Republicans Plan Breakfast To Honor Governor Hatfield

At the August meeting yesterday the Jackson county unit, Oregon Federation of Women's Republican clubs, made plans to aid the Jackson County Republican Central committee in promoting a breakfast next month in honor of Gov. Mark Hatfield. The club, during a luncheon held in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Eden, 211 Genesee street, voted to change the next monthly meeting to September 19, Wednesday, in order to hear the governor speak. The event will be at Rogue Valley Country club at 7 a.m. Miss Sandra Gannon, who attended the 1962 session of Girls' State under the club's sponsorship, reported on the event. She told of the value of Girls' State as a lesson in government and citizenship and spoke on both the serious and amusing aspects of the sessions. She will be a senior at Medford High school this fall. Mrs. Stephen G. Nye, who has been named precinct finance chairman for Jackson county, spoke on a plan to interest many voters to contribute to Republican campaigns and distributed coin cards. Mrs. Nye said the plan was formulated with two ideas in mind, one to raise money and the other to stimulate interest in voting and government since it is believed that "where the purse, there also is the mind." Mrs. Eden talked briefly concerning the project in this county to market handicraft products made by senior citizens and called attention to the shop on Water street in Ashland where the articles, suitable for gifts, are being sold. The club plans a rummage sale for November and contributions are sought. Following the meeting, conducted by the president, Mrs. E. A. Littrell, the women went to the Red Cross building to see a film on Oregon narrated by Governor Hatfield.

Fur Show Reservations Still Open

Reservations still are being accepted for the benefit cocktail party and pre-season showing of furs which the Junior Service League and Jean Hart's have scheduled for Thursday, August 23 at the Rogue Valley Country club. Starting at 6:30 p.m. 10 Medford women will model the collection, all from Curtis Stewart's Fine Furs of San Francisco, while guests enjoy cocktails and hors d'oeuvre. Mrs. Dewey Wilson is chairman of the event, and Mrs. Carl Wimberly Jr., is fashion show coordinator. Hair styles for the models will be designed by Hair Fashions, 125 West Main street, under the direction of Glenn. All proceeds from the evening will go to the League's kindergarten for hard-of-hearing children. During the nine years the school has been in operation, more than 40 children with hearing problems have been helped to take their places in society. Through instruction in lip reading and speech and with the use of hearing aids, the children learn to communicate with others in the same manner hearing children use. Many of the kindergarten's children have been able to enter public schools along with their own age group, while others must go for further specialized training at other schools for the deaf.

Reservations for the benefit may be made this afternoon and evening, August 21, with Mrs. Gilbert Tomy at 722-7400.

How do you remove a ball point ink stain? Some of these links will wash out with soap and water. For most of them, you'll need to sponge the fabric repeatedly with rubbing alcohol or acetone or nail polish remover. If the fabric is acetate, Arnel, Dynel or Verel, sponge with any acetate which you can buy at a drug store. When in doubt about the fabric or the fastness of the dye, test on an inconspicuous spot.

Mansion Is Now Furnished Fully With Chinaware

St. Louis — Mrs. John J. Powers has won her fight to see that the governor's mansion in Jefferson City is furnished fully with chinaware. Mrs. Powers made it clear that there would be no cost to taxpayers for a 75 place setting of china with the imprint of the Great Seal of Missouri. Mrs. Powers, who lives in nearby Ladue, had sent letters to Missouri's 600 honor-ary colonels suggesting each donate $25 toward the china. Mrs. Powers' husband, an honorary colonel, quickly wrote his check. Mrs. Powers' plan ran into trouble when John W. English, Democratic party state chairman, and an honorary colonel too, protested against the solicitation. In a note, English suggested that the money be returned immediately. "I can't understand all the fuss," said Mrs. Powers. She said she had first contacted Gov. John M. Dalton and had received his blessing to buy the china. "He (Dalton) was absolutely delighted and suggested I get the letters (to the honorary colonels) in the mail right away," Mrs. Powers said. English told Mrs. Powers to call off the project. Mrs. Powers said "no."

