High Altitude Blast Touched Off In Arctic Region

40-Megaton Force Estimated

Moscow - (UPI) - The Soviet Union resumed nuclear testing Sunday with a tremendous high-altitude explosion near the Arctic island of Novaya Zemlya but the Russian people were not told about it through their newspapers and radios.

The seismological institute at Uppsala, Sweden, estimated the force in the range of 40 megatons - equivalent of 40 million tons of TNT - making it probably the second most powerful explosion ever set off.

Anniversary Observed

But today Soviet news outlets concentrated on the first anniversary of the 17-orbit flight of Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov and sang the praises of Russia's exploration into space for "exclusive peaceful purposes."

At the same time the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda denounced "enemies of peace... trying to turn outer space into an arena of aggression."

"It is not true that this is proved by the explosions staged in outer space by American atom mongers," Pravda asked.

The only explosion to exceed Sunday's test in force was Russia's giant blast last fall which was estimated at over 50 megatons. That blast occurred during the Soviet series that broke the three-year East-West moratorium on testing.

As with previous tests, Kremlin leaders made no announcement of Sunday's resumption of testing. Russians in the streets first learned of the blast from Western correspondents.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission in Washington reported the explosion but gave no details.

The start of the new Soviet series, forecast by Kremlin leaders for several weeks, came as delegates to the 17-nation disarmament conference in Geneva settled down for further negotiations on a test ban treaty.

Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders have contended that Russia was forced into new tests because of the American tests in the Pacific started last April.

Israel Willing To Take Soblen Temporarily

London - (UPI) - The Israeli Embassy said today that Israel is willing to take back Soviet spy Dr. Robert A. Soblen, 61, temporarily until he finds a country which will accept him. Communist Czechoslovakia is reported to have offered him haven.

The British government has ordered Israel's El Al Airlines to continue flying the psychiatrist to New York. The Israeli cabinet told the airline Sunday not to obey the order.

"We are prepared to take him back to Israel and relieve the British government of the problem," said an Israeli Embassy spokesman. "But once back in Israel he would have to look for a country to go to."

A Home Office spokesman, commenting on the Israeli statements, said Britain had ordered El Al to put Soblen on an America-bound plane and the airline had to comply. "That is the direction," the spokesman said, "and they are bound by the law of the land to carry it out. They have been given until Wednesday to do it and we expect them to do it."

If the direction is disobeyed, he said, "we shall have to wait and see."

The spokesman added that El Al did not necessarily have to fly Soblen to the United States. All it was ordered to do was to make the necessary arrangements.

A member of the British Parliament, who had petitioned the government in Soblen's behalf, reported last week that Czechoslovakia had offered to grant Soblen a visa to enter there. This never has been officially confirmed or denied, however.

El Al has been instructed by the Israeli cabinet to fly Soblen back to Israel if Britain forces the airline to accept him as a passenger.

Soblen fled the United States June 25 and landed in Israel. Israel expelled him. En route back to New York aboard an El Al plane Soblen slashed himself, forcing his hospitalization in Britain.

DEATH PROBED—Marilyn Monroe, who rose from an orphaned waif to queen of the motion picture industry, was found dead in her bed in Hollywood Sunday. A coroner's investigation has been launched to determine if the blonde beauty, shown above, ended her own life or accidentally took an overdose of drugs. (UPI)

Marilyn Monroe's Death Investigated

Hollywood - (UPI) - Marilyn Monroe, 36, beautiful and tempestuous movie sex goddess, was dead today as a "suicide team" of psychiatrists began an investigation to determine if she took her life with an overdose of drugs.

The blonde actress, Hollywood's brightest star who failed to find happiness, was found stretched out nude in the bed of her modest Brentwood home early Sunday; her lifeless hand grasping a telephone - apparently in an attempt to make a last call.

An empty bottle which had contained as many as 50 nembutal capsules was found near the bed.

The team of psychiatrists said they were trying to learn if the apparent overdose of drugs that killed the screen beauty was taken on purpose or accidentally.

However, Dr. Theodore J. Curphey, Los Angeles county coroner, said flatly that Miss Monroe's death "definitely was not from natural causes."

Curphey said that "on the surface" the death of the actress "might appear to be suicide."

Curphey added that a toxicological examination was under way to identify the death drug, believed to be nembutal (sleeping pills) and to determine the alcoholic content of Miss Monroe's blood.

Meanwhile, the star's half-sister, Mrs. Bernice Mirale, Gainesville, Fla., sent word she planned to come to Los Angeles as soon as possible. She asked that Marilyn's former husband, Joe DiMaggio, and the star's attorney, Milton Rudin, begin making funeral arrangements.

Services for Miss Monroe are tentatively scheduled for Wednesday afternoon at Westwood Village Mortuary Chapel in West Los Angeles.

Miss Monroe's body was discovered by her psychiatrist, Dr. Ralph Greenson, who used a fireplace poker to smash through the bedroom window shortly after 3 a.m. Sunday. Saturday evening she had called her psychiatrist to complain that she could not sleep and was told to go for a ride.

