Cutter Beached In Rescue Attempt

Newport, Ore. — A 52-foot Coast Guard cutter attempting to aid a beached commercial fishing boat was washed ashore near here Wednesday.

The cutter later was taken off the beach by two 36-foot Coast Guard vessels. The 26-foot fishing boat, the Florence K, remained aground.

The cutter, which is stationed at Yaquina Bay, was driven onto the beach by heavy waves. It suffered slight damage to its port screw.

The fishing boat was capsized by a large wave and then driven ashore. Its skipper, Carl L. Mason of Newport, and son, Eddie, swam through the surf to safety.

The Coast Guard said the stricken fishing vessel probably will be removed from the beach by trailer.
