

Jackson County Residents Move More Than Others

Residents of Jackson county keep on the move to a greater extent than do people in most parts of the United States.

Its population is found to be a relatively mobile one because of the tendency of local families to pick up and move more frequently than is usual. The findings are from a report issued by the Department of Commerce, following a study it made of data gathered in connection with the 1960 census.

In Different Houses

It shows that 39,456 residents of Jackson county were living in different houses than the case five years before. This is exclusive of children under the age of five, who have not yet had time to be mobile.

Of the 39,456 who moved, 20,970 merely changed locations within the local county. The other 18,486 arrived from outside places to take up residence in the community.

How many might have left, on the other hand, to live elsewhere, is not indicated. What it boils down to is that 59 out of every 100 people in Jackson county were living in different houses in 1960 than they had occupied in 1955.

This mobility rate, 59 per cent, exceeds the rate reported for the United States as a whole. Nationally, 47 per cent changed residence in the five-year period. The rate given for the Pacific states is 57 per cent and, for the state of Oregon, 54 per cent.

Various factors lead people to change residence. Some of them are economic. If their incomes go up they want to live in better style, so they switch to swankier houses in more expensive areas.

Or, a job or business opportunity that is attractive may present itself in another section and a move is in order. Sometimes, the change is due to an increase or decrease in the size of the family, making a change to other quarters desirable.

All in all, it is a rare individual who lives in the same house all his life.

In Jackson county, according to the report, only 2,244 people, 3 per cent of the over-five population, still live in the houses in which they were born.

Traffic Record Award Presented To City Friday

A traffic record improvement award was presented to Medford Friday at a luncheon at the Rogue Valley Country club. Mayor John W. Snider accepted the award on behalf of the city.

The award was made by the Oregon Traffic Safety Commission and was presented by Edward Warmoth, executive secretary of the commission.

Clyde C. Fichtner, chairman of the Medford Safety Council, was in charge of arrangements for the luncheon, which was attended by about 30 persons connected with efforts to improve traffic safety in the area.

Two Other Awards

Warmoth announced that Medford also will receive two awards from the National Safety Council for its work in the areas of traffic engineering and school traffic safety engineering.

Arrangements are being made to have Gov. Mark O. Hatfield formally present the awards to the city at some future date, Warmoth said.

The executive secretary was high in his praise of Medford's traffic safety work, and said he thought that, with the possible exception of Portland, it was "the best in the state."

Inventory Discussed

In the 1961 Annual Traffic Inventory, which Warmoth discussed at the luncheon, Medford received an 82 per cent rating, signifying that it was only 18 percentage points short of a maximum traffic safety program.

At that percentage, Warmoth pointed out, Medford had the highest total in Oregon, matched only by Portland which is in a different population category.

Among the 468 cities of comparable size with which the city was compared in evaluation of its traffic safety program, Medford tied with one other city for sixth place.

Allowable Cut in Klamath National Forest Increased

Yreka - The annual allowable cut on the Klamath National forest has been raised to 222 million board feet, according to Forest Supervisor Joseph F. Thornton.

This is an increase of 36.5 million feet over the present figure of 185.5 million feet.

Approval by the chief of the forest service of the Happy Camp working circle timber management plan made the increase possible. This plan was submitted to the chief as a revision of the present plan for the Happy Camp and Ukonom Ranger districts.

Completion and approval of the new Happy Camp plan finishes the cycle of reinvigorating the Klamath Forest timber stands and recalculating of allowable cuts in accordance with most recent techniques and policy decisions.

Several Years Needed

Thornton emphasized that it may take several years for the forest to gear up to the increase which amounts to about 20 per cent of the present allowable cut. Timber sales to make up for the increase will have to be planned in areas where access is a serious and expensive problem. Time will be needed to recruit and train additional manpower. Another factor will be the necessary budget allocations to finance the additional work.

The increased cut will be programmed to raise the Ukonom district cut from 22 million feet to 44.6 million feet.

On the Happy Camp district the new cut will be 63.9 million feet, compared to the old figure of 50 million feet.

Based on an average conversion value of about $35 per thousand board feet in wages, Thornton estimated that the increased cut when fully effective should add about $1 1/4 million to payrolls in the areas in and adjacent to the Klamath National forest.
