Suits Involving Religion Expected To Increase Sharply Before Tapering

Editor's Note: This second dispatch by Claire Cox on the legal furor over the separation of church and state deals with specific cases and discusses what happens to litigation focusing on the problem.

By CLAIRE COX
New York—(AP)—The public debate over separation of church and state has become so heated that more cases involving religion have been filed in the nation's courts in the last 10 years than in preceding centuries.

The National Council of Churches, which keeps an eye on the many litigations without actively participating in any cases, predicts that the number of suits involving religion is likely to increase sharply before it tapers off.

Relatively few of the cases reach the U.S. Supreme Court. Most are settled in lower courts under state laws. George R. La Noue, a specialist in religion and the law and consultant to the national council, says the probable reason for this is that many state constitutions spell out issues more clearly than does the federal Constitution.

Of the cases that do reach the Supreme Court, not all are accepted for argument and decision. Some may be sent back to the states from which they came for further action or may simply be rejected, meaning that the lower court actions stand, neither approved nor disapproved by the high tribunal.

The several recent major cases of considerable national interest have fallen into these categories: They are:—The Alaska bus transportation case, filed by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence R. Quinton of College, Alaska, in behalf of their daughters, Judy Kay, 11, and Linda, 14, against former state Commissioner of Education Howard A. Matthews and the Alaska Board of Education.

According to the suit, the Fairbanks Independent School District ruled on Jan. 28, 1959, that students in lower courts under state laws. George R. La Noue, a specialist in religion and the law and consultant to the national council, says the probable reason for this is that many state constitutions spell out issues more clearly than does the federal Constitution.

Burned over 60 per cent of her body, doctors say she will be permanently scarred and may lose her sight. (UPI)

Adjustment for Coming School Term Should Be Under Way

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Education Specialist
In the next few weeks students will be adjusting to the more rigid routines of the school term. Preparation for school should be under way now.

There appears to be a certain amount of apprehension concerning new classes and teachers. This apprehension, or possibly suspicion, seems to affect some students at all levels.

Perhaps assurance and familiarity will make the transition easier. A young child who has not been near the school building during the summer should spend some time playing in the area. Informally, remind him of some of his pleasant school experiences. When possible, allow his new classmates some of his new classmates. Older students should be more accustomed to the beginning of the school year. Showing your confidence will supply needed security.

Democratic Party To Open Office

The Democratic Party of Jackson County will formally open its fall campaign headquarters at 414 East Main st. Monday, Sept. 3, beginning at 9:30 a.m., according to Democratic County Chairman Jean A. Mills.

The office will remain open until 4:30 and the following day will go on a regular daily schedule of from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. until election day, Nov. 6, he said.

The committee in charge of the formal opening includes Mrs. Ralph Poston, vice chairman, Mrs. Dee Newton, former vice chairman, Mrs. Mark Horton and Mrs. Mills, Paul Harlin, Ward Spitz, Edward McGinty and Frank Christian. Special hosts at the headquarters during the day will be Democratic nominees for the following offices: Robert E. Duncan, congress; Henry Paegnum, state senate; James A. Redden, Charles Cray and Al Bradford, house of representatives; Marvin Madden, county clerk; Larry Sheehan, county commissioner; Ralph James, county judge; Thad Hatten, county assessor; and Berle Stephens, sheriff.

The public has been invited to visit the headquarters, Mills said.

Heavy Use of Rogue National Forest Is Seen for Week End

Near capacity crowds are expected at campgrounds in Rogue River National forest this week end, according to the weekly recreation report from the forest supervisor's office.

The recreation report by district: Applegate District: All roads are open and in good condition except the heavy-use roads are dusty a short time after being watered. Logging trucks will be encountered on some roads.

The Sturgis Fork trail is still closed but all other trails are open. Use of the campgrounds has decreased with the cooler weather, but near capacity crowds are expected this week end. All campgrounds except one are open for camping. McKee will be closed from Friday evening until Monday morning. McKee will be opened seven days a week after Labor Day.

The Oregon textbook case was filed on Feb. 13, 1959, by citizens William H. Dickman, Harold E. Salibaury and Lawrence Smelser against the Oregon City School Board. They charged the First and Fourth amendments to the Constitution and two sections of the Oregon Constitution had been violated by the provision of free textbooks to private and parochial schools. The school board replied that the books were lent, not given to the schools.

Circuit Judge Ralph Holman ruled against the plaintiffs. The State Supreme Court reversed the Holman ruling in a 6 to 1 decision, saying the law that allowed the Oregon of textbooks violated the provision of constitutional provision prohibiting use of public money "for the benefit of any religious or theological institution."

Ivan B. Carlson, a parent of children at the St. John the Apostle Roman Catholic school in Oregon City, who had entered the case as an intervenor on the side of the school board, has appealed the case to the U.S. Supreme Court. His attorney, Lew Smith, said that the books had not been given to the parochial schools and that the Supreme Court has ruled that textbooks can be loaned to children.

Jeffrey Markham, director of Antarctic activities for New Zealand, left Thursday after a two-day visit in Medford. The widely known expert on the Antarctic came to this country to participate in a symposium at Boulder, Colo., after which he viewed ice-traveling vehicles at Calgary, Canada.

Markham's visit here was to confer with Emmitt Tucker and his sons at the Tucker Sno-Cat Corporation. New Zealand is an extensive user of Sno-Cats in that nation's wide explorations in Antarctica. While in Medford Markham was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Gray, 835 Murphy rd. Markham's home is in Wellington, New Zealand.

Miner Alarmed At PE Programs In Schools

Salem—Dr. Leon P. Minear, state superintendent of public instruction, said in Springfield today that he was alarmed to learn what has happened to the health and physical education programs in Oregon schools during the past few years.

He spoke of the combined faculties of the Springfield schools at the Springfield Junior High school. A recent state department of education survey of health and physical education practices in Oregon high schools, Dr. Minear said, indicated that more than half of the 268 Oregon high schools required four years of physical education in 1955-56, but less than one fourth did so in 1961-62.

Dr. Minear said he shares the belief of President Kennedy that the local schools must recognize their responsibility for the physical as well as intellectual development of this nation's children and youth.

Since 1955-56, 63 per cent of the Oregon high schools have decreased the number of required credits in health and physical education. This was the school year following the repeal by the 1955 legislature of the statutes requiring a four-year high school program in health and physical education. At the same time, the state board of education adopted regulations which made the teaching of health and physical education optional in grades 11 and 12.

However, Dr. Minear pointed out, board members recommended that the districts continue to provide health and physical education throughout the four years of high school, and he urged school districts to follow the board's recommendation.

Happily Ever After
Your marriage is just the beginning... the beginning of new hopes, of new plans, of a new life. Together you will decide on the kind of home you want... and together you will start to buy all the many things you need to realize your new life.
With so many products to choose from these days, it's sometimes hard to know which one is best for you...
One of the best ways to decide is by name. If you buy a name brand in furniture or home furnishings, you know what the name stands for. Then you can be sure of getting what you have a right to expect, of what you have paid for.
A name brand means quality because the manufacturer stands behind the design, the materials, the workmanship of his merchandise.
A name brand means confidence that you have made a good investment.
A name brand means pleasure—the pleasure of buying an original and not some nameless copy... the pleasure of seeing it fit perfectly into your home... the pleasure of living with it happily—well, perhaps not ever after, but for many years.
