Eggplant Pleading In Way Like These

Eggplant, the purple beauty of the vegetable world, is unfortunately overlooked by many a good cook in this part of the world. The Syrians cut eggplant into cubes and simmer with tomato sauce, onion slices and spices in a lamb stew. Prepared Turkish style, the pulp of the eggplant is combined with rice, tomatoes and breadcrumbs and baked in a shell. A combination of eggplant and seafood is favored by many.

Fried Eggplant

Perhaps the most popular American way with eggplant is to slice it and fry like this—eight delectable servings.

- 1 pound (medium) eggplant
- 2/3 cup fine dry bread crumbs
- 1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon celery salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 2 tablespoons milk
- Celery salt

Peel and cut eggplant into one-half inch slices. Combine bread crumbs, cheese, salt, celery salt and ground black pepper and set aside. Add eggs to milk and mix well. Dip eggplant fingers into bread crumb mixture, then into milk and egg, and again into seasoned bread crumbs. Fry in hot fat preheated to 375 degrees or until fat is hot enough to brown in one-half hour in 60 seconds. Drain on absorbent paper. Sprinkle with additional celery salt.

Cucumber Keeping

Cucumbers for slicing should be firm, fresh, bright, well-shaped, of good medium to dark color. Should be stored in refrigerator for not more than a week.

Minted Prunes

These minted prunes are very good with lamb. Cover pound of prunes with water; add one-fourth cup vinegar and a few drops mint extract. Let stand overnight or longer.

Sandwich Combs

To Work and to School

Many sandwiches go to work and many go to school—then there are sandwiches that are good to come home to at noon. Whatever your share of the 30 million sandwiches eaten daily in the United States (and we didn't count snacks), here are suggestions that may prove helpful in deciding "which" sandwich.

Consider sliced cold roast beef or pot roast with one of these combinations: sliced tomato, lettuce and salad dressing; sliced cheese and lettuce; sliced tart pickle and sliced cheese.

Equitable Names District Manager

Frank W. Proulx has been appointed district manager of the Equitable Life Assurance Society in southern Oregon with headquarters at Medford, effective Oct. 1.

The appointment was announced by Harold P. Drake, agency manager at Portland. Proulx has for several years been a successful individual life underwriter for the society in Portland, Drake said.

Proulx will supervise Equitable's operations in Douglas, Josephine, Jackson, Lake, Klamath and Curry counties.

His offices will be maintained in the Fluhrer building. The Proulx family is moving to Medford next week.

Proulx succeeds Jerry M. Gastineau, who opened the Medford district several years ago and who will continue as an individual agent to service his own personal clients.

Registration Booth Planned at Center

The Jackson County Young Republicans will staff a mobile registration booth on the Newberry's parking lot at the Medford Shopping Center Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 22 and 23.

Registrars will be on duty during operating hours conforming to the Jaycee Seal Belt installation being conducted from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. both days.

Change in Evening Class at SOC Noted

Ashland—There has been a change in the Southern Oregon college night class schedule. Mrs. Mabel W. Winston, college registrar, has announced.

History 101 which has been scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday evenings has been changed to Monday and Wednesday, from 7 to 8:15 p.m., beginning Sept. 24. Instructor for the class is Douglas R. Legg, Mrs. Winston said.

4-H News

West Side Rabbiters

The West Side Rabbiters 4-H club finished its 1962 year with a banquet at Kim's restaurant. Our guests were Jerry Brog, county extension agent and his wife, and Jim Wainwright of the First National bank and his son Joe.

Wainwright gave us our year's awards on behalf of the bank. Brog gave a speech and complimented us on our 4-H work. The members were given awards or ribbons for points earned during the year.

Some of the members gave talks on various projects accomplished by the club during the year. New officers were installed and Mrs. Phyllis Caldwell was presented with a gift from the club for being an outstanding leader.

CHOOSE ARCHITECT

New York — UPI — Minoru Yamasaki, designer of the United States Science Pavilion at the Seattle World's Fair, has been named architect for the proposed World Trade Center in Manhattan. The $270 million center will occupy a 15-acre tract in Lower Manhattan. It will be built under the auspices of the Port of New York Authority.

Grange News

Hornbrook Grange

The election of officers for Hornbrook Grange was held recently at the Grange hall. Elected were master, Alfred King; overseer, Mrs. E. E. (Pete) Fisher; lecturer, Mrs. George Michels; steward, Bill Butler; assistant steward, Mrs. Bill Butler; chaplain, Mrs. Frank Lowe; treasurer, Mrs. Bertha Bradley; secretary, Mrs. Ralph Chadwick; gate keeper, L. F. Madison; Ceres, Mrs. L. F. Madison; Pomona, Mrs. Grace Quigley; Flora, Mrs. Willis Jones, and lady assistant steward, Mrs. Alfred King.

Elected to the executive committee was Frank Bear. Installation of officers will be held Sept. 28 preceded by a potluck dinner at 7 p.m. The drill team led by District Deputy Wayne O. Ralston of Yreka will conduct the ceremonies for the open installation.

In regular business, it was voted to purchase tile for the dining room and kitchen floors of the Grange hall.

It was announced by Master Mrs. George Michels that Mrs. James Riant had been elected chairman of the home economics committee at their regular meeting.

Other home economics officers elected were co-chairman, Mrs. Frank Bear; secretary, Mrs. Matt Johnson; and treasurer, Mrs. Ralph Chadwick.

Deputy Ralston attended the election meeting and spoke on the up-coming State Grange convention to be held in Santa Monica, Calif., in October. He spoke also on the need for proper legislation and discussed Proposition 23 (the re-apportionment bill) and other propositions which are on the California ballot for the November election.

Michels announced that the street light program sponsored by the local Grange is progressing, four new lights having been installed by the Pacific Power and Light company, making a total of 12 lights in town to date.

Central Point To Call for New Bids

Central Point — The Central Point city council will shortly call for new bids on construction of a pump house and piping in connection with the city's new water reservoir.

At a special meeting Wednesday night, the council decided on different plans for the pump house in an effort to reduce the cost.

All three original bids on the project were rejected last week because councilmen felt they would not have enough funds to accept even the lowest bid.

As soon as the new plans and specifications are ready, the council will call for new bids, probably in October, according to Mayor Freeman Mason.
