

RONALD KALISTA
Seeks Council Seat

Gold Hill Council Candidate Kalista Tells Background

Gold Hill — Ronald Kalista, who is seeking election for a four year term on the Gold Hill city council, has been a resident three and a half years. He came to Oregon about 13 years ago from his home town of Toledo, Wash., where he received his formal education.

Kalista has no former experience in city affairs. The fact that he was defeated in the last city election did not discourage him. He would like to be a councilman, he says, because he is interested in the community, which he feels is a duty of each resident.

He added that he feels it is time the city council "has newer grass growing" and it is time "to get some of the old grass burned off."

Served In Korea

Kalista, a former sergeant in the U.S. Army, is a Korean War veteran. He did a tour of 21 months duty in Korea, 16 months of it during the war. He is now employed as a shipping clerk for Rogue Valley Plywood at White City.

His civic interests include volunteer fire department, of which he has been a member the past year, and the Gold Hill Lions club, which he joined several months ago.

During leisure hours he does cabinet work and enjoys working in the yard at his home on Fifth ave. Sharing this interest is his wife, Dolores. The couple have three sons, Bill, a third grader, and DeWayne, a first grader at Patrick Elementary, and Paul, 2.

Couple on Way Home From Taiwan Visit Montague

Montague — Returning to America recently after four years in Taiwan were Mr. and Mrs. John Golston and daughter, Ruth. They were the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Day of the Day Herford ranch in Little Shasta Valley recently.

Goldston, a food technician, in the employ of J. G. White Engineering Co., worked as a food consultant to the government of Free China, for the improvement of food processing methods, and for the China Military for improving food actions.

After six months in the Orient he was joined by his wife and daughter. Mrs. Goldston, a physiotherapist, worked as a volunteer at the Taiwan university hospital, in orphanages and Girl Scouts.

They were en route home to New York. They visited the World's Fair in Seattle, also.

While they were here their hosts entertained a group of friends and neighbors to meet the visitors and to view their many slides of travels which included the countries of Taiwan, Hong Kong, Burma, India, Egypt, Greece, Italy, France, Germany, Denmark, Japan, Wake Island and Hawaii.

"Being mayor of a small city is like running a business," says Mayor E. O. Graham of Jacksonville. "The people of the city are your 'investors.' They expect you to make a profit in the sense of making improvements in the city."

Graham looks upon the mayor's post, which he has now held for two terms, as one involving quite a bit of work, but also as one with many rewards.

"I've been happy with what's been accomplished in the city during the last four years," Graham says. "I've met a lot of people, and it's certainly been an education."

On the other hand, the mayor comments, "People don't realize how many hours the council has put in on our sewer project alone. People sit back and watch their television sets while you work away. If they like what you come up with, everything's fine. But if they don't like it, you're in trouble."

Being mayor of a small city affords contact with virtually all the community's residents, Graham adds, and he feels this is an advantage, as sometimes, personal contact with all the residents is the only way to explain complicated city council actions to the people.

Some Unusual Problems

This close contact is time-consuming, however, as people tend to come to the mayor with all of their problems, regardless of whether they have anything to do with the city or not. Graham has been approached by residents wanting to know how to go about making a will and others seeking advice on insurance problems.

Mayor Graham has decided to run for re-election this year, and the opportunity for close contact with the residents is one of the factors behind his decision. Graham feels there are several important projects in the works at present on which he is obligated to follow through.

One, of course, is the city's soon-to-be-installed sewer system, which has been the center of some controversy. Another is a proposed city park that is in the works. A third is an urban renewal program in Jacksonville.

Graham is a little concerned about what he calls a "dissatisfied minority" in Jacksonville. "There's been a dissatisfied minority with every issue we've had in the nine years I've been in city government (five on the council, four as mayor), and it's always the same group."

The mayor indicates he'd like to continue his efforts to see that important projects are not stymied by this minority but vocal group.

Who Died?

Detective story writers sometimes use the plot about a man reading his own obituary as a gimmick, but we never expected to see this column become involved in such a situation. We hope that Harry Smith, former mayor of Gold Hill, now living, we are told, in California, was not too shocked to read the other day that he had died. (We understand that some of his Gold Hill friends planned to send him our column of last Wednesday which reported that Mayor Milton Steinmetz of Gold Hill was appointed following Smith's "death"). For the purposes of correction, we should point out that Smith didn't go that far. He merely resigned.

