Dancers To Hold Hunters' Ball

Buckles and Bows Square Dance club plans a "Hunters' Ball" at the Bellview Grange hall Saturday, October 13. Those attending are asked to dress as they would go hunting, and a prize will be offered.

Floyd Workman will be the caller, and guest callers will be welcome, the committee states.

Those attending are asked to take potluck refreshments.

Use a screen to keep fireplace sparks from rugs and floor. And always be sure the late fireplace coal is out before leaving the house or going to bed.

Theater League Signs Judith Anderson

The famous actress, Judith Anderson, has been announced as the star of the fourth dramatic attraction which will be brought to Medford by the Broadway Theater League for the 1962-63 season. Miss Anderson and a small cast will do scenes from "Macbeth" and "Medea."

Miss Anderson's name had not been mentioned in previous announcements concerning the season since the local group had not been given any information concerning the fourth program for the series. Three plays had been announced, and the Broadway league main office had said that negotiations for the fourth attraction were still under way. Yesterday a wire from New York said that Miss Anderson had been signed. Miss Anderson is considered one of the finest actresses on the English-speaking stage. A character actress, she has been outstanding in roles which call for great emotional and interpretive power.

She has been starred on the stage, in motion pictures and television plays and is remembered particularly for "Strange Interlude," "Mourning Becomes Electra," "Macbeth" and "Medea" on the stage. Her great movies included "Rebecca" and "King's Row."

Her Broadway Theater League appearances in the west have tentatively been set for April.

The plays already announced are the musical comedy "Carnival," the mystery-comedy, "A Shot in the Dark" which closed in New York in late September, and "Mary, Mary."

Only about 200 memberships remained unsold when the news was received that Miss Anderson has been booked for the Medford series. BTL board members said yesterday that with the great drawing power of the noted actress, it is believed the remaining memberships will be readily sold.

Those interested may call Mrs. Arlon Skinner, 772-8913.

Casts Given
Soprano Elaine Malbin will star in "Carnival." Miss Malbin has appeared in NBC Opera company presentations of "Salome" and "Madam Butterfly," and for the past four seasons has been featured on the "Voice of Firestone" program. This past summer she sang the leading role in "Desert Song" for the Sacramento Music circus.

Playing opposite Miss Malbin will be David Daniels, who won Donaldson and Theater World awards in 1955 for his role in "Plain and Fancy" on Broadway. He also toured in the show "Call Me Madam."

Star of "Shot in the Dark" will be the French actress, Annie Farge, seen locally in a national television series.

Appearing with Miss Farge will be Robert Burr who had a leading role in "The Andersonville Trial" on Broadway. Both Mr. Burr and Joel Thomas, who will be in the cast on tour, played with the New York cast. Others in the cast are Paul Ballantyne, Barbara Stanton, Fred Chandler and Stanley Jay.

Lee Bowman and Patricia Smith play the leads in "Mary, Mary."

Thirty Mothers Honored at Tea

Thirty mothers of Jackson school children were honored at an annual tea held recently in the gymnasium. The guests were served by the executive board of Jackson Parent-Teacher association. The tea was followed by the first meeting of the season of Jackson Parent-Teacher association.

"The First Grader," the meeting theme, was illustrated on film slides by Miss Gladys Durrand.

Bruce Metzger, Jackson school principal, introduced the faculty and new teachers. Reports on the PTA convention general sessions were given by Mrs. Pauline Thompson and workshop sessions were given by Mrs. John Wimer.

Student body leaders, Donald Sample, president; Nick Jones, vice president; Cheryl Christenson, secretary and James Morrissey, treasurer presented the flag.

CEREAL-NUT MIX

Sweet talk snack is a cereal-nut combo to make at home and reheat later in a wire popcorn popper over a camp fire. Mix two cups each of puffed wheat and ready-to-eat-bite-sized oat cereal with one half cup of pecan or walnut pieces in a shallow pan. Toast 10 minutes in preheated 350-degree oven. Mix lightly with one-third cup of melted butter. Toss with one-fourth cup of sugar mixed with one-half teaspoon of cinnamon. Return to oven eight to 10 minutes more. Makes four and one-half cups.

Meat Powder Cookies Have Protein Value

Now that school has opened mothers are called on to provide healthful, nutritional foods for lunches and after-school snacks. Cookies are popular items and because this is true it is important that they be not only tasty but contain food value as well.

From the meat headquarters of Swift and company comes news that strained meats for babies can be added to refrigerator cookies to give them a nutritional boost with complete meat protein.

Unfortunately most cookies provide little besides calories to the day's nutritional needs. By stepping up the protein content with meat in a form easily blended with other ingredients, the cookies can actually contribute high quality complete protein to the diet.

Tiny tots welcome cookies because they are easily managed in small hands. The added meat power available to children during this period of rapid growth gives the cookies a real plus nutritionally.

Teen-agers also are experiencing a time of rapid growth. Boys especially seem to be always hungry, cookies and a glass of milk after school are standard fare in many homes. Here, too, meat protein has a body-building job to do.

Strained beef, pork, lamb, veal, ham, or chicken may be used for cookie baking. Be sure to select the 100 per cent meats for they contain the most protein.

After trying Martha Logan's recipe and sampling the delicious cookies, mothers will want to experiment by adding meat power to their own favorite cookie recipes.
