State Land Board Sold 80 Acres It Didn't Own

Salem — It has been discovered that 38 years ago the Oregon Land Board sold 80 acres in Curry county that it didn't own.

The tract, about 12 miles east of Gold Beach, was sold Feb. 3, 1904, to Emma G. Robinson. Now it has been determined that the land at the time was unsurveyed and in the public domain.

The situation was discovered after Ocean View Lumber Co., Gold Beach, bought the property, but ran into a snag while attempting to secure title insurance.

The tract is now within the Siskiyou National Forest.

T. G. Bernard, clerk of the land board, said an application has been filed with the U. S. Bureau of Land Management asking for another 80 acres, to be transferred to the company. The site is about 12 miles northwest of the area the lumber company thought it was buying.

Barnard said both state and federal laws provide for such a transfer.

A sticky part is that over the years, the persons who owned the 80 acre tract paid taxes on it, while it was in federal control all the time. The state has never held any interest in that particular tract.

Pre-registration will be held each Wednesday until Aug. 8, starting at 9 a.m. at the college. Placement tests and counseling will be given in Britt Memorial ballroom.

Two Accidents Reported in Area

Two one-car accidents were reported to Oregon state police Tuesday afternoon and early Wednesday, both resulting in minor injuries.

About 5:06 p.m. Tuesday, a one-car accident on Highway 62, about 3 1/2 miles west of Prospect, was reported to state police. The vehicle was operated by Uther Alonzo Rogers, 66, of 63 Fourth st., Ashland.

According to police, Rogers attempted to brush a bee aside, lost control of the car and after continuing along the road, hit a tree.

Both Rogers and his wife, Ethel Rogers, 54, a passenger, suffered cuts and bruises, police said. They were taken to Ashland General hospital by Medford Ambulance service.

This morning officers reported that a car operated by Elvin Hawkins, 19, of route 2, box 215A, Medford, failed to negotiate a corner at Corey and Kershaw rds. Hawkins was taken to Rogue Valley hospital suffering facial injuries.