Pedestrians Urged To Wear Light Colored Clothing

Phoenix — Reduced hours of daylight bring special hazards to pedestrians this time of year especially in areas where improved street lighting is not available. Phoenix Chief of Police John Atchison pointed out today.

Even in downtown areas, Atchison said, neon lights and other lights shining on wet pavement can make a pedestrian almost invisible to an approaching driver if the pedestrian is wearing dark-colored clothing.

Atchison urged pedestrians to light-up at night, wearing something white or light colored so that an auto's headlights can pick him out in time for the driver to stop.

"The best advice any pedestrian ever will receive," Atchison added, "is never to assume that a driver will stop. The fact that the right-of-way belongs to pedestrians in crosswalks is small consolation in the hospital."

Chester Ayres Takes Over Service Station From J. R. Krupp Jr.

"Chet," as he is known to all his friends and customers, has lived in the Rogue valley since 1936.

He is married and the father of two children, both now attending the Central Point schools. He served in the U. S. Navy during World War II.

He was, until his recent resignation, a member of the city council. He is an active member of the Central Point Jaycees, and a past president of that organization.

Further Increase In Central Point Enrollment Noted

Central Point — Enrollment at both Central Point Elementary and Junior High schools have increased since opening day, Sept. 10.

Elementary enrollment, after four weeks of school, has increased to 330 from 314. Junior High enrollment has increased during the same period from 322 to 334.

New staff members were added to the faculty of both schools this year. Ron McKenna, a former teacher at Central Point Elementary, has returned to teach sixth grade; Mrs. Jeanne Carothers has returned to teach elementary music and junior high chorus, and Mrs. Erma Taylor has been hired to teach Junior High homemaking.

Mid-nine week grade reports will be sent home the week of Oct. 8. Parents will receive written reports from their child's teacher if school progress is not satisfactory.

Regular report cards will go home with students Nov. 14. The first nine weeks reporting period ends on Friday, Nov. 19. Mid-nine week reports will be mailed to parents, report cards will be brought home by the student.

Friends Welcoming George Wacker Home

Siskiyou County — Friends and fellow merchants are welcoming George Wacker who has spent the past eight months at the Cascade Sanatorium in Redding. Wacker is the proprietor of Wackers Fine Foods Market in Yreka and the Drive-In Market in Montague.

Of interest as well is the fact that M. M. (Maj.) Ward of Mt. Shasta City, formerly of Grenada and Yreka, has been confined in the Cascade Sanatorium for about two weeks. During his absence his wife Mrs. Jessie Ward is making her home with her sister, Mrs. Ora McGregor in Yreka.

Candidates' Fair, Parade Are Set In Grants Pass Tonight

By PRISCILLA AVERILL
Mail Tribune Correspondent
Grants Pass — Candidates for national, state, county and city offices in the coming election will convene in Grants Pass tonight at a non-partisan "Candidates' Fair" sponsored by the League of Women Voters here.

Preceding the fair candidates will appear in a parade through the downtown business section sponsored by the local Jaycees.

Among those participating will be Sig Unander, Republican candidate for U. S. Senator; Robert Y. Thornton, Democratic nominee for Governor; Carl Fisher (R) and Robert

B. Duncan (D), candidates for U. S. Representative from the Fourth District.

Twenty candidates will ride convertibles in the parade, which gets under way at 7 p.m. Also featured will be the Grants Pass High school band, South Junior High band, and floats of Republican and Democratic parties.

The fair will start at North Junior high at 8 p.m. Speakers will be introduced by Mrs. Dorsme Gohrke, chairman of the Voters Service Program of the Grants Pass League of Women Voters.

Each will be given in allotted time (from 2 to 4 minutes) to speak on a selected question. After the program voters will have an opportunity to meet and talk with the candidates.

Following are the candidates who will appear and the questions which will be put to them:

Sig Unander (R)-U.S. Senate: "In your opinion, do the states need more help from the federal government to finance education adequately? If so, in what form?"

Robert Y. Thornton (D); Robert Wampler (Ind.)-Governor: "What legislative program would you propose to meet the financial needs of the state, such as those of education at all levels, state institutions, welfare?"

