

Praying Negro Demonstrators Arrested by Georgia Police

Maurine Neuberger Sets Senate Record

Washington (UPI)—It was ladies day on the Senate floor Monday at least four hours and 30 minutes of it.

Oregon's lady senator, Democrat Maurine Neuberger, joined the filibuster against the administration's satellite communications bill and proved the equal of many long-winded male colleagues.

Mrs. Neuberger set two records—she was the first woman to take part in a filibuster and delivered the longest speech ever made by a woman senator.

Not tired in the least after her long stint, she left for New York without pausing to rest. "In fact," she said, after yielding the floor and replenishing her lipstick, "I feel better than when I started."

She then hurried by her Senate office for a few minutes and headed for New York to bid goodbye to some members of her family on their way to Europe.

Her Oregon colleague, Sen. Wayne L. Morse (D-Ore.) was among the first to greet her. They posed for pictures together and Morse told her it was a fine speech.

Only nine women have ever served as senators and two of them never actually attended a session. None of Mrs. Neuberger's predecessors had ever made long speeches and none had ever taken part in an acknowledged filibuster.

Mrs. Neuberger wore a red and black silk print suit for her record-breaking speech. She talked slowly and in low tones. Much of the time she was barely audible in the gallery.

While holding the floor she had only a couple of hard peppermint candy drops and occasional sips of water.

Mrs. Neuberger's aides insisted she wasn't consciously aiming at any records and didn't want any special favors. As one of them put it, "she'd rather be just one of the boys" as far as her Senate duties are concerned.

Max Factor, IBM Among Movers In Stock Advance

New York (UPI)—The stock market advanced all along the line today.

Among the wide movers were Max Factor up nearly 3, IBM up more than 2, and Polaroid ahead more than a point. Corning Glass dropped 3 points on profit taking.

Brunswick and AMF were off large fractions as both companies have been charged by the government with illegally restricting the sale of automatic bowling pinsetters.

Republic Steel was easier after the company reported a drop in earnings during the second quarter. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem meanwhile were up fractions.

Gains of a half or more appeared in International Telephone, Johns Manville, International Nickel, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas, American Telephone, Texaco, Sears Roebuck, Reynolds Tobacco, North American Aviation and Woolworth.

Group Refuses To Obey Order To Move Along

Albany, Ga. (UPI)—Police jailed 15 praying, hymn-singing Negroes and a white woman Monday night.

The action took place shortly after city officials went to end eight months of anti-segregation demonstrations which have resulted in scattered incidents of violence.

The latest group included only three men. The demonstrators were arrested in front of city hall when they refused to obey police chief Laurie Pritchett's order to move on.

The brief demonstration apparently caught Pritchett by surprise. He said word had been relayed to him there would be no demonstrations so that he could stay home and celebrate his 12th wedding anniversary.

Pritchett, who appeared to be annoyed, arrived on the scene dressed in a business suit rather than the uniform he usually wears.

Pritchett said the demonstration was not in keeping with a policy statement by the pro-integration Albany Movement that there would be no more night demonstrations.

The demonstrators arrived at the city hall in cars and were led in prayer by a Negro man dressed in overalls.

Those arrested included a white woman who identified herself as Miss Elizabeth Wyckoff, a writer from New York City and a member of the Congress of Racial Equality.

The city went to court Monday to seek a permanent injunction to prohibit the movement from staging demonstrations. The hearing was recessed late in the afternoon.

Capsule on Beach Claimed Harmless

Hanford, Wash. (UPI)—Scientists here have decided that a small capsule marked "radioactive" and found on the Oregon coast actually was a large cork wrapped in lead foil.

They said it was not dangerous and did not belong to the Atomic Energy Commission.

The object was rushed to the Hanford Atomic Works for examination after it was found on a beach west of Tillamook by a 13-year-old Salem boy Friday.

Scientists said the word "radioactive" was printed on a piece of yellow tape around the foil.

The standard radiation symbol used in the United States also was marked on the tape, they said.

The examination came after the cork was turned over to the Coast Guard at Garibaldi.

H. R. Cydell, public information director at Hanford, said that "a check showed the cork had no reading and was not dangerous."

"We have no idea how it got on the beach and who put it there," he said. "It may have been used as a stopper for some capsule containing a radioactive material at a hospital or a college laboratory."

California Man Cited Following Accident

Henry Robert Durstman, 34, Weott, Calif., was cited for making an illegal left turn Saturday after the car he was driving collided with a vehicle operated by Victor Gene Everett, 18, White City, about 11:11 p.m. at Riverside ave. and Manzanita st.

A passenger in the Everett car, Samuel Thomas Stillwell, 16, of 108 South Grape st., was injured slightly, according to police reports, and was taken to his family physician for treatment.

Television Actor Freed on Drunk Charge

Beverly Hills, Calif. (UPI)—Television actor Billy Gray, 24, convicted earlier of possession of marijuana, was cleared Monday of a drunken driving charge.

Gray, who played the son in the television series "Father Knows Best," was arrested March 25 and charged with both drunken driving and possession of marijuana.

CAMEL BORN

Houston (UPI)—A 40-pound camel described by Superintendent Tom Baylor as "a ball of fur with a scary looking head carefully balanced on four skinny sticks" was born Monday in the Houston Zoo. It was the first camel to be born at the zoo. A name will have to wait until the baby's sex is determined.

