

Dodgers Stop Worrying, Just Play Frank Howard

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

After two years of worrying themselves sick, the Los Angeles Dodgers have decided to just play Frank Howard and let their rivals do the worrying.

It's turning out to be the best decision in 40 years — or since Red Sox Manager Ed Barrow advised Babe Ruth not to bother learning how to bunt.

Howard, the 6-foot, 7-inch, 250-pound former Ohio State star, has been a Dodger problem since he signed a $108,000 bonus contract in 1958. He was rated a potential new Ruth but except for occasional tape-measure homers proved a disappointment.

Playing Pays Off

Then the Dodgers high command decided that the place for Howard to learn to play baseball was on the field instead of in a psychiatrist's chair. The result is a rapidly developing slugger who is putting a "sock" into the Dodger lineup that could leave nine National League rivals stone cold dead.

Howard demonstrated his game-winning home run power twice Wednesday night when he tied the score with a two-run ninth-inning homer and won the game with a two-run 11th-inning homer as the Dodgers beat the Cincinnati Reds, 6-5, and lengthened their first-place lead to two games.

In the process, the Dodgers ended Jim O'Toole's two-year hex over them which was featured by 31 2/3 consecutive scoreless innings he had pitched. Gordie Golan knocked in three Cincinnati runs with his 17th and 18th homers.

Koufax Begins Treatment

Los Angeles — (UPI) — Remarkable Sandy Koufax, half of the major league's most successful pitching combination this season, began treatment today for a blood clot in his left arm and the Los Angeles Dodgers hope will enable him to return to action as soon as possible.

If the treatment—consisting of drugs to expand arteries supplying blood to his injured left arm—doesn't work promptly, there is no telling when Koufax will get back in pitching rotation for the Dodgers. "The injury is not trivial by any means," said team physician Dr. Robert Woods.

Koufax has been unable to throw a curve for three weeks, with no sensation present in the index finger of his throwing hand.

Koufax, the strikeout sensation who has a 14-5 record, flew here Wednesday from Cincinnati after being forced to leave the game in the second inning Tuesday. He underwent extensive tests Wednesday and was examined by Dr. Travis Windsor, an outstanding authority on vascular conditions.

The club announced later that Koufax "suffered diminution of blood flowing to the index finger of the left hand, and will be given a series of drugs to expand the arteries. The period of inactivity from baseball will depend on the immediate and ultimate response to medication."

Woods said this meant there was a narrowing of arteries restricting the normal supply of blood to the index finger of the left hand, and speculated the trouble resulted from a blow at the base of the index finger.

Braves Beat Giants

The Milwaukee Braves knocked the San Francisco Giants two games off the pace with a 6-0 whitewashing, the St. Louis Cardinals shaded the Chicago Cubs, 2-1, and the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Houston Colts for the 11th straight time, 6-2, in other National League games.

In the American league, the New York Yankees maintained their 3½-game lead with a 12-4 rout of the Boston Red Sox while the second-place Los Angeles Angels shut out the Detroit Tigers, 5-0. The Minnesota Twins slaughtered the Cleveland Indians, 14-3, the Washington Senators edged out the Chicago White Sox, 1-0, and the Kansas City Athletics defeated the Baltimore Orioles, 3-2, in other A.L. action.

Bob Shaw yielded two hits — a single and double by Chuck Hiller — in breaking his five-game losing streak, and posting his 10th triumph for the Braves. Lee Maye homered and Ed Matthews had three hits to lead a 12-hit Milwaukee assault that dealt death 12th winner Juan Marchal of the Giants his sixth defeat.

Hurls Three-Hitter

Bob Gibson struck out 12 batters and pitched his third consecutive three-hitter for the Cardinals, who scored both their runs off Cal Koonce in the fourth inning on Ken Boyer's two-run single. Billy Williams hit his 27th homer for the Cubs.

The Phillies shelled Bob Bruce for five runs in the first inning and won breezing behind the six-hit pitching of Dallas Green. Tony Taylor's three hits and two by Johnny Callison led the Phillies' eight-hit attack.

Mickey Mantle drove in four runs with a homer and a single and Yogi Berra knocked in three with two doubles, a single and a homer to pace the 16-hit Yankee attack on Boston's Bill Monbouquette and three successors. Jim Bouton coasted to his third win behind the New York bombardment. Pete Runnels homered for the Red Sox.

Don Lee pitched a four-hit shutout and didn't allow a double-base runner to advance beyond first base in giving the Angels their second straight shut-out victory. Felix Torres drove in two runs with a double and two singles to stretch his hitting streak to 15 games to lead Los Angeles' nine-hit attack. Paul Foytack suffered his third loss.

