

Cultivated Blueberries Considered Unparalleled

This is a banner year for cultivated blueberries, considered this year to be unparalleled for eating out-of-hand, without any adornment added, according to market reports.

Suggested ways of using the berries with meals include plain with cream; as topping for cereal, or mixed with other breakfast fruits; and given scattered over scrambled eggs.

New ways are constantly added to preparation of this native American berry, but summer appetites still thrill to the sight and smell of a cooked blueberry dessert.

Blueberry Pie
Blueberry sour cream pie is one recipe suggested. This recipe requires two cups fresh cultivated blueberries; one nine-inch unbaked graham cracker crust; one-half cup brown sugar; 1 pint sour cream; two tablespoons flour; three tablespoons brown sugar and one egg.

Rinse fresh cultivated blueberries and drain on absorbent towels. Set crust in refrigerator to chill. Mix blueberries with one-half cup brown sugar. In mixing bowl, beat sour cream, flour, three tablespoons brown sugar and egg until well blended. Pour half of sour cream mixture into crumb pie shell. Place all but one-half cup sweetened blueberries over cream.

Four on remainder of sour cream; arrange remaining blueberries over top. Bake at 400 degrees Fahrenheit for 10 to 15 minutes or until pie is set. Chill before serving.

Blueberry Cake
Another favorite is open-face blueberry cake.

Ingredients needed are three cups fresh cultivated blueberries; one cup sugar; two tablespoons flour; dash cinnamon; one cup flour; pinch salt; two tablespoons sugar; one-half cup butter; one tablespoon white vinegar.

Rinse fresh cultivated blueberries and drain well. Combine one cup sugar; two tablespoons flour and cinnamon and mix with two cups berries. Set aside.

Combine one cup flour, salt and two tablespoons sugar. Work in butter. Add vinegar and mix. Spread crust mixture on bottom and sides of a nine-inch loose-bottom layer cake pan. Pour sweetened blueberries into crust. Bake at 400 degrees Fahrenheit for one hour.

Remove from oven and place remaining cup of fresh blueberries over top. Cool. Remove rim of pan to serve. Yield, six to eight servings.

In a crisp pastry shell, golden balls of California Midsummer cantaloupe and cream cheese are topped with a fresh strawberry sauce for this luscious "Strawberry-Glazed Cantaloupe Pie."

California Midsummer cantaloupes are in abundance during July and August, and their season extends into September. They are easy to recognize by their warm beige color and high, well-defined net. Meaty and rich-tasting, they're surprisingly low in calories—only 35 to 40 in the average half-shell serving.

Strawberry-Glazed Cantaloupe Pie
1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese
1 1/2 cups fresh strawberries
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup milk
1/4 cup flour
1 baked 9-inch pastry shell
2 teaspoons cornstarch
Few grains salt
Drop or two red food coloring

Soften cream cheese and blend in milk. Spread in thin layer over bottom of cooled pastry shell. Arrange cantaloupe balls on cheese. Crush strawberries slightly and combine with water. Simmer about 5 minutes. Strain, pressing pulp through sieve; discard seeds. Blend sugar, cornstarch and salt; stir into strawberry liquid. Cook and stir until clear and thickened. Color a bright red with food coloring. Cool to lukewarm and spoon over cantaloupe balls in shell. Allow glaze to set thoroughly before cutting pie.

Makes 1 (9-inch) pie.

Three Girls Selected For Festival

One Medford girl, Susan Caperna, and two Grants Pass girls, Patti Frantz and Peggy Saunders, have been selected by the Rogue Valley Girl Scout council to attend the Region XI Arts Festival which will be held at the University of Oregon campus, Eugene, August 19 to 31.

Girls over 13, but not 18, from the states of Alaska, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, will take part in the 12 days of study in one of four fields, dramatics, arts and crafts, music, and dancing. Each girl will also have an opportunity to explore another field besides her major. It is expected that about 120 Intermediate and Senior scouts will attend.

The total program will include field trips, swimming, bowling, Scouts Own, and other activities. Participants in the dramatics field will attend plays given by the National Children's theater. Most of the time the program will be informal, with the Girl Scout Bermuda shorts and white blouse acceptable wear. Girl Scout dress uniform will be used for more formal occasions.

A tea honoring the girls selected to attend from the Rogue Valley council was given by the selections committee on Monday, August 13, at the home of Mrs. R. L. Hart, 2942 Williams highway, Grants Pass.

The fees for the festival are being shared by the Scouts attending and the local council, with the girls paying one-fourth and the council the rest. Those attending are to return and share their experiences and knowledge gained with other Scouts in the area.

The Rogue Valley Girl Scout council is a member of the United Fund drives.

Stowaway Sauce Has Many Uses

Stowaway sauce is a multi-purpose sauce easy to make and easy to keep on hand for last minute meals.

In a sauce pan combine one (eight-ounce) can of tomato sauce with one teaspoon of instant minced onion. Heat slowly to boiling point. Stir in one cup of grated cheddar cheese and one (four and one-half ounce) can of deviled ham. Heat slowly, stirring, until well-blended.