Families Visit At Rohrer Home

Visitors here last week were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lowry and son James, Clovis, Calif., who were guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Bohrer, 559 South Keeneway. Mr. Lowry is a brother of Mrs. Bohrer. They also spent some time with Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Barnum, 1132 Loaf street, the Bohrer's son-in-law and daughter. Mr. Lowry is a representative of the Gould National Battery corporation in Clovis and Mrs. Lowry is enrolled at Fresno State college while studying for a master's degree in English. The visitors attended productions of the Oregon Shakespearean festival in Ashland while in the valley. They were accompanied to Medford by Mrs. Amy Lowry, Clovis, mother of J. C. Lowry and Mrs. Bohrer, and she remained in Oregon for a longer visit. Today the two women planned to go to Eugene to visit the Bohrer's son Robert and his family. Week end guests of the Bohrer's were Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Robinson, family friends who recently returned to the United States after living for a time on the Persian gulf while Mr. Robinson was employed by an oil drilling firm. The Robinsons were en route to Long Beach, Calif.

Guest Leaves For Portland

Eagle Point — Mrs. Hope Maul left Friday for her home in Portland after being a houseguest last week of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Arent, Box 118, Butte Falls highway, Eagle Point.

At Hartleys

Ashland — Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hartley, 130 Third street, have entertained three of Mr. Hartley's cousins recently. Their guests were Mrs. Helen Hartley, Vancouver, Wash., and Mrs. Elma Crawford and Mrs. Mildred Chaney, Portland. During their visit they attended a performance of the Oregon Shakespearean festival.

Two of the hostesses for the annual tea of the Women's association, First Presbyterian church, held last week were Mrs. A. C. Pierce (at left) and Mrs. Victor Birdsaye. The event, held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. D. Kirkland West, Bonnie Brae, Old Military road, was in the oriental theme and the hostesses wore appropriate costumes. About 160 guests attended. Funds raised through the social event go toward the church's medical missionary supply fund.

Fun Day Is Announced For Red Cross Volunteers

All Jackson county Red Cross volunteers-board members, service chairmen, committee members, Red Cross nurses, teacher-sponsors, and instructors are invited to a "Fun Day" which is being planned in recognition of their services. This will be held Friday, August 24, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Day, Gold Rey estates, from 1:30 to 5 p.m. Swimming, card-playing or relaxing will be the order of the day, the committee states. Refreshments will be served. "A large telephone committee has been trying to contact all volunteers," stated the volunteer chairman, Mrs. Frank Preston, "but it is very difficult to find people at home in the summertime. If you have not been personally contacted, but are interested in attending the party, please call the Red Cross office, 722-4405."

Lawrence Brecedas Entertain Visitors; Attend Homecoming

Capital's Athletics Accented by Kennedys

By HELEN THOMAS Washington — VIP's in the nation's capital HAVE to keep fit to keep going at the pace set on the New Frontier. They have little time for sports, but many of them find time for a daily workout to keep trim. From the White House down Pennsylvania avenue to Capitol Hill, lawmakers and other government officials are doing pushups, knee bends, and even practicing yoga to keep from getting muscle bound—largely because with the active Kennedy family around, there's a whole new accent on physical fitness. President Kennedy, who loves sports and the outdoors, now limits himself to muscle building exercises and a daily swim in the White House pool. The reason, of course, is his highly-publicized back ailment. Relaxes The First Lady relaxes by horseback riding, fox hunting, swimming, water skiing, golfing and tennis. She manages to keep up sports at Palm Beach in the winter, at Hyannis Port, Mass., in the summer and at the Kennedys' rented country home at Middleburg, Va. At the White House she swims and plays tennis on the south lawn. Her sister-in-law, Ethel Kennedy, also is an all-around sportswoman and is tops in the famous Kennedy sport, touch football. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and his energetic dark-haired wife, Lady Bird, swim a lot and when they are at the LBJ ranch at Johnson City, Tex., they do a lot of walking. The vice president also rides horseback and goes deer hunting during the season at his ranch. Secretary of State Dean Rusk rarely gets a moment away from international crisis, but when he does have time he goes fishing, plays tennis and golf and sees every baseball game he can. Other members of the official family take on more strenuous sports. Likes to Hike Interior Secretary Stewart I. Udall likes to hike and climbed Mt. Fujiyama when he was in Japan. Agriculture Secretary Orville I. Freeman often plays hand ball with Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara. The FBI gym at the Justice department has been getting a workout by department officials ever since the President's brother, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, came on the scene. When Byron (Whizzer) White, a former All-American football player, was deputy attorney general, he used to toss a football around in "Bobby's" office. Now, as a U. S. Supreme Court Justice, he works out in the Court's gym. Famed Climber Justice William O. Douglas is famed for his mountain climbing. At the Capitol, Rep. Frances Bolton, R-Ohio, who is in her 70's, is keeping in tip-top shape by years of standing on her head and indulging in high-disciplined yoga practice. Senators Barry Kefauver, D-Tenn., Estes Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Kenneth Keating, R-N.Y., are great for calisthenics in the senate gym. The senators make regular use of the pulleys, cycling machines and weight lifting devices. Kefauver also likes to ice skate. A number of government officials and their wives dance a lot.