McNary Revenues Recommended To Pay for Part of Baker Project

Washington (UPI)—The Senate reclamation subcommittee today recommended that revenues from McNary dam be used to pay part of the cost of the upper division of the Baker reclamation project in Oregon.

The subcommittee approved a bill to authorize the project but rejected a proposal that Bonneville Power Administration revenues be used to help finance the $6-168,000 project.

The Senate subcommittee approved the project as the House opened debate on a bill by Rep. Al Ullman (D-Ore.) to authorize the project.

The project was approved by the House Interior committee, but nine Republican members filed a minority report opposing it as "not economically justified."

Among House members opposing the project were Reps. Edwin R. Durno (R-Ore.) and Jack Westland (R-Wash.).

Opponents of the project objected that repayment was not assured. They also protested the tapping of Bonneville Power Administration funds to pay for the project, which is not in the BPA marketing area.

Among other objections raised by the dissenters was that the project would "further breach" the 160-acre limitation on the amount of land in single ownership to which water can be delivered from a federal project.

The legislation to authorize the project followed a precedent set in two earlier projects in allowing more than 160 acres to be held by one person when the land is of poor quality.

The principal feature of the project would be Mason dam on the Powder river about 13 miles upstream from Baker. Its reservoir would provide a full supply of irrigation water to 4,010 acres of dry land and supplemental water for an additional 13,990 acres.

Of the total estimated cost of $6,168,000, irrigators would be called upon to repay $1,127,500 over a 50-year period, following a 10-year development period.

More than half the cost of the project — $3,227,100 — would have been repaid from revenues of the Bonneville Power Administration.

Price and Rep. Chet Holifield (D-Calif.) warned House members that in affirming an appropriations committee's veto on further federal spending for shelter construction they also were jeopardizing the program to put emergency stores of food and water in existing shelters.

"I hope the members will search their minds and hearts and give careful thought to whether they want to take the responsibility for depriving the American people of a basic means for protection and survival," Price said.

Rep. Melvin Price (D-Ill.), a member of the congressional Atomic Energy Committee and one of a handful of members on record as opposing Monday's House action, advised lawmakers of their relatively favorable position in today's congressional record.

Price said the congressional shelters were identified in a survey that turned up fallout shelter spaces for 60 million Americans in existing buildings and in some cases in caves, tunnels and other special structures.

Congressmen Who Rejected Fallout Shelter Program Have Own Protection

Washington (UPI)—Civil Defense backers said today that House members who turned down a national fallout shelter program have thousands of "excellent" shelter spaces at hand for their own use.

As part of a national shelter survey—financed by Congress last year—the solidly built House office buildings have been found to afford acceptable shelter for 22,000 persons, with more than half the available spaces rated 10 times as safe as the minimum standard.

Additional shelter for congressmen and their staffs is available in the Library of Congress building and completion of a new $80 million office building for House members next year undoubtedly will provide more and even better shelter in its underground floors.

Rep. Melvin Price (D-Ill.), a member of the congressional Atomic Energy Committee and one of a handful of members on record as opposing Monday's House action, advised lawmakers of their relatively favorable position in today's congressional record.

Price said the congressional shelters were identified in a survey that turned up fallout shelter spaces for 60 million Americans in existing buildings and in some cases in caves, tunnels and other special structures.

Planes To Be Grounded For Civil Defense Test

Washington (UPI)—All civil aircraft in the United States and Canada will be grounded for five and one-half hours on Sept. 2 for a test of North America's air defense system.

Under Operation Sky Shield III, no civil aircraft will be permitted to fly over either country from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. (PST) on that date. Alaska will have a three-hour shutdown and Hawaii is unaffected.

DOWN ON JOB

Newark, N.J. (UPI)—Mayor Hugh J. Addonizio has ordered more ups and downs for elevator operators at city hall. He ordered them to work 5 1/2 hours a day between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday after he learned their practice was to alternate an hour of work with an hour of rest for an average of about 4 hours.

RED-FACED INSPECTOR

Pittsburgh (UPI)—Eleven persons got stuck when an elevator stalled at Carnegie Library. When they were rescued 10 emerged flushed from the heat and the 11th red face belonged to an inspector who had boarded the elevator to see if it needed any repairs.

Finnish Police Battle Rioters With Gas, Clubs

Helsinki (UPI)—Finnish police warned today they would take even sterner measures than Monday night's tear gas attack if anti-Communist demonstrations continue during the Soviet-sponsored World Youth Festival.

Police, including mounted officers, staged a three-hour battle with about 5,000 rioters in the downtown area again Monday night. It took three tear gas attacks and club-swinging forays to break up the third demonstration in as many nights.

Unlike two previous disturbances, this one did not directly involve the estimated 10,000 delegates to the Communist-backed week-long festival.

Slogans Shouted
The demonstrators gathered along a thoroughfare, shouting anti-Communist slogans and jeering police. Most festive delegates were in their dormitories or attending meetings elsewhere in the city at the time.

Police fought the angry mobs with tear gas bombs on three separate occasions, then made a mounted assault swinging hard rubber truncheons. Authorities denied a report that one of the rioters had been killed.

Police refused to divulge the number of injuries or arrests made, if any. Officials said strict precautions would be taken to prevent further disturbances.