Grand Slam Record

Bob Allison and Harmon Killebrew became the first players to hit grand slam homers in the same inning as the Twins tallied 11 runs in the first inning against the Indians. Dick Stigman coasted to his fourth win behind a 15-hit attack that also included a homer and two singles by Earl Battey, and a second homer by Killebrew.

Consecutive doubles by Harry Bright and Chuck Hinton in the ninth inning rewarded Bennie Daniels' three-hit pitching with his third win of the season for Washington. Ray Herbert, who yielded five hits over the distance, was tagged with his sixth loss against nine victories.

Bob Giggie went 8 1/3 innings and scored the Athletics' winning run against the Orioles on a seventh-inning single by Jerry Lumpe. Milt Pappas was rapped for nine hits and all Kansas City's runs in 6 1/3 innings to lose his sixth game of the season.

USSR Sprinter Is Attractive

Stanford, Calif. — (UPI) — She stands 5-5, weighs 119 pounds, is a 22-year-old student and pretty enough to be a movie starlet.

Her name is Lyudmila Motina and she is a sprinter on the Russian track and field team that meets the United States here Saturday and Sunday.

Some observers claim that she is so beautiful that she was brought along merely as a decoy. As she prances around the field practicing her events, in her nylon, skin-tight trunks, some believe that she is more suited for a chorus line than for the rugged sport of running on a cinder track.

But Lyudmila, with her shy smile, can do the 100-meter dash in 11.7 — which is only one-tenth of a second slower than Wilma Rudolph Ward of the U.S. has done this year.

And Lyudmila is just a sample of the new refinement that has come to Russian athletes.

When the Soviets first came out of their country to participate in international competition in 1952, they were shy, unassuming, well-guarded, dressed like peasants and did not know what lipstick was for.

Today they have all the polish of American, British, Australian and other athletes.

Another of the group is Viktor Lipsin, a handsome, 242-pound blond shot-putter from Leningrad. He is 29 years old, and also listed as a student.

Like Home

"We find everything here very much like at home," he says through an interpreter. "The food is slightly different from ours, but very satisfactory."

The team, which is staying at Stern Hall on the Stanford campus, has impressed Mrs. Ermine Michaud, the director of housing.

"They all are very polite," says Mrs. Michaud. "They have tremendous appetites. They eat huge amounts of fruit — oranges, apricots, bananas, cherries, grapes, pineapple and grapefruit."

The Russians had asked that they eat the same food as the Americans. An ordinary meal might include vegetable soup, sliced tomatoes, tenderized round steak, lima beans, fruit gelatin and lemonade.

The visitors do not like American white bread, however. They requested black bread. Each consumes from four to five glasses of milk per meal.

Vancouver Mounties Conquer Tacoma, 5-3

By United Press International

A three-hitter looks like a sure victory for any pitcher, but sometimes you don't have to be stingy to pick up the credit.

Al Schroll pitched the Vancouver Mounties to a three-hit 5-3 victory over the Tacoma Giants in the first game of a doubleheader Wednesday night — and the Mounties rode the winning tide to down the Giants, 8-4, in the second game.

But Sam Ellis of San Diego gave out 12 hits to the Spokane Indians while the Pacific Coast league-leading

Seattle Will Be 'Big League City'

Seattle (UPI) — Seattle will be a big league city in baseball and football, Joe Foss, commissioner of the two-year-old American Football league, said this week.

"It's bound to come," he said. Foss, here to attend a panel discussion on outdoor recreation at a meeting of the Western Association of State Game and Fish Commissioners, said Seattle would be in the AFL now if the city had a suitable stadium.

The eight-team professional league was looking for a couple more teams "certainly by 1964," the former South Dakota governor said.

'Century 21' Top Qualifier

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho — (UPI) — The Century 21 of Seattle turned in the top qualifying time of the six boats which ventured out to choppy Lake Coeur d'Alene Wednesday to prepare for this week end's Diamond Cup unlimited hydroplane races here.

The Bill Muncie-piloted boat covered the qualifying lap at 112.73 miles per hour. Minimum qualifying time is 90 mph.

The Seattle Too, winner of the 1960 races, had the second highest time when it qualified at 109 mph.

Rex Manchester, driving the S Bill, was first to qualify when he drove the distance at 97 mph.

Six of 10 boats in the pits boat covered the qualifying lap at 112.73 miles per hour. Minimum qualifying time is 90 mph.
