Paris Winter Collections Have Young Exciting Look

EDITOR'S NOTE: Aline Mosby, United Press writer, gives, in the three following news releases, descriptions of winter fashions designed by Parisian couturiers. The House of Christian Dior has unveiled its "arrow" shape to be worn with pompon hats. Marc Bohan, the designer of the Dior fashions, also gave the public its first glimpse of his new "long, lean, look." Several designers have followed trend of covering the knees, others have not. Ricci's style creator, J. H. Crayha, a Belgian designer, has used the Russian theme with silhouettes, a reminder of Tolstoy's heroines. He uses furs including black mink and sable, and for evening gowns he has used stoles edged with fringe or feathers.

Paris — Plunging necklines, knee-length skirts and Russian furred hoods from the salon of Nina Ricci brought a young exciting look to the Paris winter collections.

The group of fashion writers who have descended upon Paris for the winter showings is that today's designers in the docket-Jacques Heim, Jacques Griffe and Carven — have followed the trend of covering the knees.

Belgian designer J. H. Crayha, Ricci's style creator, stubbornly kept hemlines short to show about a quarter of the knee. He also presented winter cocktail dresses and evening gowns with eye-catching low necklines.

Crayha's theme was Russian, his silhouette a reminder of Tolstoy's heroines. Face-flattering hoods edged with fur were attached to many of his suits.

The audience of fashion writers appeared to approve an olive green wool suit with a hood edged with leopard.

Huge Cowl Neckline
A dressier black wool suit in the same style was topped to the shoulders and became a huge cowl neckline.

Crayha's models were protected against the winter cold by fur-lined coats and capes, big fur collars, and turn-up collars that touched the top of the head. Many of his coats had billowing fullness in the back.

The suit jackets at Nina Ricci's show were often low to the hip, with semi-fitted waists and wrist-length sleeves, in line with the current Paris trend. Skirts were narrow and straight with an extra panel of fabric hanging down the front.

Another suit silhouette was a narrow skirt topped by a jacket, collarless, narrow and fitted to the mid-hip, then flaring out in a curve.

Daytime wool dresses had hawing or raglan sleeves, and insert midriffs that hugged firmly from slightly below the waist to underneath the bustline.

The Russian Look
Conical or squarish Russian fur hats gave the Ricci models a Russian look, and the theme was repeated in evening wear. One short black dinner dress had black mink edging around the low neckline. A pink evening coat with a short train sported a hood trimmed with sable.

Crayha's after 5 o'clock wear won enthusiastic applause. One short black cocktail dress had a skirt sprinkled with black feathers. A blue and beige brocade sheath dress was topped with a matching three-quarter length coat with a sable collar.

Bright strawberry-colored floor-length evening gowns had stoles edged with fringe or feathers. Fit for queens and movie stars were his ball gowns with coats in contrasting colors, such as a coat of white satin edged with silver beads over a shimmering gray translucent gown.

Paris — The House of Christian Dior unveiled its "arrow" shape for women's winter fashions today — putting them in a triangle shape with skirts just covering the knees.

The "arrow" line designed by Marc Bohan was topped by pompon hats, perhaps representing the target.

Bohan kept the waist natural, using many belts.

In cocktail clothes and daytime wools, he used a tightly fitted midriff to emphasize women's natural curves.

Long Jackets
Some suit jackets plunged to the end of the hip, probably the longest in Paris this season.

Bohan had just as many jackets, however, ending at the natural waistline, and dipping lightly in the back.

The Dior line is similar to the triangle shape advocated by several other designers for this fall; but it was less exaggerated than most.

Pompoms
Bohan sprinkled pompoms all over the place.

Nearly every close-fitting daytime hat had a fuzzy pompon on top. Some hats consisted entirely of pompoms, made of jet beads or glittering fake jewels for evening.

Many of his suits had scarves tipped with fur pompoms.

His cocktail dresses featured straight tunics, including one in pink crepe rickly dotted with crystal sequins and beads.

Long straight evening gowns were slashed to above the knee, or were transparent to the knee.

Paris — Designer Marc Bohan of the salon of Christian Dior gives the public its first glimpse today of what is described as his new "long, lean look."

Informed sources said Bohan would follow somewhat the line already laid down by the other designers: Longer skirts below the knee, longer suit jackets, narrow shoulders, natural waistlines and suppleness but not fullness.

Wednesday designer Jacques Heim, one of the most copied Paris designers abroad, especially in the United States, offered women the "Casbah" look. His models pranced out bundled in coats and suits with huge stand-up collars that hid their faces to the nose-tip or above.

Like veiled Moslem women, their eyes were heavily made up to look more provocative over the collars.

Many of the collars were of black seal that could be pulled down to lie flat and wide, or taken off to double as muffs.

Heim's coats were cut muffs, many with huge patch pockets and often 4½ length. His cocktail dresses were either form-fitting in front with fullness floating behind like a cape, or else form-fitting in back with billowing folds forming an "apron" in front.

Jacques Griffe's collection featured a "triangle" line. Coats were "princess style," fitted to the waist and flaring gently in the skirt. His suits and even evening dresses followed the same theme. And nearly everything in his collection had stitched inverted pleats and stiffened hemlines that gave the clothes the "triangle" form.

His daytime dresses were sheaths with high, round necklines, narrow, long sleeves, semi-fitted waists and skirts flaring just a little at the bottom.

