OSU Professor Wins Basic Research Award

Corvallis - (UPI) - Dr. Moyle Harward, an associate professor of soil science at Oregon State University, Wednesday was named the winner of the school's annual basic research award. The award was made at the Oregon State University faculty day program. Dr. Harward was recommended for the award for his research in the clay mineralogy field. He received a $200 check from the Agricultural Research Foundation.

Coordination Said To Be Inadequate

Portland - (UPI) - Herman Meier Jurgen of Beaverton, chairman of the Oregon Fish commission, said Wednesday night there is a "woeful lack" of coordination between the Oregon Fish and Game commissions.

He testified before a subcommittee of the Oregon Legislative Interim Committee on Natural Resources. Meier Jurgen proposed that his three-member group be expanded to five with the two other members to be selected from the five-man game commission.

He said that the proposal was not intended to lead toward consolidation of the two commissions.

However, Rollin Bowles of Portland, a member of the game commission, testified against the proposal. He said a policy instituted last year under which one member of each commission sits in as an observer on the other commission was working out satisfactorily. State Rep. Carl Back (D-Port Orford), chairman of the subcommittee, said he was puzzled why there has not been more cooperation between the two groups.

Publicity Funds Topic of Meeting

Officials of six southern Oregon chambers of commerce and county court members of Jackson and Josephine counties will attend an annual meeting Sept. 26 to discuss tourist publicity funds. To be represented by presidents, managers, secretaries and tourist committee chairmen will be the Medford, Josephine county, Ashland, Rogue River, Gold Hill and Cave Junction chambers.

The group promotes the southwest Oregon area by means of an $8,000 budget contributed by the Jackson and Josephine counties. The resulting advertising appears in national magazines such as Holiday and Sunset. Medford Chamber Manager Don McNeil said a study of results last fall indicated that 56 per cent of the persons who requested information due to the advertisements spent part of their vacation in the Rogue valley. McNeil said the vacation stay averaged five days.

Also paid for by the pooled funds were invitation brochures which are sent out in response to requests from the advertisements.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at the Rogue Valley Country club. Next year's publicity program will be outlined and discussed.
