Authorization of Area Project May Come This Session

Speaking at the Jackson-Josephine counties Democratic picnic Sunday, Sen. Wayne R. Morse (D-Ore) said he hoped to get authorization of the Rogue basin project before Congress adjourns.

"I have some hope of getting some emergency funds for it this session," Morse added.

"I have a tremendous respect for the citizen-statismanship of those local people who have been pushing this project," he told the 350 people attending the picnic in the new Valley of the Rogue State park near Rogue River.

The bill for the Merlin project is being redrafted to add recreation facilities, Morse said. "This should be back in my hands in a few days, but there is no chance of getting action on this bill during the current session."

Morse, and Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), and Frank Church (D-Idaho) were scheduled to meet with President John F. Kennedy this afternoon to discuss the Pacific Northwest lumber problem, Morse reported.

Morse admitted the administration has made a "series of serious mistakes on the lumber problem, but this is because the president has not been fully informed."

Morse blamed the U.S. forest service, the department of agriculture, department of commerce, the state department and the maritime board.

He noted that the Canadian government is subsidizing its lumber industry both directly and indirectly. The amount of Canadian lumber shipped to eastern markets has increased from 30 to 90 per cent, he added.

General Strike in Peru Fizzles

Lima, Peru—(UPI)—A general strike against the new military junta was a failure today in the heavily industrial areas of Lima and Callao, Peru's two largest cities.

There was no immediate indication whether the walkout, called by the APRA People's party-dominated General Labor Confederation was having any more success on farms and rural areas.

Failure of the strike called by the union federation which claims 350,000 members came as congressmen whose election was annulled by the ruling junta were reported planning a secret session.

The strike had been expected to be particularly effective in the northern provinces where scattered walkouts have occurred since the army seized power last Thursday.

Successful Opening Of Festival Draws Big Saturday Crowd

Ashland—The 22nd season of the Oregon Shakespearean Festival opened successfully here Saturday night for a 44-night staging of four of William Shakespeare's plays in the Elizabethan theater.

Capacity crowds attended both the Feast of the Tribe of Will in Lithia park and "Comedy of Errors," the first play of the season.

Warm temperatures welcomed visitors at the Feast, which was prepared and served by the Medford Junior Chamber of Commerce. A total of 1,387 people were served, including members of the Festival company.

Jaycee officials said 1,293 people were served in 35 minutes after Festival company members had been serving. Lines moved without stopping once serving started.

"Piped" to Theater—Following "The Masque of the Wood," on the lawn and stage at the Feast site, playgoers were "piped" into the theater by the Ashland Kilty Band. The band, the Festival dancers and singers participated in the banquet entertainment.

Gov. Mark O. Hatfield opened the Festival season by welcoming out-of-state visitors and dedicating the 1962 season. He pointed out that the Festival is one of the great cultural events which has brought international recognition to the state.

Attendance Saturday night totaled 1,160, a capacity crowd, which included representatives of news media from along the West Coast, many state government officials, state educators, and other personalities, including Mr. and Mrs. Sebastian Cabot. Cabot stars in the television program "Checkmate."

Introduced Visitors—Dr. William M. Sammons, Festival association president, introduced visiting officials and dignitaries.

Last night's attendance was down somewhat, probably because it was a history play, "Henry IV, Part II." The 623-person auditorium filled about half of the festival theater.

The two other plays which complete the season are "As You Like It," which starts tonight, and "Coriolanus," which opens tomorrow night.

Festival General Manager William Patton said excellent seating remains for most all of the remaining nights of the season. He said particularly good tickets remain for the next three weeks. Reservations should be made at the Festival's box office in Ashland or at any of the branch box offices.

High Western sources said today it appears Russia will sign a separate peace treaty with Communist East Germany, possibly within a few months.

Line Lasts 3 Hours At Hawthorne Pool

A line lasted for 3 1/2 hours Friday afternoon at Hawthorne swimming pool, according to City Recreation Director Robert Haworth.

A total of 900 persons used the pool that day, Haworth said, far below the record for one day of more than 1,100 swimmers Friday, 379 persons were at the Jackson pool.

Week end figures, which are always below week days, Haworth said, showed 553 persons at Jackson and 639 at Hawthorne Saturday, and 363 at Jackson and 547 at Hawthorne Sunday.

