

Staunch Segregationist Loses Georgia Gubernatorial Election

Atlanta - (UPI) - State Sen. Carl E. Sanders, a moderate on the race issue by Deep South standards, was nominated governor Wednesday in a bitter battle against former Gov. Marvin Griffin, a staunch segregationist.

ONG May Train In Medford Area

Salem - (UPI) - Tentative sites for cold weather combat training for Oregon National Guard units in the 41st division have been selected, the Oregon Military Department said today.

The training will be conducted this winter. The camps will be established when equipment arrives.

They include either the Roseburg or Medford areas in southern Oregon, McKenzie Pass, Blue Mountains, Mt. Hood and Santiam Pass.

The more than 6,000 officers and men affected are to be trained as part of the Alaska defense, a role assigned to the 41st.

Oregon guardsmen will get 15 hours of instruction, in addition to two week ends at one of the camps.

The department said that bulk of the 41st will train next summer at Ft. Lewis, Wash., as usual although some detachments might train at Mt. Rainier.

Sanders, 37, had campaigned vigorously, charging that Griffin's previous administration was rife with corruption.

The ex-governor, roaring up and down the state in a fist-shaking fight for political survival, had said that Sanders' election would lead to wholesale integration throughout Georgia.

Latest returns in the Democratic primary, tantamount to election, gave Sanders 335,321 votes to 194,094 for Griffin, with 1,138 of the state's 1,825 precincts reporting.

Rep. James C. Davis, seeking his ninth term in the 5th District race, the two men will face each other again in a run-off Sept. 26.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge had only token opposition and was easily nominated.

In a victory statement at his campaign headquarters here Sanders said, "This is the beginning of a new era."

"The people recognized that this was a campaign to keep Georgia's customs within the framework of law and order."

Sanders said that he was not surprised that he carried Dougherty (Albany) county, scene of mass arrests and racial demonstrations since December.

Voting lines were long in the state's metropolitan areas. It was the first time in half a century that the ballot of an urban voter counted exactly the same as that of his country cousin.

This was because the federal courts recently struck down Georgia's "county unit system," a method of balloting whereby candidates were elected by the "unit votes" assigned to each county. The system guaranteed rural domination in statewide races.

Harold Schick, Salem, was appointed to the State Scenic Area Commission, succeeding the late Carl Jordan, Salem.

Frederick D. Stabler, McMinnville, was reappointed to the Advisory Council to the State Board of Health on Licensed Nursing Home Administrators.

Members of the new group will study and evaluate future needs for off-street parking facilities in Grants Pass.

Regular meetings will be held the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month. The members are required to submit a report to the city council by Dec. 5.

The Sept. 23 meeting will be devoted to exploration for the need of off-street parking facilities.

Freeman Summoned To Again Explain Department's Role in Billie Sol Estes Case

Washington - (UPI) - House investigators today called Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman to explain once again his department's role in the Billie Sol Estes case.

Freeman was scheduled to appear before a House government operations subcommittee looking into Estes' grain storage dealings.

The secretary already has testified before the Senate investigations subcommittee, the other congressional group studying the affairs of the Texas farm financier.

While Freeman went before the House subcommittee, Agriculture Department aide N. Battle Hales returned for his third session with the Senate panel.

Hales contends that Estes received favored treatment from the department. He claims that he was transferred because he tried to alert Freeman to a breakdown in departmental safe guards in the case.
