Mentor McPeak Hopeful About Washington 'Skins

(This is another in a series on the pre-season prospects of professional football teams for the 1962 season.)

Washington — (UPI) — It has been observed that the last time the Redskins looked good was the day Custer got scalped.

This is not quite fair to the National Football League's tribe of redmen — the Redskins from Washington, D.C. But to the faithful fans of the nation's capital, it does seem almost that long since their beloved Braves were a contender.

The 1962 season does not appear to be the year of a major Redskins comeback. This is the sad fact despite a winter of trading, hole-plugging and overhauling by coach Bill McPeak who is merely hopeful and not overly optimistic.

"We should be improved but we still have a lot of work to do before we find out how much," says McPeak.

This is a fair statement. The Redskins should improve, if only that it's almost impossible for them to be any worse than they were last year — with only one victory and a tie to show in 14 games and last place finish in the NFL's Eastern division.

Have Good Defensive Line

In a nutshell, this is how the Tribe shapes up for the new campaign:

—Good defensive line, with a major linebacking problem and too many question marks in the secondary.

—An improved offense with greater overall speed thanks to the addition of halfbacks Bobby Mitchell and Billy Barnes, but still no outstanding ends.

—An apparent weakness at fullback, where the 'Skins have only a brittle Don Bosseler and Rookie Ron Hatcher from Michigan State.

—A fair offensive line which still could use a good tackle, which must rely on an inexperienced center in sophomore Fred Hageman, and which is anchored mainly around two fine guards in Vince Promuto and John Nisby.

—A potentially great but still unproven quarterback in Norman Snead, who took his lumps in last year's rookie season, plus newcomer Galen Hall of Penn State who could be the NFL's sleeper of the year.

Plugs Hole With Paluck

On defense, McPeak's biggest headache is the middle linebacking position. He has shifted defensive end John Paluck to that spot and will rely on veteran Gene Cronin to fill Paluck's shoes up front.

The secondary looks improved thanks to safetyman Bobby Freeman, obtained from Philadelphia, but it still is not a solid, experienced unit and McPeak may try out a half dozen combinations before the season opens.

GET THREE PLAYERS

Seattle — (UPI) — The Seattle Totems of the Western Hockey league today announced the acquisition of three players from the Los Angeles Blades in exchange for defenseman Frank Arnett and Gordon LaBoissiere. Seattle will get right wing Jim Powers, center Terry Slater and defenseman Jim Hay.

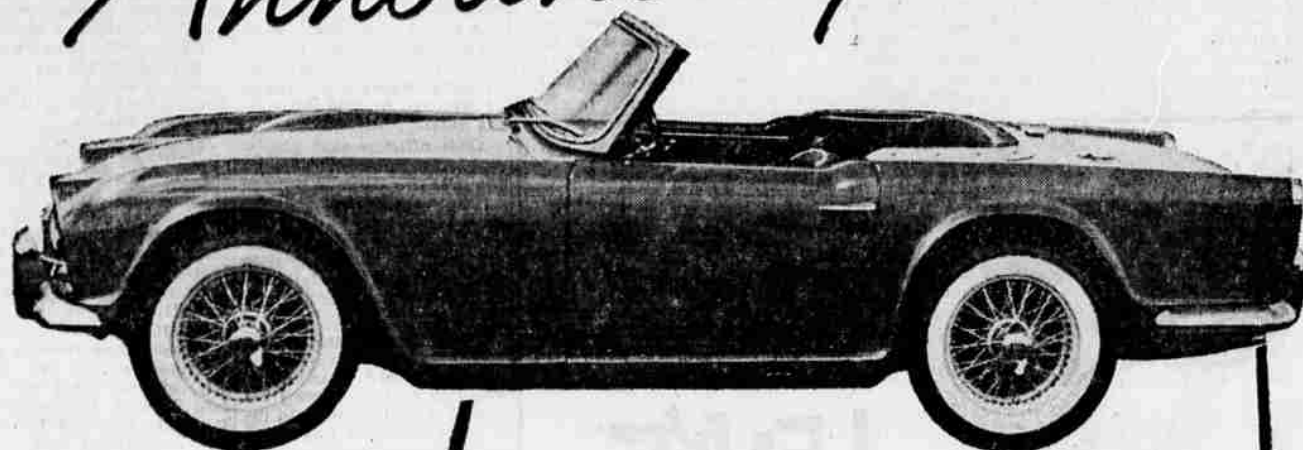

fore the season opens. As of now, the Redskins appear to be almost as vulnerable to the "bomb" as they were during the weekly air raids of '61.

It is the offense which gives McPeak his greatest hopes that the 1962 Redskins will be more like Apaches than palisades. Mitchell supplies them an extent that McPeak frankly admitted "we were the easiest team in the league to defense." And there always is versatile Dick James, probably the most underrated back in the NFL, who does everything but sell programs.
