Cystic Fibrosis
Many people ask about cystic fibrosis — one of the common diseases of early childhood. It is inherited when both parents have what is called a recessive gene.

In other words, neither of them has in the cells of his or her body (tiny chemical unit) which is needed to make in an infant a normal pancreas (the big digestive gland back of the stomach). Because one in every 30 persons in this country is probably a "carrier" of the abnormal gene (a carrier is a person who inherited the tendency to a disease and can pass it on to his or her children, but hasn't any symptoms of it himself), the odds that two such persons will marry and have an abnormal child are 30 times 30 — or one in 900.

What happens with cystic fibrosis is that the mucous secretions in the lungs and the pancreas turn into a sticky substance which is hard to get out. In the lungs it interferes with the entrance and exit of air, and this predisposes the child to the coming of bronchitis and pneumonia. Because of the sticky secretion in his windpipe, the child often has coughing spells which can interfere with his sleep and his taking of food. He may cough until he vomits, much as in cases of whooping cough.

Similar changes take place in the secretion of the pancreas. There, the thick material plugs up some of the ducts (little tubes) that lead into the small bowel. Because the secretion of the pancreas is essential to the handling of food, the child is likely to have much trouble with his digestion; he can get diarrhea with bulky, greasy and foul-smelling stools. In spite of a voracious appetite he will tend to lose weight. Often he sweats excessively around the head. In the past, in many of these cases the correct diagnosis has been missed.

Easy Exhaustion
Curiously, such a child's sweat glands put out from three to five times more table salt than are put out by the glands of a normal child, and this leads to easy exhaustion and heat prostration during hot weather. The only good feature of the salty sweat is that it makes it easy for the doctor to diagnose the disease; all he has to do is to sweat, perhaps with a bit of silver chromate paper, that there is a large amount of salt on the child's skin.

Interestingly, (showing possibly the presence of a carrier state) are now being obtained in the parents of some of the ailing children.

There are, by the way, at least two medical meanings for the word carrier. What I imply here is that the parents inherited a tendency to the disease but did not get it.

Another meaning of the term is a person who has a virus, like polio virus, which does not bother him, but which he can pass on to someone else.

Can Test for Trypsin
The fibrocystic disease can be diagnosed also by testing the child's stools for a pancreatic digestive ferment called trypsin. X-ray studies of the lungs will help in making the diagnosis.

Most of the sick children show symptoms of their trouble before they are a year old. They are usually bright and alert, but they may fail to grow well. When they get an infection they can be helped and kept alive with antibiotics. A pancreatic extract can help them to digest food. Helpful information for parents of children with cystic fibrosis can be obtained from the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation, 521 Fifth ave., New York 17, N.Y.

Unfortunately, as yet, there is no drug which will cause a complete cure. The thick secretion in the bronchial tubes can often be liquefied with the help of aerosols (drugs breathed in the form of mists). Such mists can carry into the lungs antibiotics. The mist is produced by a "nebulizer." The name of the maker of this apparatus can be obtained from the National Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. The disease is not catching and hence the children can safely go to school.

Another common gland problem involves the thyroid. It usually occurs in middle aged persons, more commonly women. If you want helpful information about "Thyroid Troubles and Goiters," send for Dr. Alvarez' booklet on that subject. Enclose 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. MM, The Register and Tribune Syndicate, Box 957, Des Moines 4, Iowa.

State To Act as Food Stamp Agent

Portland—(UPI)—The state of Oregon agreed Saturday to act as an agent of the government's food stamp program, a big step toward start of the program in Multnomah county.

County Commissioner James Gleason said the state decision means food stamps will replace free food distribution in Multnomah county, but probably not for at least two months.

Multnomah county is one of the areas in the nation where the stamp program was offered by the federal government earlier this year.

Raleigh—In one year, 1954 to 1955, the U.S. peanut crop jumped by 71 per cent. The yield was 1,037 pounds per acre.

Mrs. Daley Dies; Funeral Tuesday

Mrs. Eva Leonora Daley, 83, died Saturday morning at her home, 343 North Grape st., where she had resided the past 40 years. Her only survivor is her daughter, Miss Venita Daley, Medford.

Eva Leonora Conley was born in a sod house on a Civil war preemption claim near Burnette, Neb., on Dec. 14, 1878. The town is now Tilden, where her parents, the late John and Sarah Conley, built and managed the first hotel there.

The Conley family moved in April 1886 to Brownsboro, Ore. Mrs. Daley grew up on Little Butte creek and during her girlhood she held the title of valley waltzing champion.

In Jacksonville, on Nov. 18, 1901, at the old county courthouse she became the bride of Irvin Conrad Daley, who died in 1952.

Mrs. Daley was cook at Elleen hotel, Blue Ledge Copper mine, Siskiyou summit in 1906 and later did dressmaking for many years in Medford. She lived at the W. C. Daley farm at Lake Creek for five years until 1923.

She established her home, known as The Flower Garden on North Grape st., raising outdoor grown flowers for sale in Medford. Being a daughter of a Union veteran, she specialized in Memorial day bouquets, which she did for 40 years.

She was a charter member of the Southern Oregon Society of Artists and the original Southern Oregon Gem and Mineral society.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Perle Funeral home. The Rev. D. E. Millard will officiate. Interment will be in the family plot in Eastwood IOOF cemetery.