Additional stories and pictures of Marilyn Monroe are on page 3A.

'Thieves Ballad' Planned Tonight

Ashland - "A Thieves Ballad," a music-dance production, will be held this evening following the performance of "Comedy of Errors" at the Oregon Shakespearean theater.

The "Ballad" is an experiment and if successfully received by the audience, a similar production will become a part of future seasons, it was noted.

The work itself is an amalgamation of several existing threads, blended and unified around a new theme. Orlando Gibbons' 16th-century concert piece "Street Cries of London" started the idea, songs by John Gay and characters by Ben Jonson furthered it, and the Festival production group completed it.

The story involves a ballad-courtesan and his accomplice, whose lives are changed by the chance meeting with a street waif. The affair takes place on the streets of London, spanning the dawn to dusk period of one day.

The "Ballad" will be presented after each performance of "Comedy of Errors" during the 1962 Festival season.

Earlier this evening a dinner will honor Henry Hewes, New York critic and drama editor of the "Saturday Review." The dinner will start at 6 o'clock in the Caesar room of the Mark Antony hotel, Ashland. It is sponsored by the Broadway Theater League of Medford. Hewes will speak at 7 o'clock on "A Forward Look at the American Theater."

Asks French Approval

Kennedy, according to authoritative sources, also sent the French government his formal request for approval of Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen as the new U.S. Ambassador to Paris, succeeding James M. Gavin whose resignation was announced last week.

Bohlen is a veteran career diplomat and is regarded as a top expert in Soviet Russia. His previous ambassadorial posts included Moscow and Manila.

Submission of his name to the French government is a diplomatic routine before a formal nomination is sent to the U.S. Senate.

Over the week end, Kennedy sent an urgent request to chairman James O. Eastland of the Senate Judiciary committee for a long series of amendments to strengthen federal powers in dealing with such experimental drugs as thalidomide.

The amendments recommended by the President would restore to the so-called Kefauver drug bill many of the tough federal powers taken out of the measure while being considered by Eastland's committee.

Stumbo Arraigned In Court; Third Arrest Expected

Harry Warren Stumbo, 34, of Wolf Creek, was arraigned this morning in circuit court on a charge of willfully and maliciously setting fire to forest land.

Judge James M. Main continued the case until 9:30 a.m., Aug. 13 for Stumbo to answer the charge and enter a plea.

District Attorney Alan B. Holmes said today that at least one more arrest was expected in connection with the grand jury investigation of approximately 12 road-side fires in Josephine and Jackson counties July 16.

Claude Walter Chase, 41, of Central Point was arraigned last week on a similar charge. His case also was continued until Aug. 13. Both men were arraigned on grand jury secret indictments returned July 30. They are both free on $3,500 bail each.

Deny Implication

Robert A. Boyer, Medford lawyer, representing the men, said in a statement today that his clients have denied any implication in the fires. He added they had no idea what circumstances may have indicated that they were involved, but that they intended to clear the matter up just as soon as possible.

Boyer said the families of both men have been beset by telephone calls and messages from well wishers and friends and "both indicated a deep gratification for the many people who have expressed their conviction in the innocence of both men."

The lawyer stated that he had no idea of the evidence presented to the grand jury, but that thus far neither of the defendants had appeared before any tribunal nor had a chance to dispute the charges against them.

Boyer added that it is possible for one to be indicted purely on hearsay and other evidence that "would not be allowed in any court of law."

Railroads Plan To Adopt Changes

Chicago - (UPI) - The nation's railroads announced today they are withdrawing compliance with a presidential commission's "antifeatherbedding" recommendations and will put stricter work rules changes into effect Aug. 16.

Railroad attorney Howard Neitzler announced the dramatic shift in strategy at the close of a hearing in U.S. District Court. The hearing was on a petition by five on-train brotherhoods for an injunction barring the roads from putting the presidential commission's recommendations into operation Aug. 16.

The railroads said they were serving notice that they would put into effect their original demands of Nov. 2, 1959, which called for widespread elimination of firemen's jobs on the railroads and which also called for longer runs by rail employees.

The announcement appeared likely to throw the case out of the federal courts and pave the way for appointment of a presidential emergency board to head off a crippling nationwide rail strike.

The on-train brotherhoods represent 200,000 rail workers. Even under the presidential commission's recommendations, the jobs of 41,000 firemen would eventually be eliminated. The Nov. 2 demands, in addition to eliminating the firemen's jobs, would give the railroads wide power over how and when employees could be used.

James E. Wolfe, chief negotiator for the railroads, said labor secretary Arthur J. Goldberg had told the unions the administration intended to "exhaust every means under the Railway Labor Act to avoid a catastrophic strike."

The union move was the latest skirmish in a three-year battle that has involved the White House and poised the threat of a nationwide rail strike for the first time since the 1940s.
