When School Bells Ring - Ask About School Lunch And Special Milk Programs

Since the National School Lunch Act was passed in 1946 it has become a billion-dollar-a-year business. The actual program costs from all sources during the 1960-1961 year was $1 billion, $84 million. Here is the financial breakdown. The U.S. Department of Agriculture donated $130 million worth of food and gave $94 million in cash assistance. State and local contributions totaled $250 million and the children themselves paid $810 million for lunches served.

A greater number of children and dollars participate in the Special Milk Program. So it seems a fine idea for tax paying parents to ask about school lunch and special milk programs along with questions about hours and vaccinations and other pertinent matters. Your particular school (or schools if you've several children) may have a lunch program of its own but it is likely to have a lunch program operating under one or both of the above named programs.

Funds voted by Congress are matched by funds from sources within the state. The federal funds are administered through the Division of Public School Administration of the Department of Education.

The program, an educational project in health and nutrition is designed to supplement what is being done in homes with adequate incomes and to help check deficiencies which are bound to exist among underprivileged children.

It claims the attention of parents, teachers, civic leaders and all agencies concerned with the well-being of children. Major aim is to provide adequate lunches for all children who want to eat all or a part of the noon meal at school.

Your first question probably will concern itself with the kind of lunches served and their costs. You will be told that type A (whole lunch), type B (part lunch) or type C (milk only) is served. Cost of the lunch which utilizes many agricultural surplus commodities varies according to the location, type of school and the amount of volunteer services performed by parents and other interested persons and organizations.

Help Wanted
That brings parents to another good question. "What can I do to help?" Local interest, local volunteers are the essentials in bringing low cost school lunch programs to a community. Volunteers, paid workers and pupils are the three sources of manpower in the preparation and serving of foods. Programs for training of personnel are the responsibility of skilled school lunch program directors. Lunch program directors will welcome volunteers who find this type of personal service very satisfying.

Concept of the school lunch program has changed considerably through the years; continues to change as surplus food commodities donated by the federal government increase steadily, offer seasonal variety.

Benefits Cited
A recent U.S.D.A. booklet stresses these benefits to students: Program provides a nutritious low-cost lunch; gives free lunches to needy children; meets with one-third to one-half of the recommended daily dietary allowances; develops sound food habits. It is one of the world's most extensive programs of applied nutrition.

While accomplishing better nutrition for many of the country's children, these programs also create an expanding market for farm products and provide better management of food abundance according to spokesmen of the federal government.

Milk and Molasses Make Fine Team in School Lunch Program

Combining fun-to-eat foods with good nutrition is a challenge to parents at any time. Most of us are taking refresher courses in nutrition as the children head back to school creating new demands if they come home to lunch and putting emphasis on the need for after-school snacks.

So it is a special pleasure to team milk and molasses—both so valuable in the daily diet. Molasses, tart and tangy, with its real New Orleans flavor is rich in iron which is so necessary for daily blood-building. Milk as everyone knows is jam-packed with good nutrition besides being our best source of calcium, the mineral essential for sound teeth and bones.

Molasses-Orange Cup Cake Recipe

As part of an appetizing lunch or as after-school snack, these molasses and orange cup cakes make a delightful treat especially when teamed with milk spiced with molasses as indicated in recipe below.

- 2 cups sifted flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- Grated rind 1 orange
- 1/2 cup New Orleans molasses
- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
- 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
- 1/2 cup milk

Preheat oven to moderate 350 degrees. Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Blend in orange rind, molasses, melted chocolate and vanilla. Add dry ingredients alternately with vanilla, beating just enough to blend.

Half fill greased muffin pans with batter and bake 15-20 minutes or until cake tester inserted comes out clean. Cool and frost. Makes about 15 cup cakes.

Cream Cheese and Orange Frosting. Cream one 8-ounce package cream cheese and blend in 2 tablespoons milk, grated rind of one orange and one cup sifted confectioners sugar.

Quick Shake. Morning, noon and night, youngsters love this milk shake. For each shake, simply combine and shake or stir one cup warm milk, one tablespoon molasses and 1/8 teaspoon cinnamon.

Corn Bread-Chili
Fine Western Fare
Folks in this part of the country mostly like their fare a little more highly seasoned than easterners; keep several cans of prepared chili on hand for occasional main dish for supper or dinner. Youngsters especially fancy this combination. Six servings. You can do this with a corn muffin mix.

2 1/2 cups cans chili con carne
2/3 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1/3 cup yellow corn meal
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
2 1/4 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1/4 cup milk
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
Heat oven to 375 degrees (moderately hot). Pour chili into 9x7x2 inch (or comparable size) baking dish or 6 individual casseroles, filling not