Carl O. Fisher (R); Robert B. Duncan (D)-U. S. Representatives, Fourth District: "What federal legislation, if any, should be enacted to promote the planning and development of our natural resources?"

What Are Your Plans?

Norman O. Nilsen (D); Alfred "Pat" Blair (R)-Labor Commissioner: "To what areas would you expect to direct your efforts in the next four years?"

Sidney Bazett (R); Carroll W. Dewey (D)-State Representative, 18th District: "To what specific areas of interest would you plan to direct your major efforts at the next legislative session?"

James F. Harris (D); Louis D. Ringuette (R); and D. R. McGregor (R); Ed Hare (D)-County Commissioner: "To what specific areas of interest would you plan to direct your major efforts during your term of office?"

D. W. Gillespie (R); Charles B. Gill, Jr. (D) — Mayor, Grants Pass: "Good Government begins on the local level."

Candidates for the Grants Pass City Council will also be introduced.

Straw Poll

In keeping with the "Democracy in Action" theme of the fair, a straw vote will be conducted on two controversial ballot issues: the Daylight Saving Time and Josephine County PUD measures.

Invitations to attend the fair were accepted by all national, state and local candidates with the exception of Sen. Wayne Morse and Gov. Mark Hatfield, who had commitments elsewhere but will sponsor booths manned by their representatives.

Ferd Jones
Running Again

Ferd Jones, Gold Hill Recorder 12 Years, Runs Again

Gold Hill — Ferd Jones, recorder-treasurer for the city of Gold Hill the past 12 years, will seek re-election because he was asked by a group of people to run again.

He expressed the opinion that it is good to keep active. He said that his main interest since coming to Gold Hill in 1944 have been school and city affairs and that he is interested in the community as a whole.

A graduate of the University of Oregon, he was in the teaching profession 33 years and worked on school budgets during this time. He is a former principal of the elementary school and old Gold Hill High school prior to consolidation of District 6 schools. Jones is an overseas veteran of World War I.

Jones has been civil defense director here for several years. Besides city affairs, other interests include Gold Hill Community Methodist church, of which he is one of the trustees; Odd Fellows lodge 129, of which he is now secretary and is a past noble grand; Gold Hill Grange and the Gold Hill Chamber of Commerce. He is a past master of the Masonic lodge in Central Point.

Jones and his wife, Ada, who is also active in community affairs, reside at the family home on Sixth ave. Their children are grown, and they have several grandchildren.

Central Point Jaycees Discuss Christmas Plans

Central Point-The topic of discussion at the last meeting of the Central Point Junior Chamber of Commerce was the organization's Christmas projects.

The Christmas shopping tour, a special event for under privileged children of the area, will again be conducted.

Youngsters will be brought into the American Legion hall and taken from there to various stores by members of the Jaycees, who will provide the children with a little spending money of their own to use.

The Jaycees also plan to sponsor a nother outdoor Christmas lighting contest. A first, second and third prize will be offered.

A panel of judges will be selected from the Central Point Lions club, the Jaycees and the city council.

Next Jaycees meeting will be held Thursday, Oct. 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the Faber building.

BIRTH NOTED

Eagle Point-Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Knoebel of Eagle Point that their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Knoebel Jr., were parents of a 6 pound, 10½ ounce boy on Saturday, Sept. 29. Knoebel is an Airman 3rd class at Shillings Air Force Base in Kansas and the couple are residing at 233 South Fourth st., Salina, Kansas.

Siskiyou Board Approves Special Tennant District

Yreka — At a recent Siskiyou County Board of Supervisors meeting in Yreka there was discussion about the town of Tennant, Calif., and C. E. Bullock, who has rebuilt the town into a recreational area.

A writ of mandate was brought against the Board by Sam Friedman, attorney for Bullock.

The matter came to a head several weeks ago when the board received a petition for a public utilities district to be made up in this area.

The district attorney advised the board that it was not legal, because there was only one signature attached to the petition, Bullock's, and this, under law made it illegal, as the petition needed more than one signature. Friedman brought the matter into Superior Court where it was declared legal and then brought it before the board which then gave its approval and is now proceeding with the formation of the public utility district.

The town of Tennant has been rebuilt and is in the process of being made into a recreational area for hunting and fishing.