He added that Fridays have had the highest number of swimmers so far this year. Many residents leave the city on week ends accounting for the lower week end figures.

Proposes Conditioning—Board Member John Merrifield proposed air conditioning for all future buildings in the state system of higher education. Dual plans will be drawn for the new classroom building, one including air conditioning and the other excluding it.

A preliminary scheme for addition and expansion of the present physical education plant at the college was first approved June 12 when presented by Architects Payne and Struble.

Additions will include two multipurpose rooms, a swimming pool, classrooms, offices, and shower and dress facilities. The only major change in the original plans made was deletion of a handball court.

When completed, the 40-213-square-foot addition will accommodate needs of 1,000 women. Estimated cost of the project is $606,410.

Because of a request by Gov. Mark Hatfield, provision of fallout shelter facilities in college buildings was discussed. No decision was reached on the matter.

The building committee of the state board this afternoon considered a proposal to purchase the old Ashland General Hospital, adjacent to the college on Siskiyou blvd.

Reception Planned For Miss Oregon on Return to Valley

A welcome home reception is planned for Miss Martha Louise Wyatt, Jacksonville, when she returns from Seaside, Ore., where she was named Miss Oregon Saturday night.

The reception will be held by the Medford Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the Miss Rogue Valley contest, and the citizens of Jacksonville.

The first representative of the Rogue valley to win the title, Miss Wyatt was chosen over 21 other contestants. She will travel to Atlantic City, N. J., in September to participate in the Miss America pageant.

For her talent selection Miss Wyatt presented an interpretive jazz dance. She also answered several impromptu questions, telling the judges that "external beauty does not matter. It's what's inside that counts."

Accompanied to Seaside—A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wyatt, 408 South Fourth st., Jacksonville, the new Miss Oregon was accompanied to Seaside by Marjorie Green of Burelson's.

Miss Salem, Alice Lee Berglund, 19, took second place in the contest. Other runners-up were Vickie Diane Kinzer, 18, Miss Umatilla county, third place; Irene Gerd Elin Svensson, 18, Miss Gresham, fourth place; and Charlotte Rowena Pye, 20, Miss Tillamook county, fifth place.

Miss Wyatt was graduated from Medford High school in 1961, and is a freshman at Southern Oregon college. She stands 5 feet 6 inches tall, and weighs 117 pounds. Her measurements are 35-23 1/2-35.

Her hobbies include dancing, skiing, sewing, and skin-diving. In addition to her title as Miss Oregon, Miss Wyatt was named queen of the annual Southern Oregon college Skiasta at Mt. Shasta, Calif., last winter.

Planned to Marry—Although she had originally planned to marry Richard Foulon, Gold Hill, in September, she will change her plans to accommodate her duties during her reign as Miss Oregon. The couple will probably be married in the fall of 1963.

Early in June Miss Wyatt was named winner of the Miss Rogue Valley contest over 10 other local girls.

Cooperation of local merchants and the Jaycees made her trip to Seaside possible. The title winner is the recipient of a $200 scholarship sponsored locally by John Snider and the Pepsi-Cola Bottling company, a trophy, a wardrobe, a television set, and a $1,000 scholarship. In addition, all her travel expenses will be paid during her year as Miss Oregon.

HEARINGS START—Washington—(UPI)—The Senate Finance committee today started its long-awaited hearings on President Kennedy's request for unprecedented tariff cutting authority.

Washington—(UPI)—President Kennedy said today there has been no progress made recently in U.S.-Soviet negotiations on Berlin.

He made this statement in a historic news conference, the first portion of which was beamed to Europe via the new communications satellite Telstar and distributed on the continent's big television network.

The President said that the impasse on the Berlin crisis "is of concern to us all."

The President noted that Secretary of State Dean Rusk is continuing his discussions at Geneva with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and would stay there if any useful purpose would be served.

Other highlights of the conference: Kennedy said he is sorry that Russia has resumed nuclear tests which will "increase the danger of the human race." He said the United States would be "very reluctant" to conduct another series of nuclear tests but that he cannot decide whether such U.S. tests will be necessary until an analysis is made of Russia's new test series "to see if they present further risks to our security."

Preliminary Plans For SOC Buildings Favored by Board

State Group Meeting In Ashland Today

Ashland—Preliminary plans for one new building and addition to another at Southern Oregon college were approved by the Oregon state board of higher education meeting here this morning.