Add one beaten egg and cook slowly five minutes more, stirring often. Do not allow to boil. Cover and store in refrigerator. Reheat to serve on English muffins, baked potatoes or spaghetti or mix with macaroni in a casserole. This sauce will keep 10 days in the refrigerator without loss of flavor.

Oregon Family Beats Traveling Costs By Remodeling Old Bus

By C. B. ENGELKE
Bryn Athyn, Pa.—Let's say you live in Oregon and want to take your wife and six children to Pennsylvania for a vacation.

Let's add that your budget is limited.

This apparently insoluble problem has an answer. And Wayne Reams of Enterprise, Ore., found it.

Reams, his wife, Carol, and their six children had wanted for several years to visit Mrs. Reams' parents in Bryn Athyn, a suburb of Philadelphia. But funds were very limited.

Couturiers Design Togs For Bowling

United Press International
A strike for haute couture in bowling lanes: 11 European and Latin American designers commissioned by a maker of bowling equipment (AMF) have come up with costumes for bowlers.

The togs include designs by Pucci of Florence, Fabiani and Princess Irene Gallizine of Rome, Chanel of Paris, and Henri de Chatillon of Mexico City.

Gay prints, soft brushed cottons and free, easy silhouettes combine for a dreamy collection of slumber and loungewear for the campus and career set this autumn.

The National Cotton council also reports the two main silhouettes are the classic sporty look and the ultra feminine.

The spare look prevalent in women's fashions has caught on with designers of children's wear. School and party clothes for fall feature low waisted dresses that flare into a fan of pleats, shift jumpers with hip level sashes, and two piece ensembles with straight-line pop-overs to wear with A-line or matchbox skirts.

Bright colors spark fall outerwear for the young set. Sample: brilliant orange duck all-weather coat. The double-breasted coat, buttoned in wood, is tailored at the bodice with welt seaming which falls into inverted pleats.

The knee kamper, also called the Bermuda coat, falls straight line from shoulder to knee and is tailored with large carry-all pockets and welt seaming. The coat, teamed with Bermudas or shirt dresses in calico prints, will debut on college campuses this fall. It comes in suede cloth and wide-wale corduroy. The colors: loden, vicuna and royal blue.

Rumpus In The Royal Family

What are the facts behind the bitter war raging between the two persons Queen Elizabeth loves best—her husband, Prince Philip, and her sister, Princess Margaret? How far can the princess provoke the outspoken, strong-willed prince? How has this family feud affected the other members of the queen's family? Be sure to read this revealing article, "Rumpus in the Royal Family: Princess Margaret vs. Prince Philip."

ble bed with the mattress carried on a rack on the roof; on the other side of the bus, a clothes rack. In the back, a double bed. A pair of cribs for the youngest children, curtains, ventilation vents in the roof and an outside ladder to reach the roof plus a coat of paint completed the job.

In May, the Reams' loaded the bus with groceries and Roxy, 15; Sally, 14; Laine, 10; Bobby, 6; Shirley, 3; Karen, 1 and headed east.

No Breakdowns
"We had no breakdowns, no flats, no engine trouble. The only repair work consisted of putting in a dimmer switch on the headlights," said Reams in an interview here at the half-way point of the round trip.

They'd start about 10 or 11 a.m. and drive until midnight, stopping for lunch and dinner and breaking the trip whenever Roxy, a camera fan, decided she wanted to take pictures, or whenever they came to a spot of tourist interest.

At night they stopped at motels, renting a single room with double bed for mom and dad. The kids slept in the bus after everybody showered in the motel.

Mrs. Reams said she was able to cook a good breakfast for her gang; bacon and eggs plus hot cakes for her husband. At noon they sandwiched, and for supper she cooked a simple one or two-dish meal. They used paper plates, cups and napkins and the silverware was washed in the motels at night.

Reams said he saved money on gas by filling his 63-gallon tank at truck discount prices.

How do you entertain six children on a long trip? It isn't easy, said Mrs. Reams.

Had Games
"We had games and cards on board," she said. "Each child brought something special along for entertainment. Sally amused herself by collecting license plates—she found 48 of them. Roxy took pictures."

"Our worst problem, though, was the baby," she said. "She is just at the age where she can crawl out of her crib and gets into everything."

"The kids would have breakfast and then go right back to sleep," Reams said. "About the time it got dark they'd come to life and start sight-seeing. And, since they'd slept most of the day, they'd get pretty itchy."

The Reams' covered wagon drew lots of attention on its meander across the United States. "All kinds of people waved at us," Reams said, "and everybody went out of their way to be helpful."

No Room
"We were turned away from only one motel—and the owner was apologetic because he didn't have room enough for us to park the bus," Reams said.

The Reams family returned to Enterprise by way of Canada. "Would they do it again? "Sure," was the chorus of eight voices.

"We're going to keep the bus for another long trip or for short camping trips," Reams said.

"Or as a place to put the kids when we have company,"