Over these Griffe showed princess-style coats in contrasting collars and fabrics. One outfit was a fuzzy lime-green mohair princess-style coat over a thin lime-green wool dress.

COOLING-OFF PERIOD
Chicago — When two children have been arguing, call for a cooling-off period. Don't try to settle the argument on the spot, says University of Illinois family life specialist Marguerite Lynch.

Another solution is to separate the children and talk first with one and then the other. As you listen, be fair in your judgment, and don't let the more persuasive or more talkative child influence you unduly.

KITCHEN LIGHTING
A good idea in kitchen remodeling is to improve the lighting because if you're working in your own shadow you're not working, but groping. It's also a good idea to surface wall, floors and countertops with bright materials such as ceramic tile which will help reflect the light. Real tile is excellent for use in kitchens because it also is heatproof and stainproof, and is easy to keep clean.

Orange Cereal Flake Loaf
Most quick breads are best served as soon as they are baked, but breads that are made in loaf pans usually contain cereal flakes, chopped nuts or fruits, and are apt to crumble if sliced hot. So the "loaf" is the one big exception to the "bake and serve hot" rule that is part of the tradition surrounding quick breads. After baking, cool the loaf about 10 minutes in the pan, then turn it out onto a rack and cool completely. Wrap in foil or saran and let stand overnight. Wrapped with extra care, patting out all air, this bread can be frozen, and will keep very well for two or three weeks. And a comforting item it is to have on hand for that quick snack needed before or after a tennis game. In addition to adding color and texture to the bread, cereal flakes add to the vitamin B content by providing additional thiamine, niacin and riboflavin.

Orange Cereal Flake Loaf
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
3/4 cup chopped nuts
1 egg, beaten
1 cup orange juice
1 cup orange juice
3 tablespoons melted fat or cooking oil
1 cup corn flakes
Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar; stir in orange rind and nuts. Combine egg, orange juice, and fat; add to flour mixture and stir just until well mixed. Blend in cereal flakes. Turn into greased loaf pan, 9 x 5 x 3 inches. Bake in moderate oven (350 F.) until done, about 1 hour. Cool on rack 10 minutes, then remove from pan. Yield: 1 loaf, 9 x 5 x 3 1/4 inches.

Valley Men Participate In Minneapolis Session
John Shortridge of Medford and Walter Ensminger of Grants Pass will be playing in the summer national benefit session of the American Contract Bridge league in Minneapolis, Minn., on July 28, officers of the Medford Duplicate Bridge club announced this week.

The ACBL each year contributes to one or two national charity drives and this year in addition to the usual parties there will be several hundred games played simultaneously in cities all over North America, with players in these cities meeting exactly the same deals and at the same moment as are played in Minneapolis.

A large number of Medford bridge players will be in Grants Pass Saturday, July 28 to participate in the national charity party, with the session beginning at 11:30 a.m., in the Grants Pass Elks club. The two cities have united in the project for this area.

As interest grows in the national tournament, it also is mounting locally for Medford Duplicate members as they participate in a series of contests. Each session of regular play for eight weeks is counted in the series and winners are determined to perhaps the fourth and fifth places. A record is kept posted and the top place is constantly changing.

Winners in the July 23 regular play in north-south position were Richard Finnell and George Bratton, who had 125½ points. Other winners in the position were Mrs. Jack Mitchell and Mrs. Sam Richardson, second, 124½ points; Mrs. Frank Baker and George Rode, third, 116½ points, and Mrs. Dale Fornerbrook and Mrs. John Dougherty, fourth with 114½ points.

The east-west position winners were Mr. and Mrs. Paul McDuffee, first with 132 points; Mrs. George Bratton and Robert Middleton, second, 127 points; Mrs. Glen Harrison and Chester Reavis, third, 126½ points, and Mrs. J. J. Finegan and Berg Marten, fourth, 123½ points.

Check to be sure refrigerator is placed properly for best service. It should be in the coolest part of the room, away from steam pipes, radiator, oven or hot sun. It should be placed so that the air circulates freely about it.

Remind every member of the family not to open refrigerator any often nor leave the door open any longer than is actually necessary. The average refrigerator door "takes it on the slam" 65 times a day — and that's a lot of times. And the average! Don't put hot food or hot dishes in the refrigerator.

Avoid quick freezing by planning ahead and giving the freezer product an opportunity to freeze at normal refrigerator temperatures.

Keep refrigerator clean and that means removing everything, laundering walls and trays thoroughly, once a week. Rearrange perishables. You'll never cease to be surprised at the oddments you find lurking that should be discarded.

If refrigerator hasn't an automatic defroster, remember to defrost when the crust of frost is ¼ of an inch thick. The thicker the frost, the harder electricity has to work to maintain low temperatures.

Lastly, when vacationing, turn control of refrigerator to lowest operating point, marked "vacation" on many refrigerators.

Open House Will Mark Anniversary
Open house will be held for the Rev. and Mrs. Clarence W. Frost, in honor of their golden wedding anniversary, at the Girls' Community club, 229 North Bartlett street, near Fourth street, Monday, July 30, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Frost were married in Ashland, Ore., Aug. 15, 1912, and have lived in the valley most of the time since then.

Returns
Bren Starcher of South Stage road, Medford, arrived home Tuesday evening from Centralia, Wash., where he and Mrs. Starcher had been visiting relatives after a vacation trip to eight northwest states. Mrs. Starcher has remained in Centralia and is to return the end of this week.
