Changes Are Made In Center Plans

Further changes are being made in the plans for proposed Jackson county public health center for the fairgrounds, according to a copy of a letter sent to the division of hospitals planning and construction, state public health department.

The letter copy sent to the county court noted such special features as a roll down barrier which can be locked and which is similar to one used in the Clackamas county health center. This locks off the kitchen and restrooms from the rest of the building so off-hour meetings and conferences can be held.

The section for the family and child guidance center would have a separate entrance so late hour and week end conferences can be held with patients.

The psychology and group therapy room would provide for four days of clinical psychology work each month.

The letter was written in answer to questions from Harry Palmer, director of the division of hospital planning and construction.

needed. The tickets sell for $100 each or more. Of this amount $50 is designated the ticket price. Amount above that is a donation.

Can Buy Seats Now

Linebackers have advised persons who have bought five-year tickets and want additional ones to purchase them immediately. They may contact Lee Ragsdale at the high school. It was brought out that anybody interested in buying the tickets, and thereby contributing to the stadium project, may secure them from Ragsdale. It is not necessary to wait until the drive.

The $88,500 construction project—that was the bid of Graff and James contracting firm—is moving along toward completion. All in place now are the prefabricated reinforced concrete risers and the back of the stand. Plumbing is being installed. Seats and brackets are yet to be put in place and the roof is to be constructed. There is finishing work to be done. Cedar lumber is being installed. Seats and brackets are yet to be put in place. Seats of five-year ticket holders will have backs on them.

It is planned to have the new stand in use for the first home game with Marshfield Sept. 21. The stand replaces an antiquated 1,200 seat wooden structure.

With the 2,500-seat stand on the east side of the field, the new facility will provide a total of 6,500 seats under cover. This will give Medford possibly the finest high school stadium in the state.

RAPID PACE AT CRATER—Work continues at a rapid pace on the 2,000 seat grandstand of the Crater High school stadium project, at Central Point. The stand is shown as it appeared Friday. Concrete pouring has been completed by R and M construction company. Plans call for having the stand ready for the first Crater game Sept. 14 against Bend. Everett Faber, chairman of the stadium committee said that, if 40 more of the $50 three-year season tickets are sold immediately, the roof can be put on in time for the opening game. There are actually 80 of these three-year tickets to be sold. Lions club members were to begin this week end the task of installing the seat brackets and seats. (Knackstedt photo)

National Parks Observe 46th Year

Crater Lake National park was among the areas of the national park system celebrating the 46th anniversary of the National Park Service Saturday, according to Crater Lake National Park Superintendent W. Ward Yeager.

Campfire programs on the anniversary date recounted the history and accomplishments of the service.

An act of Congress established the service Aug. 25, 1916. It was signed by President Woodrow Wilson.

Today the NPS administers a system now composed of 118 areas for conserving scenic, scientific wilderness and historic heritage of the United States. The park service is assigned to preserving these areas in their original condition as nearly as possible.

The conflict between the use and preservation has increased steadily as the area visitation increases. Superintendent Yeager pointed out.

Mission 66 program is aimed at increasing the visitor's enjoyment and protecting the areas for future generations. The program, to be completed in 1966, will assure the maximum protection of valuable resources in the national park system, Yeager said.
