

Henry Marshall, Figure in Estes Case, Murdered, Ranger Declares

Ringing Doorbell Brings 4 Hours Of Horror To Mother and Childen

Minneapolis, Minn. — Once inside the home Tuesday, the youth pulled a gun and demanded her husband's bank book. A second intruder entered through a back door. She told them her husband had the check book.

The youths were later identified as Billy Leroy Yant, 19, and his 16-year-old brother.

"I didn't get upset until they told me to get the kids and that they were taking us away," she said.

Mrs. Theisen was ordered to dress the three sick children — Mike, 3, Mary, 3, and Patty, 18 months. The four, along with Diane, 7, were marched to the family car. They were driven around Minneapolis for about one-half hour. Then they were taken to a north Minneapolis garage where they were held for over three hours.

"They blindfolded me about a block and half from the house," Mrs. Theisen said, "and seemed to be driving around the block. I tried to listen for names but couldn't hear anything."

"The car stopped every once in awhile and one of the boys appeared to get out and get in again later. I kept asking if all the children were still in the car."

The four children and their mother were herded into the dark garage loft and held at gunpoint by the younger of the brothers. The older drove off in the Theisen car and didn't return.

"The children were real good," Mrs. Theisen said proudly, "until it got so unbearably hot and they began itching from the sweat running into their chickenpox. The boy holding it was very nice. After awhile he let the three younger ones go below with him and cool off."

Finally the youth told the Theisens he was "tired of waiting." He told Mrs. Theisen he would let her and the children go if she would promise not to tell the "fuzz" the address of the garage.

Sick to Stomach

"I was getting sick to my stomach and the kids were too," Mrs. Theisen said. "I had to walk away with my eyes closed but I told the 7-year-old to look for street signs."

Little Diane led police back to the garage, once the five were free. "She recognized the place because she walked right past there when she was going to school," Mrs. Theisen explained.

The Yant brothers were arrested Wednesday on descriptions provided by Mrs. Theisen and were identified by her in a lineup. They signed statements admitting the abduction.

Detective Inspector Calvin Hawkins said a third youth, Melvin Robeck, 20, was implicated by the brothers but did not make an appearance at the Theisen home nor at the Thelsen grocery store. Hawkins said Robeck apparently "masterminded" the abduction plot, expecting a $30,000 ransom. He was still being sought by police.

Robeck worked a few doors away from Theisen's grocery store, where Theisen was at work, unaware of his family's predicament.

Texas Police Will Investigate Slaying Theory

Austin, Tex. — The chief of the Texas Rangers said today all evidence points to murder in the mystery death of Henry Marshall, first official to point the finger of suspicion at Billie Sol Estes. A ranger investigation will continue.

Col. Homer Garrison, chief of the rangers and head of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said Marshall, officially ruled a suicide, could not have killed himself. Garrison pointed to five wounds inflicted by a bolt-action rifle, carbon monoxide in the body, cuts on the head and hands, brain injury and signs of a struggle.

Garrison informed a district judge and also sent word of his decision to the FBI and the chairman of the Senate investigating subcommittee looking into the Estes case.

The rangers are working on the theory of murder, Garrison said.

A justice of the peace ruled suicide in the case when the body of Marshall was discovered on his farm June 3, 1961. A special grand jury in Franklin, Tex., last May heard testimony from a pathologist who judged from the exhumed body that Marshall probably was murdered. The body bore five wounds from a single-shot, bolt-action 22-caliber rifle found near it.

Monoxide Found

A heavy concentration of carbon monoxide was found in the body and there was evidence of a blow over one eye that was powerful enough to stun a man.

The special grand jury announced after a five-week investigation that it could not decide whether it was murder or suicide.

Rangers found cartridge casings at the spot where the body was found, but no bullets were found.

Last week in Washington, Chairman John McClellan (D-Ark.) of a Senate investigation subcommittee said he thought Marshall was murdered. McClellan held a rifle as Marshall would have to have held it and decided a man could not shoot himself five times with it.

Marshall was chief enforcement officer in Texas for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service. He had reported his suspicion that Estes had engaged in illegal cotton acreage allotment manipulations.

House Approves Compromise on Relief Programs

Washington — The House today stamped its final approval on compromise legislation embodying most of President Kennedy's proposals for reforming the nation's multi-million dollar relief programs.

The bill went to the Senate, where it was expected to win speedy approval and be sent to the White House.

It is a compromise between differing bills originally approved by both houses. A joint conference committee worked out the differences Wednesday night.

The bill would expand federal help for the needy. At the same time it would put increased emphasis on rehabilitation measures designed to help move some of them off the relief rolls.

The immediate effect will be to increase the federal cost of the welfare program. The federal share would climb to $300 million during the fiscal year which began July 1. This would be an increase of more than $100 million over Kennedy's welfare budget. The welfare program now is costing the federal and state governments about $4 billion a year.
