BEFORE EDISON HARNESSSED ELECTRICITY...

The Wolf Creek Inn was serving customers wonderful steaks (and other foods) by lamplight.

Now we know Ben Franklin is the man who "harnessed" electricity. (It happened the day he was out flying his kite and got struck by a bolt!)... The man we're talking about is Thomas A. Edison who invented the electric light bulb (in 1879). This made it possible for us to tell all our old lamps, which are now antiques, and we wish to heck we hadn't of done it. However, when you visit the Wolf Creek Inn, your steak will be served cooked exactly as you wish... and we'll even put a candle on your table. And the prices are so modest we blush!!

ANNIVERSARY GIFT—A surprise gift for Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hilley of Miami, Fla., was a 3,590-pound elephant. It was the Hilley's 17th wedding anniversary. A shipping company man arrived at 7:30 a.m. with the pachyderm and a bill for $1,875. The elephant bellowed and so did Hilley. It turned out that the peanut eater was only borrowed and was the idea of a joke by neighbors. (UPI)