State funds will be requested for the 1963-65 biennium to construct a three-story classroom-laboratory-office building.

The structure, designed by architect Robert J. Keeney will be built west of the present Britt Student center and north of the library. It will have a total area of 37,486 square feet, and a total estimated cost of $825,000. This includes some land acquisition costs which would be $678,071, or about $18.11 per square foot.

Expansion of the building was discussed. It is planned to construct the three-story building with sufficient strength to allow possible vertical expansion.

Proposes Conditioning—Board Member John Merrifield proposed air conditioning for all future buildings in the state system of higher education. Dual plans will be drawn for the new classroom building, one including air conditioning and the other excluding it.

A preliminary scheme for addition and expansion of the present physical education plant at the college was first approved June 12 when presented by Architects Payne and Struble.

Northwest Iron Workers Report To Oregon Jobs

Neither Side Lauds Settlement

By United Press International Northwest Iron workers, promised a hard-won 71 cents wage and benefit increase over three years, reported back to work today to end a record construction strike in Oregon.

The end of the dispute came in Washington, D.C. Saturday—the 55th day of the strike in Oregon and southwest Washington. Members of iron workers locals at Seattle and Spokane, out for a similar length of time, also reported back to work in Washington and northern Idaho.

Four Days of Talks—The settlement followed four days of near-marathon negotiations with federal mediators and Labor Department officers.

Neither side hailed it. John J. O'Halloran, business agent for the Portland Iron Workers local, commented, "We're justifiably disappointed that we weren't able to do more to remove the inequities."

"And Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg made that clear," O'Halloran said. "He told the employers that there were still inequities and he expected them to take steps to remove them in the next three years. He said he realized that it couldn't be done at one session now."

Crews of Peter Kiewit Sons company returned to work this morning on the construction of Interstate 5 freeway following settlement of the iron workers strike.

Although a full new crew was not at work on the Medford overhead viaduct this morning, T. R. Hart, job superintendent, stated that union members were representing the crew in the process of finishing forms to pour the third sequence of concrete over the viaduct.

Also returning to work was the 30-man crew on the Sevier Oaks-Jackson st. segment of the freeway.

Canadian Pacific Brittania Burns; 13 Others Survive

Craft Develops Engine Trouble

Honolulu—(UPI)—A Canadian Pacific Brittania airliner, one of its four jet-prop engines crippled, crashed and burned Sunday night while attempting an emergency landing at Honolulu International Airport.

Twenty-seven persons were killed and 13 others survived. The plane split into two pieces on impact, with the forward section exploding into an inferno of flames.

The aircraft, Flight 301, carrying 29 passengers and a Canadian crew of 11, took off for Sydney, Australia, via Nandi, Fiji, at 10:35 p.m. (HST). Twenty minutes later, the pilot reported he was feathering the No. 1 propeller and turning back.

The crash came 16 minutes later as the plane came in for a landing.

Rams Into Bulldozer—Those who survived were in the tail section which skidded to a stop on a 20-foot mound near the runway. The front section crashed into heavy equipment from adjacent Hickam Air Force Base, one engine ramming itself into a bulldozer. The explosions and fire followed.

D. J. Tierney, chief of traffic control at the airport tower, said "there was no warning and no sign of distress from the pilot as he approached for the landing."

"Everything was routine and normal up until the time of the crash," he said. It was the first fatal crash of a commercial airliner at Honolulu International Airport since the field was opened by the military service in 1942. The port was turned over to civilian control in 1946.

Soviet Fighters Buzz U. S. Planes in Corridor

Berlin—(UPI)—Soviet jet fighters flew dangerously close to two American aircraft in the Berlin air corridors today and the United States protested the incidents, an American spokesman announced.

Two Soviet jets flew "very close" to a U.S. Air Force plane and another jet endangered an American charter transport, the spokesman said.

The new incidents increased fears here that the Russians had started a new campaign to harass the vital air traffic that saved Berlin from starvation in the 1948-49 blockade.

In today's incidents, two Soviet jets first approached an Air Force plane on a Berlin flight. Later, another Soviet jet flew close to an American charter four-engine DC7 coming here to pick up West Berlin high school students to take them on a tour of the United States.
