

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

LITTLE OLDE NEW YORK: Broad Street in 1637 was called the "Heere Graft" and Wall Street was known as the "Cingle"... Peter Koch, who appears to have been the first houseowner — at Number One Broadway in 1633—also is credited with concocting the first Martini Cocktail ever served in America... In 1664, at the present Peck Slip and Pearl, intrepid voyagers wishing to be ferried across the East River to Brooklyn would blow a blast on a long metal horn suspended from a tree growing close to the water's edge. Upon hearing the blast, Commodore Rudo Kaplan, an imbibor, would saunter out of the seerstube, don his uniform, find his paddle, and propel them over to "Breukelen."

Vic Fredericks tells of a phone call that woke up a minister in the middle of the night. "Hi, Finnegans," there asked a blurred voice he recognized as a parishioner. "Please send around three quarts of Scotch immediately." "This is not Finnegans," said the minister severely. "This is your rector." "Well, for Pete's sake," came the voice in astonishment. "What the heck are you doing in Finnegans' joint?"

SIGNS OF THE YEAR:

At a French perfume counter: "A course in Judo free with every bottle."

On the back of a truck: "Watch my rear—not hers."

In a college book store: "Help fight TV.: Buy a book!"

On a Chinese menu: "Meals without rice: ten cents extra."

On a tree near a Wisconsin pond: "Anybody found fishing here will be found in the same spot the next morning."

Need for 'Spirit of Volunteerism' Is Stressed At Annual Red Cross Meeting

This country is in danger of losing the "spirit of volunteerism" according to Ben Padrow, faculty member of Portland state university, who talked last night for the 45th annual meeting of Jackson County chapter, American Red Cross.

Chapter members from throughout the county heard the speech teacher, newspaper drama critic, and leader in the Portland chapter, Oregon United Nations chapter, say that students today are increasingly less interested in such civic movements as the Red Cross, are "less indignant" and write fewer letters to legislators and congressmen.

During the business session officers and board members were elected, two honorary life memberships were conferred and reports reviewed. Robert D. Heffernan presided since Dr. Elmo Stevenson, chapter chairman and also president of Southern Oregon college, is in Washington, D.C., on business for the school.

Couple Arrested On Contributing Charge

A young Medford married couple was arrested yesterday and lodged in Jackson county jail on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Bail was set at $5,000 for Robert Charles Mount, 20, and his wife, Aletha Marie Mount, 20, of 230 Beatty st.

The arrest was made in connection with the statements of a 15-year-old Central Point girl, who is now in custody at the Jackson county juvenile detention home.

City police said today other arrests are expected in the case.

freighted his goods into Bend from Shaniko, Ore. He moved from Bend to Medford about 42 years ago and started Cliff's Sport Shop. He was a member of the First Methodist church, Medford. One son preceded him in death.

Surviving besides his wife is one sister, Mrs. O. P. Holland, Memphis, Tenn.; and several nieces and nephews.

Pall bearers will include: Eugene Thomas, Leslie Boardman, Carl Miller, Victor J. David, Hiram Martin, A. W. Aya and Edward Evans.

"The Red Cross is not secure in its coming leadership." Surveying what "trigger might release the flood tide of man's future aid to man" the speaker said he believes college professors are partly to blame for the apathy of students and added "College is a mid-wife assisting the mind of the students to deliver ideas." Professors too often fail to shock and alert the student mind, he believes.

The speaker said, however, that many students are interested in world affairs, if not in local civic movements.

Retreat From Problems

Seeking to "explain" the student of today he declared they see "no ending for the cold war" they tend to "retreat" from problems, marry early, have large families, hold down a good job and endeavor to surround themselves with comfort and security.

They may shy away from talk of brotherhood and sacrifice, seek "privatism", are frightened to be alone, have an inordinate fear of being bored but "want to believe" in something. Too many live for the moment, and have "no vision and no dreams" the college professor declared.

Turning to a brighter side of the picture, the speaker said that these students are merely waiting for something or someone to inspire them with idealism and faith. In the case of the Red Cross, he said that adults who have conviction about the movement should speak to these young people with interest and emotion.

Must Have Vision

"Students will join movements, but not on your terms. It must be as a human being treated with creativity and sensitivity to life, imagination and the dignity of self-awareness. It must be not as a monologue, but as a dialogue. We must have the imagination to cling to the unreasonable. We must have vision."

Douglas Gordenier, president of the United Crusade, announced the beginning of the drive Monday. Harold Cook, executive secretary of the Crusade, and Mrs. V. P. Nicoletti, chairman of the home crusade, were introduced. Mrs. Gene Williams and Mrs. John Welch are her assistants.

Mrs. John S. Day, Red Cross chairman of recognition, pointed out that the canteen service, which had served meals for the chapter throughout the year, was relieved of the annual dinner. Members of the service will be honored at a tea Sept. 26.

Junior Red Cross members who assisted last night were Katherine Foley, Ann Parsons, Pam Trowbridge, Sue Higgins, Patty Selby, Betty Davis, Brian Porter and David Collins.
