Manor Member Relates Traveling by Eurail Pass

(Editor's Note: The excerpts of letters from Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Melville, members of Rogue Valley Manor, Medford, which follow have been furnished the Medford Mail Tribune by Arnold Eugene Jenny, also a Manor member, and conductor of the Poets' Corner published in the Sunday issues of this paper. The Melvilles are nearing the end of a seven-month round-the-world tour from San Francisco via Japan, and now are in Frutigen, Canton Bern, Switzerland, birthplace of Mr. Jenny. The letters from Frutigen from which these excerpts were taken were sent to Mr. Melville's sister, Mrs. Donald S. Stevens, who with her husband, lives at the Manor.)

July 8. As I write I am sitting on the terrace of the Sieber-Mueller's Hotel National, surrounded by a panorama of spectacular beauty. The landscape is easily equalled by the hospitality of Paul and Frau Sieber, who really make you feel at home and like personal guests rather than paying ones. Frau Sieber mothers everybody. We take our problems to her and they always are solved with a feeling of mutual satisfaction, where to go and how, etc. There is a great feeling of restfulness and you breathe in Swiss integrity with every breath. Without doubt this is a most delightful place.

I don't care if I see any more of Europe. I would be content to stay here. The meals are "homey" - very good and most plentiful. The backdrop of mountains is as lovely as ever and the changing light and shadow and cloud pattern a constant delight.

Yreka Gardeners Plan Projects

Yreka-Both the afternoon and evening groups of the Yreka Garden clubs held recent meetings.

At the session of the afternoon group, held at the Elks building, Mrs. Dennis Broderick, arrangements chairman, told of her visit to the California State fair and of the arrangements she saw in the floral building.

Mrs. James Sullivan, president, conducted a business meeting and Mrs. Ray Kelly, chairman of the landscaping committee, brought plans for the Ringo pool. It was suggested that club members propagate some of the plants which will be needed for the Ringo pool grounds as funds for the project are low. Cuttings of evergreens, creeping juniper, myrtle, vinca, hypericum and Oregon grape are among plants needed. Hardy roses also can be used.

Full care of lawns was the subject presented by the horticulture program chairman.

The evening section met at the home of Mrs. Orlo Davis in Little Shasta and plans were discussed for a coming flower show. Mrs. James Sullivan, club president, told of the plans for the art and flower show to be held Sept. 23rd.

A discussion was held concerning the floral exhibit at next year's County Fair.

Mrs. Ernest Johnson, horticulture chairman, read an article on the planting and care of peonies. Mrs. Virgil Nelson, chairman of the evening section, conducted the business session.

Cosmetics Firm Boss Says Makeup Being Overdone

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
New York (UPI)—A woman boss of a cosmetics firm says American women are overdoing their makeup.

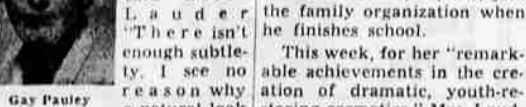

"Most of them are using too much, with harsh results," said Estee Lauder. "There isn't enough subtlety. I see no reason why a natural look in makeup cannot be considered beautiful," said Mrs. Lauder. "Fix up your face according to YOUR skin, not according to what your neighbor is doing. The skin should have a creamy, luminous quality. Naturally, the shades in makeup should be determined by the individual's coloring. But I have often found that one shade of rouge (deep rose) and one shade of eye shadow (turquoise) will do wonders for the average woman."

Mrs. Lauder, who offers a 10-point program of skin care, boasts a creamy-looking, unlined complexion that is her own best testimonial. Yet the blonde, brown-eyed businesswoman has two grown sons and two grandchildren.

Born at Flushing, N. Y., Mrs. Lauder originally planned to become a dermatologist, following a pattern set by some of her uncles who were dermatologists in Vienna.

But love intervened when she met Joseph Lauder, a business analyst. And it wasn't until her two children were of school age that she resumed her interest in skin care. She started selling one of her family's all-in-one face cream formulas in the rear of a small, hairdressing shop in Manhattan.

"They say the way to spread the word is by telephone, telegraph and tell a woman," she said. "It was the last that worked for me. One customer told another."

Today, Mrs. Lauder's beauty products are sold in stores nationwide, in Canada and Europe. Her husband is boss of the production of the line. Son Leonard, 26, is a vice president, and chances are that son Roland, 18, will join the family organization when he finishes school.

"This week, for her remarkable achievements in the creation of dramatic, youth-restoring cosmetics," Mrs. Lauder was presented the Neiman-Marcus award at the firm's 25th annual fashion exposition in Dallas.

Learn Art

Learn the art of applying makeup. Get advice from one of the hundreds of trained personnel which various manufacturers posted behind cosmetics counters. Mrs. Lauder alone has "several hundred" who have been schooled in cosmetics use.

Don't wear the same daytime makeup on into evening because artificial light creates a different effect. By coincidence, Mrs. Lauder has just come out with a line of evening cosmetics which have iridescence.

Never smooth rouge on the cheeks only. Put a faint touch on forehead, chin, and ear lobes to bring the whole face in harmony.

Select one fragrance and make it your signature.

Always use fresh cotton pads to apply powder. Don't just powder your nose when touching up makeup. Take time to go into a powder room and go over the entire face.

And remember that a good rule is, "whatever goes on the face should go on the neck too." This holds for powder, foundation, cleansing lotion and the creams.
