Roman Catholics Schedule Religious Discussion Clubs

The fall session of Contraternity of Christian Doctrine religious discussion clubs is now under way in Sacred Heart parish, with some groups already filled and meeting regularly. Other groups are completing plans for beginning their discussions during the next two weeks.

According to Mrs. Arthur Becker, chairman of the CCD activity, an increased interest in the study sessions for adults is evident this year because much of the material to be discussed concerns Roman Catholic church government and ecumenical councils.

Selected as a text to be used at the current meetings is Volume II of the Practical Catholic Life series, entitled "What Every Catholic Should Know" and edited by the Rev. Hugh J. O'Connell of the Redemptorist Fathers.

Strengthened Faith

Since discussion clubs have proven to be a successful means of strengthening the active faith of many individuals during times when pastors have less opportunity for personal contacts, the Very Rev. Carl Mai and the assistant priests of Sacred Heart church encourage all who can, to participate in the current sessions.

Anyone wishing to form or to join a club, or desiring further information, may call Mrs. Becker, 773-2639.

Free baby sitting service is offered by St. Mary's students for parents of young children. Those needing this service should call Mrs. Paul Newcomb, 772-5495, immediately.

Other Courses

Adult inquiry classes are held each Monday night for approximately 25 weeks. The Rev. John A. Iig will conduct information sessions for those who are interested in inquiring into the teachings and practices of the Roman Catholic church.
