Andrew T. Hatcher said Celebrezze was the "second Democratic son of Ohio ever to be in a president's cabinet."

The first, Hatcher said, was Newton D. Baker, secretary of war under Woodrow Wilson.

Hatcher described Celebrezze as "a very active political supporter of the President since 1956."

Celebrezze will call on Kennedy at the White House Tuesday, Hatcher told reporters.

Kennedy plans to send the nomination to the Senate Monday or Tuesday, the acting news secretary added.

Argentina Girl Wins Miss Universe Title

Miami Beach (UPI) — Miss Argentina, a luscious beauty whose charms would melt any language barrier, was named Miss Universe of 1962 Saturday night.

The lovely Norma Nolan, a tall, 24-year-old brunette and model from Buenos Aires, was picked by judges from the 15 semi-finalists before a nationwide (CBS) television audience and 7,000 spectators in the Miami Beach convention hall.

Dr. Earl Johnson, 1412 Crown ave., is in charge of local arrangements for Dutto's visit. Three Medford families will have Dutto as a guest in their homes for two weeks each.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Rickerts, 201 North Foothills rd., will host the young Italian for the first two weeks in August, and Mr. and Mrs. Curt Nesheim, Table Rock rd., are scheduled to have him as a guest for the last two weeks in August.

Dr. Johnson is completing arrangements for a third family to receive Dutto in its home for two weeks in September.

Dutto, who stated he has a strong interest in "cool jazz," is a graduate of the University of Turin, and speaks English fluently. He has traveled widely in Europe during his summer vacations from school.