Singer Contest Show Is Friday

The annual contest style revue of the Singer company is set for Friday, August 24, at Hedrick Junior High school at 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend. Fifty or 60 girls and young women who are entered in the contest will model clothing which they have made under the supervision of Mrs. Geneva Neil, sewing instructor. The contest is in three divisions, the 'teen division for girls from 10 to 13 years old; the 'teen division for girls 14 to 17, and the young women's division for those 18 to 21 years old. This last division includes both unmarried and married seamstresses. A panel of judges will select the winners, and the garments winning first place will be sent to Seattle for the regional contest.

Reunion Picnic Held by Women

Ashland — Members of the Hill Community club held a picnic and reunion in the Lithia park, Ashland, August 16. The group was founded in 1925 as a social and civic group. Among the 18 members attending were five charter members. They were Mrs. Frank Graves, Hill; Mrs. Clarence Bartlett, Talent; Mrs. Jack Clark, Medford; Mrs. Ruth Baumgartner, Yreka, and Mrs. Harry De Jarnett, Talent.

New Shoe Designs Are Needed

The Leather Industries of America is searching for new shoe designs. Young men and women between the ages of 18 and 25 who are interested in details about the unit's shoe design competition should write to its New York offices, 411 Fifth Avenue. In Paris a popular hair topping is lace, heavy, stiffened and moulded into a tiny Jackie-style hat. Television's medic, Ben Casey, inspired the newest blouse, pajama top and sweater silhouettes — topings that are spitting image of the side-buttoned, high-necked coat worn by doctors and dentists. A Texas clothing manufacturer who puts rows of ruffles on pre-adolescent panties calls the dressy britches "grandma bait." Ed Green, the manufacturer, says the lining grandmas also go hook, line and sinker for frilly bras designed for toddlers. The newest entry in the "lounge" field is a multi-purpose wrap-around that's bound to give the Hawaiian muu muu competition. Styled in the A-shape in solid colors and prints, the nap wrap is made in both Terry and broadcloth. It is worn buttoned either front or back.

WORK SMARTER — NOT HARDER

By BERNICE STRAWN Oregon State University "Interruptions ruin my good intentions," a young mother of three told us. Of course, that happens to everyone. What can be done? One smart homemaker, who before marriage was in radio work and conscious of the clock, came up with an idea. She makes lists of jobs which take 5 minutes and others that take about 10 minutes — such as, "sew on a shirt button, clean one dresser drawer, pick up the living room." There's also another list of longer jobs. She says that when the children are around she can't hope to concentrate on any one long job, so, as far as practical, she does the short jobs. The longer ones she saves for the time children have naps or are in school. This idea works most of the time and every little bit helps. You'd be surprised how many of the jobs that you put off, actually take only 5 or 10 minutes when you get started doing them. How many times are you interrupted because a child can't reach his jacket, or your husband's tie isn't where he thought he left it? You can save time by checking up on how you store your belongings. Maybe you can store clothes so they are quicker to find and easier to reach. You can double the usage of closet space for a child by suspending a rod (an old broom handle will do) by two ropes tied to the regular clothes pole. If this rod hangs down 23 inches from the grown-up level, children can easily reach and hang their own everyday clothes; seldom used garments can hang above. Metal rods for this purpose, which hook over the regular closet pole, are also available in some department stores. As the child grows, you can adjust the height of the rod. If you'd like more practical ideas for stretching space in children's and adult's closets, we'd be glad to send you our Extension bulletin "Ideas for Better Clothes Closets." A free copy is yours by writing Oregon State University, Corvallis.

Here's another smart storage tip. Before you put baby's plastic panties away, dust them with talcum powder. This will help keep them soft and prevent sticking where plastic is folded. Some of these plastics can be machine washed, others can't. The only way to know is check up on the label — and save it for future reference. How do you remove a ball point ink stain? Some of these links will wash out with soap and water. For most of them, you'll need to sponge the fabric repeatedly with rubbing alcohol or acetone or nail polish remover. If the fabric is acetate, Arnel, Dynel or Verel, sponge with any acetate which you can buy at a drug store. When in doubt about the fabric or the fastness of the dye, test on an inconspicuous spot.
