

Civil Benefits Spending Higher Than During 1954

New York - (AP) - A study by Tax Foundation, Inc., on federal domestic spending programs in a 16 year span said that direct government spending benefitting business was estimated at 307 per cent more in 1962 than in 1954.

The figures were contained in a review on the growth of government spending programs. It said budget spending for all civil benefits will total an estimated $26 billion in fiscal 1963, up 126 per cent from 1964.

Private Organization Tax Foundation, Inc., is a private non-profit organization which is engaged on government spending and taxation. It says its purpose is to aid in developing a more efficient government at less cost to the citizen and taxpayer.

It estimated direct expenditures benefiting business at $2.76 billions in 1962, compared with $679 millions in 1954. It broke these down into four major categories. For 1962, these were air transportation, 718 million; water transportation, $845 million; postal service, $853 million; and all other, $543 million.

The study said that the expenditures classified under commerce covered "activities of general assistance to business, such as air and water transportation, airport construction, highways, and the costs of the post office department not covered by postal receipts. Small business receives specific aids in addition to general benefits."

Trust Fund Excluded It specified that the funds listed as of benefit to business did not include expenditures from the federal highway trust fund, which was established July 1, 1957, to cover federal highway aid to the states. Continuation of highway aids in the budget, the Tax Foundation said, would have put 1962 expenditures at $5.9 billion rather than $2.9 billion; eliminating them from the budget in earlier years would make the $2.9 billion for 1962 companies to an expenditure of $697 million for 1954.

Housewives Save Money By Using Convenience Food

Washington - (AP) - An Agriculture department study shows that the housewife saves money by using some of the convenience foods. These are foods that undergo, prior to retailing, some preparation ordinarily done in the home.

Some of the convenience foods that are cheaper than comparable home-prepared items are concentrated orange juice, canned chicken chow mein, instant coffee, frozen lima beans, canned orange juice, spaghetti, cherries, and devil's food cake mix.

Department researchers said that of 158 items studied, 42 were less expensive and 116 were more expensive than their home-prepared counterparts. The department said the typical housewife buys enough of the money-saving items so that her total food bill is smaller than if she bought only fresh items to be prepared in her own kitchen.

The study showed that for each $100 spent in grocery stores for food, $14.03 was spent for convenience foods. About two-thirds of the convenience items in the study were bought in very small amounts. Less than 3 cents per $10 was spent for each of 102 of the items such as grapefruit sections, canned rice, crabmeat, raspberries, and chicken fricassee.
